Bicentennial Arrival

MRS. SHAWNA CRAIG proudly shows Charlevoix's first baby of 1976. Shawna and her husband, Michael, are the proud parents of a 7 lbs. 11½ oz. girl born at 3:42 a.m. on January 2. The girl's name is Anna Michael. Both the parents and new baby will receive a host of gifts from Charlevoix merchants and businessmen in celebration of the new arrival at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Environmentalists Oppose Highway Improvements

BELLAIRE—If straw votes mean anything, environmentalists were badly outnumbered Monday night on proposed Northern Michigan highway improvements.

But, while supporting proposed transportation improvement nearly four to one, only one of 75 publicly endorsed the idea.

Most testifying at the first of seven public hearings held here in the Bellaire Public Schools gymnasium said they objected to any improvement that would either damage the environment or bring more people north.

Residents were commenting on the State Highway Department's new master blueprint for transportation activities in Northwestern Michigan ranging from aviation and railroads to water ports and public transit improvements.

Although only in planning stages, the state transportation agency's proposals for improving U.S. 31 and U.S. 131 drew most interest.

The State is proposing some 15 highway improvement alternatives ranging from improving existing highways to building a freeway corridor off of I-75 to serve Northwest Michigan.

Supports Improvement

Charlevoix County farmer Tom Wieland told some 75 Antrim and Charlevoix County residents that farmers need improved highways in Northern Michigan to compete against Southern Michigan.

"Being a farmer, most all of the commodities we buy comes from southeast and southwest Michigan," he said about having to buy fertilizer and cattle feed.

"This is why we need roads for trucks."

Wieland, who is the county's Farm Bureau spokesman, said that because of poor roads, Northern Michigan farmers are forced to pay higher prices for both shipping and receiving.

"Ninety-five percent of the milk produced has to be shipped out because only five percent is bottled up here," he continued.

And because of the higher transportation costs, he said farmers are hard pressed to compete.

But while Wieland was pushing for better roads, others opposed any road improvements for a variety of reasons.

Lee Ekstrom of the Antrim County Soil District said his group didn't mind seeing existing roads improved, but was concerned about the construction of any new highways.

He said his group feared the effect construction would have on the environment.

Good Roads

Dick Couture, engineer-manager for the Antrim County Road Commission, echoed similar feelings.

"Good roads mean so much to us in Northwest Michigan," he said.

"The Road Commission believes our existing roads should be maintained and modernized."

But at the same time, Couture said his commission didn't feel a freeway was necessary.

Attorney John Unger said the most practical position is to do nothing at all.

"Better roads aren't necessarily the answer."

Also feeling that highway construction would ruin the environment was Mary Kay McDuffy of Bellaire.

"We are fortunate to live in one of the few unspoiled counties in Michigan," she said.

And because of its beauty, the Bellaire resident neither the year 'round residents or summer visitors would want a new expressway or corridor.

Be Careful

I think something should be done about the motorists who flagrantly flaunt the basic rules of the road. For example, I was coming home on U.S. 31 toward Charlevoix in the right hand lane, driving the speed limit, 55 m.p.h. when a car passed me on the shoulder on the right hand side and cut-in in front of me. This is absolutely wrong and they must know this. I would suggest that we could help by having the Courier print a column with a caption, "watch out for" and print the license number of the car.

Mouth Wash

Regards recent news media reports on the disease preventatives values of Listerine mouthwash. I have a testimonial to make on behalf of any mouthwash, but not necessarily just Listerine. While I was at an army boot camp, in a cold producing area, in the United States, the heat provided was from a low grade sulphur and soot producing fuel. Large numbers of men would awake in the morning after a night of breathing these fumes and spit up black mucus accumulations, then and during the day. Some of us who had better educations, chipped in to buy a mouthwash to clear the sooty mucus from our throats and thereby prevent irritation and disease. None of us begrudged the army, but instead the times which was circa 1958, but I can't believe that conditions have improved that much in that cold producing area. Current issue as far as I am concerned, resides with pettyfogorous efforts of the private companies who produce mouthwash and the F.D.A.

Grant Street

Having lived beside the Grant Street hill in Charlevoix for many years and watched winter time bob-sleighing grow progressively degenerate, it appears that in clear conscience we can no longer remain silent about the dangers to young children who use the facility.

Physical danger is great. Children of all ages ignore "no trespassing" signs and slide down the back roof of Art Dry Cleaners as well as the storage barn at Newman Street alley on sleds over which they have little or no control. When they hit the edge of the roof and bounce to the ground, any parent may well shudder at the possibility of multiple fractures.

But, there are other dangers to be considered. We have watched with horror as older children terrorized the younger ones with threats if the arrant rascality of the older youngsters were denounced.

For instance, we have watched in alarm as older youngsters emphasized their contempt for the police as they dragged a young victim up and down the hill trussed by a strong rope.

To complete the depredations, younger children are hearing such foul language as was once ascribed to violent men, but now flows fluently from the lips of older youngsters with an ease that signifies familiarity with nasty words.

A solution must be found: Either parents must police the hill when their youngsters are using the facility or the hill must be closed for winter recreation for the good of the community and the welfare of innocent children.

Clyde Cunningham Named Chairman

Clyde Cunningham was unanimously elected chairman of the 108th session of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners at the organizational meeting held Friday.

He succeeds Harry Griffin who had filled the position for the past year.

Donald B. Meggison was re-elected vice chairman by a unanimous ballot.

Cunningham has been a member of the board since Jan. 1, 1961 and served as chairman of the board from April 1967 until Jan. 1, 1968, when the board was re-organized from a Board of Supervisors with a membership of 25 members to a 15-member Board of Commissioners.

Immediately following the election, the board voted to continue to meet on the second Wednesday of the month except when designated otherwise by statute. The Auditing Committee will meet the Thursday following the regular meeting of the board.

The committees named for 1976 follow:

Ways and Means: Finance, I. Lee Moerland; Appropriations and Settlement with County Treasurer, fra L. Davis; Salaries--Personnel and Elected Officials, Ms. Thora Kotowich.

Public Safety and Property: Building and Grounds, Meggison; Sheriff, Civil Defense, Claims and Special Detectives, Ralph Richardson; County Roads, Ironton Ferry and Airports, Ralph Harmon; Insurance, Advertising, Printing, Judicial and Legislative, Barney Milstein. Judicial and Legislative was transferred from Ways and Means to the above committee at this time.

Health, Welfare and Planning: District Health and Commission on Aging, Martin L. Paul; Welfare, Child Guidance and Veterans Affairs, Harry Griffin; County Planning, Parks, Building Code and Resolutions, Oscar W. Ward; Agriculture, Conservation and Forestry, Rudolph Florenski. The Resolutions committee was transferred from the Public Safety and Property committee to the Health, Welfare and Planning committee.

Equalization: Equalization, Delbert Ingalls; Apportionment, Michael Fulkerson; Township and City Clerk Report and Rejected Back Taxes, Clayton A. Smith.

Moreland, Ingalls and Cunningham will comprise the Statutory Finance Committee.

At the same time, one special committee was named and representatives to other committees were approved. They include the following; Special Elections committee: Lyle King, Charlevoix city clerk, Walter Kemp, Eveline township clerk and Max Novak, Charlevoix board of education: Act 258 Board, Martin Paul; Northwest Regional Planning Commission, Ira L. Davis representing the board of commissioners and Arthur Steinbrecher representing the Charlevoix County Planning Commission; Commission on Aging, Ms. Kotowich; Special CETA committee, Moreland, chairman, Paul and Richardson. All appointments are for one year

Railroad Abandonment--Only the Beginning

Northern Economy Could Have Bleak Future

Railroad abandonment is only the "tip of an iceberg" for Northern Michigan's economic woes, claims a regional economic planner.

Richard Beagle, assistant director for Northwestern Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission, forecasts a gloomy picture for the north without rail service.

Not only will prices continue to skyrocket, northern industry will find itself out of competition with southern Michigan firms because of higher transportation costs, he says.

The railroad issue is nothing new, Beagle says his 10-county commission staff has been concerned about it since 1968. His biggest worry is the lack of public interest.

"Most people up here say 'so what'," he said during a recent interview.

"The public attitude is, don't care."

Beagle says part of the public's apathy stems from the seasonal employment that abounds in northern Michigan.

"If a person can work eight months and get welfare for four months, why should he be concerned with industrial development," Beagle continued.

The federal and state governments' attitude towards rural development isn't encouraging either.

"Everything that is happening now is being geared to the big urban centers," he said about public policy.

With the financial and operational problems facing large urban centers, the economic planner says there should be a public policy to encourage smaller town growth.

"Huge sums of money are going to solve the problems of the large city, while at the same time neglecting the rural areas," he continued.

"If you want a job you have to go to the city."

The Rural Development Act, a federal program enacted three years ago, provided little or no funding, Beagle said.

"The federal policy, as it goes now, encourages everyone to live in a corridor between New York City and San Diego and the rest of the land would be left vacant."

Beagle says the railroad issue is just one part of the public policy problem.

Although the northern planner says his commission hasn't given up for continuance of rail service, he admits the future looks bleak.

"We disagree with the stand the state has taken in subsidizing all lines, he continued.

"Under the state plan, rail companies getting subsidies would make little effort to expand because they know it will only be temporary.

"At the end of the subsidy, we will be where we are today."

Beagle and his commission think both federal and state efforts should be towards operating a system with only a slight subsidy that will eventually become solvent.

He says the Rail Reorganization Act of 1973 requires that the rolling stock of bankrupt lines go to Conrail, so it will be difficult for non-operational railroads to operate in northwest Michigan.

"Everyone has testified at hearings and meetings that shipping costs are going to go up," Beagle about the importance of maintaining rail service.

"Looking at total costs, there will be an increase especially in building costs,"

He said that many industries are going to be left with no other alternative, but to move because they won't be able to compete with Southern Michigan industries with lower transportation costs.

Faced with 10 percent unemployment, Beagle says northern Michigan can't afford to lose its key industries.

"Whether we can maintain what we have to develop more industry is becoming questionable," he said.

"We either are going to provide 'what the industries demand or face the alternatives."

Beagle

Although northern Michigan communities are not interested in heavy industry, Beagle says the region is going to have to actively search for rail-using industry to move north.

"The secret of the whole success is for the communities to really evaluate what they want," he said.

"Do they want growth or should people in northern communities have to move to find jobs?".

He said people in the north are going to have to realize that industry today isn't what it was 10 years ago. Much of the larger types of industry are not environmentally disasterous as before.

"Communities can attack industry that could use rails and also be compatible to our sensitive environment," he added.

Medicare Deduction Goes Up

The Medicare hospital insurance deductible became $104 after January 1, according to Gordon Sattelmeier, Manager of the Petoskey social security office.

A Medicare patient who goes into a hospital and starts a benefit period after December 31 will be responsible for the first $104 of the hospital bill.

The 1975 deductible was $92. Under the Medicare law, the amount of the deductible is tied to the average cost of one day's stay in a hospital. Under the law, the increase in the deductible means there also will be increases starting January 1 in three other amounts Medicare patients pay for covered care.

For a hospital stay of over 60 days, the patient will pay $26 a day (up from $23) for covered services furnished on the 61st through the 90th day.

For a post-hospital stay of over 20 days in a skilled nursing facility, the patient will pay $13 a day (up from $11.50) for the 21st through the 100th day.

For reserve days used after 90 days of hospital care in a benefit period-the patient will pay $52 a day (up from $46).

Sattelmeier stated that the Medicare hospital insurance helps pay for hospital stays and certain post-hospital care of people 65 and over, disabled people under 65 who have been entitled to social security disability benefits for 24 consecutive months or more, and many people who have permanent kidney failure.

Further information can be obtained by contacting the Petoskey social security office Monday through Friday from 9:00 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

ROBERT J. WEYAND, Food Service Analyst for the Michigan Department of Corrections, shows Mrs. Ernest (Joella) Williams how to use the recommended state-program to feed prisoners.

Go Directly to Jail.... And Eat Frozen Food?

By FRAN MARTIN

For years in Charlevoix County, the Sheriff's wife was expected to prepare three meals a day for prisoners.

However, after Mrs. Philo Sumner became ill, a new method had to be found.

For awhile, the Charlevoix County Commissioners had the meals catered in by a local restaurant, But, with only one or two prisoners in the jail it was hardly worth anyone's trouble.

Thus, the search began for another alternative. That's when a new method of food preparation by the Michigan Department of Corrections came into the picture.

"Everyone wins–the county, which must supply the food and underwrite the cost of its preparation, the people who must prepare it, those who must serve it, and the prisoners, who will be eating it," says Robert J. Weyand, Food Service Analyst for the state.

Under the program, a single cook is hired to work 40 hours a week to prepare meals from a menu also developed by the Office of Jail Services that could be served seven days per week.

The program required a walk-in freezer (which is costing the county $1,350 plus freight to be installed in the former storeroom), a micro-wave oven (at a cost of $350) to be utilized for heating meals prepared earlier and stored in the freezer and special dishes to be used in the micro-wave oven.

Mrs. Williams Hired

Mrs. Ernest (Joella) Williams was selected from among eight applicants for the position of cook. As soon as this decision was made, Weyand, came to Charlevoix to train Mrs. Williams. The program includes the ordering of foods on a large scale, the preparation of foods plus its preparation by the use of special dishes and the use of the micro-wave oven to heat the meals that have been stored.

"In the beginning I knew I'd never get the 'hang' of it" Mrs. Williams said.

"However after the training, I understood why various things I wasn't used to were necessary.

Mrs. Williams comes in at 8 or 8:30 a.m. to begin preparation for lunch and for the evening meal which is the big meal of the day. In between, she says there is plenty of time to prepare the breakfast and weekend menus. The breakfast, weekend and holiday menus are prepared before hand, quick frozen and stored for future use.

"There's no waste", she explained. "If I plan for 15 meals and in the meantime, three prisoners are released, I just package the meal, mark it and freeze it for future use."

Since the menus run for three weeks before repeating themselves, the meal will be utilized at some future date or, if a prisoner is brought in after a meal has been served, one of these can be pulled, heated and served in a matter of minutes.

Deputies serve the breakfast meal and all meals on weekends and holidays, all in a matter of minutes for the prepared food can be heated to the proper temperature in from 45 to 90 seconds in the micro-wave oven.

Any uncooked foods such as breads, salads and desserts are prepared and placed on the tray prior to heating the entree and side dishes. Mrs. Williams says the entire process takes less than three minutes.

Varied Menus

With such varied menus one might expect the price per meal to skyrocket. However, this is not the case.

A typical breakfast will cost from 23 to 25 cents; a lunch from 45 to 50 cents and dinner from 60 to 65 cents for the food involved in the preparation or from $1.28 to $1.40 per day. The overall cost includes the salary of the cook, the utilities and equipment.

The program was scheduled to go into affect Jan. 1. However, it was utilized almost as soon as Mrs. Williams completed her training it is so efficient.

On Wednesday, Dec. 30, meals for New Year's Day were completed and most of the food prepared for the weekend.

"That will be completed Friday in addition to preparing the meals for Friday" Mrs. Williams added.

If the Board of Commissioners, Sheriff Philo Sumner and his staff continue their enthusiasm for the new program and Mrs. Williams continues to like her job as much as she does now, than an age-old problem in small jails will have been solved.

Weyand said the State of Michigan has eight major prisons, 79 jails, 12 camps and 126 municipal lock-ups, 10 or 12 of which have facilities for preparing some meals.

Fourth In State

Charlevoix County has become the fourth in the state to adopt the food services program initiated by the Department of Corrections though several more are checking into it, Weyand said.

Many of them, however, are taking advantage of the menu plans now available through the Department of Corrections.

Incidently, menus for meals served on Year's Day included hot cereal, milk, juice, toast or sweet roll, and coffee for breakfast; Chili and crackers, yellow cake with chocolate icing and a beverage for lunch and lasagna, garlic bread, green beans, gelatin salad with vegetables, spice cake with fruit topping and a beverage for dinner.

Charlevoix Pays $2.3 Million To Support National Debt

How much do Charlevoix County residents owe as their share of the national debt? How much is it costing them in taxes each year to meet their portion of the interest charges on that debt?

According to the latest figures, about $1 out of every $10 collected locally by the Federal government goes toward paying the interest, which has reached a record of nearly $34 billion a year.

In the current fiscal year local people will be turning in, via their taxes, approximately $2,331,000 as their share of the interest costs.

That will take care only of the carrying charges. It will have no effect on the debt itself, which is now well over $500 billion.

Translating that debt into more comprehensible terms, it is of such size that it would take more than a century to wipe it out, paying it off at the rate of $5 billion a year.

If it had to be eliminated immediately, with everyone in Charlevoix County and in the rest of the country chipping in an equal share, it would require $2,358 from every man, woman and child, according to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Since there is no intention and no need to erase the debt completely, that problem doesn't arise. There is concern, however, over the growth in the debt, which necessitated Congressional action last month to raise the debt ceiling.

By virtue of that increase, it is expected that the annual interest on the debt will reach $36 billion by the middle of 1976.

Residents of Charlevoix County, in line with their normal share of the tax load, will be paying close to $410 per family toward these interest charges, it is estimated.

Since 1941, when Congress attempted for the first time to put a limit on Federal spending by placing a ceiling on the national debt, there have been many adjustments.

In the subsequent years, including its recent action, it has raised the ceiling 24 times as Federal spending continued to mount.

The interest costs have gone up proportionately. Since 1960 alone, they have climbed from $9.2 billion a year to the $36 billion fast approaching.

CETA Jobs Continue in County

A report of CETA funds allocated recently by the CETA committee in cooperation with Ms. Helen Phillips, P.P.A., Deputy Clerk, was made at the meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Commissioners held Tuesday.

Three employing agencies committed to hiring CETA Title I clients were allocated all but $1,788 of $29,400 available. The Charlevoix County Road Commission will receive $15,839.18 to fund two laborers; Charlevoix Public Schools, $5,349.14 to fund a secretary and the city of Charlevoix, $6,423.14 to fund a typist-clerk in the Police Department for a total of $27,611.32. The remaining $1,788.68 was allocated to Charlevoix township.

The unused allocation of Title I monies was deferred to one of the 10 counties in the Consortium of which Charlevoix county is a member.

Title VI monies generated by the transfer of Title VI employees into the Title I program made it possible to allocate existing funds thusly: $2,100 to Commission on Aging to extend positions through part of May and June; $2,200 to Charlevoix County Parks and Recreation to fund a position for April, May and June; $4,350, Northern Michigan Community Mental Health Services to extend two positions for three months and $4,800 to Big Brothers-Big Sisters to fund a position for six months.

County Raises Judges' Salaries

The Charlevoix Board of Commissioners, at its final meeting of 1975, amended its action of Dec. 10 to increase supplements for the Circuit Judge, Probate Judge and District Judge.

At that time, a supplement of $1,200 was approved for each by a vote of 8-6 after a proposal to supplement them by $3,000 for the Circuit Judge and $2,500 each for the others terminated in a 7-7 tie.

In Tuesday's vote, the $3,000 supplement for the Circuit Judge who serves Mackinac and Emmet counties as well as Charlevoix County and the $2,500 supplements for the Probate and District Judges who serve Emmet and Charlevoix counties were approved by a 7-6 vote with two members, Oscar Ward and Clayton Smith, absent.

Voting for the amendment were Lee Moerland, Donald Meggison, Ralph Richardson, Harry Griffin, Martin Paul, Michael Fulkerson and Ms. Thora Kotowich.

Voting nay were Barney Milstein, Rudolph Florenski, Delbert Ingalls, Clyde Cunningham, Ira L. Davis and Ralph Harmon.

Treasury Ends Up in Black

Charlevoix county ended the season in the black a report made by the Finance Committee of the Charlevoix Board of Commissioners, the County Clerk and County Treasurer reveals.

At its meeting Tuesday, there was $168,742 remaining in the general fund budget. However after year-end accounts and outstanding bills are paid, an estimated $150,000 will be transferred to the Delinquent Tax Fund. This will be done as the result of a resolution approved at the meeting to transfer all unexpended monies and unanticipated revenues to the Delinquent Tax Fund.

Delinquent Tax Funds monies are used to 'buy' unpaid taxes for payment to agencies receiving tax monies so they will be assured of the full amount of taxes by March and not have to wait for the tax monies to dribble in throughout the year.

Seventeen agencies ended the year in the red in the amount of $112,935. However, surpluses in 29 other agencies were used to underwrite the deficits.

Most of the deficits resulted from monies not yet received to underwrite CETA employees.

PCB Threatens Great Lakes

Sometimes the only way pollution can be curbed is to completely eliminate its source.

In the case of PCB (polycholrinated biphenyl) contamination, it appears we are left with no other alternative if this area plans to maintain its fresh water.

PCB, not to be confused with PBB accidently mixed in cattle feed, is a deadly substance used in the manufacturing of insulating materials.

In recent years, traces of the toxic material has been appearing in fish.

Despite extensive efforts by the Department of Natural Resources, Director Howard A. Tanner says his agency has been unsuccessful in lowering the levels of PCBs in Great Lakes fish--even after eliminating point-source discharges.

Because of this concern, the Natural Resources Commission, which sets DNR policy, recommended last June that the chemical be banned through legislative and administrative action.

Tanner says he is pleased with the proposed legislation and confident that it would provide adequate mechanisms for control and limitation of the PCB problem.

"Further, the Department is optimistic that levels of PCB contamination will decline once remaining environmental losses are eliminated," he said recently.

Tanner adds that Governor William G. Milliken's recent support of the PCB control bill (House Bill 5619) and the Governor's challenge assume the state-level leadership role in the U.S. are encouraging signs.

In a statement issued last week, Governor Milliken stated that PCB levels in many large Great Lakes fish were above the five ppm (parts per million) set by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration as acceptable for consumer foods and that PCBs have even been found "at alarming levels in Great Lakes area snowfall and rainfall."

"In the past several years, Michigan has led the nation in dealing forthrightly and effectively with pollutants that pose a serious threat to our environment–including DDT and mercury," the Governor stated.

"I believe that our state once again demonstrated its leadership by dealing with the growing PCB problem."

Tanner notes that a recent study of PCB in Lake Superior fish by Northern Michigan University researchers showing that levels of the pollutant were above the five ppm level in certain varieties of lake trout found in the off-shore areas near Isle Royale and the Caribou Islands confirmed earlier DNR studies that reached the same conclusion. However, PCB levels in the lean varieties of lake trout, ordinarily taken in the near-shore areas of Lake Superior in the sport fishery, do not exceed the minimum guidelines.

"There is nothing new or alarming about the NMU report, as PCB levels have not declined in the Great Lakes since being directed at the real problem, that PCBs are more than a contaminant in fish, that they are finding their way through a multitude of small sources into biological systems.

"Evidence indicates that PCBs may interfere with the reproduction of Great lakes fish and are responsible for reproductive failure in Michigan's fish-eating birds, including the bald eagle," the director continues.

"The concern is what effect has PCBs inflicted upon the entire cycle of life. It is a tremendous environmental problem that we must bring under control."

Michigan cannot solve the nation's PCB contamination problems alone, but the state can take the leadership role in an effort to ban sale and manufacture of the toxic insulating material.

More than most areas, the north country stands to lose or gain a lot depending upon the stand taken with PCB.

If PCB continues to pollute our water, we not only lose the world's large body of fresh water, we lose our resort-based economy that depends upon fresh water for both recreation sports and commercial fishing.

While we realize banning the sale of all toxic materials used in our life simply because it could eventually pollute or contaminate the Great Lakes would be impossible and unrealistic.

But at the same time, when a contaminate reaches the magnitude that PCBs have in our lakes, we need to consider measures as drastic as the proposed ban of PCBs.

Freedom is the Word

Editor:

Marxist Popular Movement For the Liberation of Angola, equals Heinz Kissinger.

Born in Fuerth, Germany on May 27, 1923, he came to the U.S. as a refugee in 1936. He became a naturalized citizen in 1947, worked for the Rockefeller Brothers Fund, served as research secretary of the Rockefeller controlled Council on Foreign Relations; and, ten years, was Nelson Rockefeller's Chief Foreign Policy Advisor. He is also a member of the Atlantic Union Committee and a U.S. representative at Bilderberger meetings, which is supposed to be a front for "Regional", one world government.

In Frank Capell's "Confidential Intelligence Report" dated April, 1974, he revealed that government files, from as long ago as 1961, exposed Kissinger as having been recruited by communist intelligence while a sergeant in the U.S. Army. Kissinger was known under the code name "Bor" in a Soviet Intelligence complex which operated under the code name ODRA.

The "Detroit News", contends that, "Kissinger appears to be dancing around the real issues-Soviet subversion and intervention in countries far distant from its own borders-and seems unwilling to use realistic leverage that might convince the USSR to cease and dessist from such adventures."

The "Detroit News," then asks, "Is the U.S. paying too high a price for detente?" And they answer, "Yes!" What is your answer! Mr. and Mrs. America. Is Angola an "American Affair" or is it an "African Affair." Ford said that the majority of Angolans want us there, I think the communist want us there to further drain our resources as well as to plant some young "Americans" over there.

What did Ford do when the majority were against bussing and allowed Federal courts to bypass the constitution of the U.S..Tell me America, did you have the chance to vote on this critical issue, why not, your freedom of choice is at stake here, your right to vote for or against is not considered. Will you have the chance to vote on the Angolan situation, or will you just kiss your sons goodby, without a whimper.

The sooner we get out of the U.N., the sooner we will be able to take care of our own affairs for the betterment of all Americans young and old without the government's communist leanings in thought toward its people, who are supposed to be the government. Freedom is the word.

I, being a voter, would like to say "Ford! You're out next year, 1976." Provided, we will have the right to vote.

Clockwise

by Bob Clock

Occasionally we have 80-knot winds from the west which make rowing difficult on Pine River Channel.

Every once in a while the snow is so deep we need a road map to find Bay Shore.

Tornadoes are rare visitors in the neighborhood, but they have been known to flatten barns and tip over house trailers.

And every June we can expect at least one torrential rain which will block up sewers and flood streets.

But thank goodness northern Michigan is not visited regularly by earthquakes, the most powerful-destructive force known to man and the most fearsome phenomenon on earth.

The Channel 6 report on earthquakes Sunday night was extremely interesting to residents of the middle-west where earth tremors are so rare and so mild that most of us never even feel them.

Such is not the case, of course, in San Francisco, Anchorage, Long Beach, Tokyo, Yokohama and other cities in mountainous areas around the world where earthquakes are almost a daily occurrence.

My first experience with an earthquake was at Camp Soe in downtown Yokohama where I was stationed in the early 1950's. Fourteen GI's lived in our quonset hut and I remember waking up in the middle of the night to hear our steel helmets rattling on top of our tall clothes lockers.

At first I thought the hut was shaking because a streetcar or bus had rumbled by outside the gate. But streetcars or buses don't cause quonset huts to creak and groan or helmets to rattle.

The Japanese girls I worked with in the Public Information Office were particularly fearful of earthquakes, which they called "jin-jin," if I remember correctly. They had all survived bombings by American planes during World War II, as well as earthquakes, and of the two earthquakes were dreaded the most.

Whenever the air raid siren sounded, which it did occasionally when a North Korean or Chinese aircraft strayed into Japanese territory, the girls all stood ready to crawl under their desks for protection. But when an earthquake hit, they would evacuate the building post-haste, even if it meant leaping through the windows. (Fortunately, our office was on the ground floor and they never were injured.)

The first bad earthquake I remember occurred in the spring of 1952. I looked out of the window to see trees and shrubs bobbing up and down on a sea of rolling earth. The earth beneath my feet literally roared like a dozen freight trains passing in the same tunnel.

Our Japanese employes ran to the front entrance of the Customs Building. A few spilled out into the street, but most remained just inside the door debating what to do. The Customs Building was supposed to be earthquake-proof, but when huge smoke stakes all over town are swaying 15 feet off center, it makes you wonder if any building can ever be truly earthquake proof.

Gradually the quake subsided. The roaring stopped. The ground smoothed out. The smoke stacks stood still. And we all went back to work. Later we read that a pile of lumber had toppled on a woman, killing her. She was the only fatility.

Later when I worked for Stars and Stripes in Tokyo, earthquakes were almost a daily occurrence. It seems they usually happened in the afternoon. You'd feel the tremor in your stomach first, a fleeting feeling of nausea. The quickest antidote was to look out a window to see railroad bridges, telephone poles and multi-storied buildings doing the polka together.

The thrust of Sunday night's TV special was on research currently underway in an effort to predict earthquakes. Although scientists don't like to be overly optimistic, metering devices are now installed along California's San Andreas fault which indicate when earth stresses reach the danger point.

It is too early to claim a victory over one of the oldest scourges of life on earth, but the day may come when earthquake-predicting is at least as accurate as weather-predicting.

Erma Bombeck

If there is anything I admire in this world, it's people with "style."

Like the guy I read about last week who broke out of prison, secured a horse at the gate, and galloped down the road to freedom like a country gentleman.

That's "style."

Some of us go through life with the labels hanging out of our dresses, and our stomachs rumbling like a volcano during benediction. Our fresh chickens leak through the bottom of our grocery bags. Our curlers make creases in our faces that only surgery can erase, and on the first day we wear white shoes, we get an unseasonal snowfall.

I have a friend with "style." Her name is Wheezie. Wheezie has a snout full of style and confidence. When she sees a line, she goes to the head of it. Whenever she drives to the supermarket, she aims for a space right outside the door (and gets it).

One day as I slid into the car next to Wheezie, she said, "Your belt is caught in the door and is flapping on the outside."

I opened the door and reeling it in. Suddenly I became resentful. "Wheezie, do you know what it is like to go through life with your pantyhose on backward?"

"What are you talking about?" she asked.

"I'm talking about you. You never perspire. You never bite into a ham sandwich and get a clump of fat. You always have the right change for the restroom. You never rush up to a familiar face at the airport and say, 'Hi there. Nice to see you again,' and realize it's the man who cleaned your septic tank. You always realize you have a drink in your hand before you shake hands. You always unplug your iron when you go on vacation. You remember the names and ages of your kids."

"Oh, come on . . . " she said.

"Shut up, Wheezie!" I snapped. "I've got to get this out of my system. Do you remember when we went to a luncheon and I had to introduce the speaker? I got two celery seeds stuck in my front teeth that looked like cavities."

"I suppose so," she shrugged.

"Do you know what I think? I think if you escaped from prison, you'd con someone out of a horse at the gate and ride too, instead of crawling along the ditches."

"Don't be ridiculous, darling," she laughed. "I'd call a cab."

If it Fitz

by Jim Fitzgerald

Write me a book, darling

"When are you going to write a book about how you sat behind me?" I asked my wife.

"I don't have any time for your nonsense right now," she said. She was busy writing out the dinner menu for me to take to McDonald's.

I should have married Maureen Dean.

You remember her. She always sat directly behind her husband, John Dean, when the Watergate hearings were on TV. He was the White House lawyer who admitted he was a crook and was sent to prison for practicing redundancy without a blush.

Maureen was the only hunk of cheesecake in the whole Watergate mess. John Dean received a light sentence because he squealed on President Nixon and because Maureen kept crossing her legs. Through the entire ordeal she refused to leave John's side except when wide angle lenses were used.

Despite her husband's crimes, Mrs. Dean won public favor. People like to see a wife stick by her husband through thick. (Any old wife can remain faithful through thin. It's as easy as going to but not fro).

Constant readers (Mother and Aunt Madeline) will remember that I was also summoned into court during that long year of Watergate. And I wroto a column thanking Maureen Dean for the inspiration she gave to my defense.

I was ticketed for going 50 mph in a 35 mph zone. Actually, I was the victim of a faulty speedometer but that's another story which won't be made public until my own book comes out. As you know, I hinted at CIA sabotage on my lecture tour last winter. I didn't give full details because the lecture fee was only $5,000. Just because I don't have a law degree doesn't mean I can be bought cheaply.

Anyway, I convinced my wife she had to sit behind me in traffic court. My ploy worked. The magistrate was so impressed with my wife's devotion he didn't have the heart to brand me a criminal while she watched, lips quivering. He suspended sentence with a warning: "Ploy it again, Sam," he said, "and you won't get away with it."

Now Maureen Dean has gone a step further in proving her love for John. She has written a book called "Mo." In it she explains why she sat behind John: "Whatever John had done, he was my husband, I loved him, and whatever the future had in store, it had in store for both of us."

The book costs $8.95 per copy.

So it is only natural I suggest my wife should write a book telling how and why she sat behind me. The book I am writing myself ($10.50, Simon and Schuster) will reveal how I was overawed and ultimately victimized by a power-mad car with sweat on its upper bumper. These are the hard facts. My wife's book could tell the domestic side of the scandal – how it feels to be married to a man who was steered by his car. It would also be a compelling story of a love affair and marriage which survived one of the most terrible crises in traffic-court history. A best-seller for sure.

If I can only convince her to again go fro through thick.

Meet Charlevoix

Meet George Richardson

George Richardson of the Weathervane Restaurant on the Pine River Channel discusses a new association recently formed to benefit local businesses.

The association, called the Charlevoix Association of Restaurants, is composed of some 19 local businesses who have been meeting on a somewhat regular basis.

Richardson reveals the motivation behind the organization.

COURIER: What is the purpose of the Charlevoix Association of Restaurants?

RICHARDSON: Its object is to meet on a regular basis and discuss mutual problems, as well as cooperate on a merchandising program for Charlevoix restaurants. Our intention is to make our businesses operate more efficiently. Besides benefiting ourselves, it will benefit the entire community. Since this is a resort community, we do have some unusual problems and are interested in providing good service in the off-season.

COURIER: What kind of membership does your organization have?

RICHARDSON: There are over 21 businesses where food is dispensed to the public in Charlevoix. Some 19 of these businesses have attended at least one of our meetings. There is no formal membership requirement, anyone is welcome to come to the meetings.

COURIER: Can you estimate how many jobs local restaurants provide?

RICHARDSON: On a year-round basis, we estimate restaurants provide over 350 jobs. In the summer this jumps to between 500 and 550. We feel that on the statistics available, we employ more people than anyone else in the community. And most of the people we employ are natives or local residents. Restaurants provide a broad range of jobs ranging for bartenders, students and housewives. The largest segment of those we employ are teenagers or students.

COURIER: How important do you think restaurants are to our local community?

RICHARDSON: We think the livelihood of restaurants are important to Charlevoix. On a per captia basis, we have more than other communities within a 50-miles radius.

COURIER: What are some of the things the association is concerned with?

RICHARDSON: We are interested in all things that affect our business. We are concerned about merchandising, how our businesses fit into the community and cooperative buying where buying as a group may be more profitable. So that we can keep people employed, many of the restaurants are sharing people to give them enough hours.

COURIER: Your organization recently sent a letter to the editor expressing your concern about electric rates. Could you elaborate?

RICHARDSON: All of us are large consumers of public utilities and it is certainly in the best interest to have them operate efficiently and fairly. We invited Bob Wexstaff (Charlevoix's Acting City Administrator) to answer a number of questions we feel are problems.

COURIER: Were you satisfied with his answers?

RICHARDSON: I think he left a lot of things unresolved that we are still unhappy with. Although the electrical department makes money, it makes money in spite of itself. The department has no masterplan or well organized program. Everyone in the United States is concerned about energy and energy requirements.

COURIER: What is your association proposing?

RICHARDSON: We would like to see the city government appropriate enough money to bring in an electrical expert in to analyze the city's needs and propose improvements he sees necessary. Our electrical bills are very high. The association is not saying it is being charged unfairly, but how can we conserve?

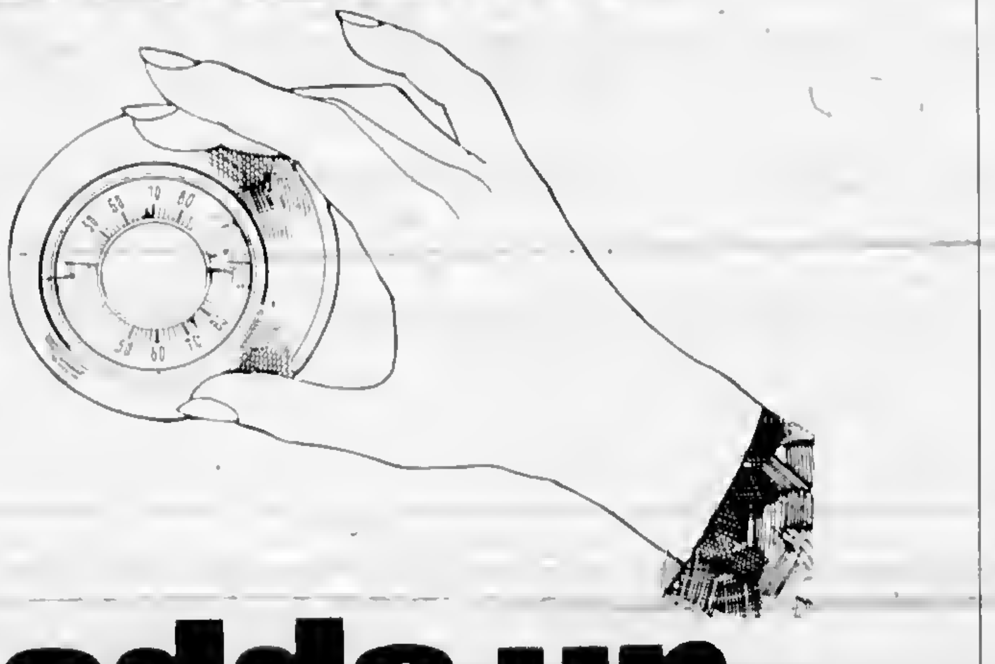
Dial down.



It adds up.

Consistently dialing down your furnace thermostat can save you money. How much can you expect to save? Let's look at a few facts.

Dial down permanently.
You'll save about 3% on your annual heating costs for every degree you permanently dial down during the heating season. For example, set your thermostat back three degrees, leave it there, and you'll save about 10%. Dial down five degrees, and you'll save 17%.

Dial down nightly.
If you regularly set your thermostat back each night, you can save more than 1% for every degree dialed down for an eight-hour period. For example, set your thermostat back seven degrees, and you'll save about 9%. Dial down 10 degrees and save about 12%. This is in addition to the savings you'll get when dialing down permanently.

Dial down when you're away.
You can save even more money and Gas by dialing down when you're away from home. Because any time you dial down for more than five hours, you save. So, dial down before you leave for work. Or, dial down to 55 degrees when you're leaving for a long weekend or going away on vacation.

Just how much you'll save depends on several factors. How many degrees you dial down. How long you maintain the lower temperature setting. And the weather. The colder the weather, the greater the savings.

Our Gas is still your lowest cost fuel. Use it efficiently and you'll save even more. So dial down. It adds up.

The Rayders scored a total of 20 buckets and connected on two of seven free throw attempts while collecting 11 personal fouls.

Petoskey, on the other hand, had 34 field goals and were successful on four of nine free throw tries. They had 13 personal fouls.

As the second half got underway, the Charlevoix five outscored their opponents 20-7 for a 44-33 advantage going into the final period. Petoskey tried for a comeback as they outscored the Rayders 15-12 but were unable to overcome the deficit.

On reading and filing the complaint of the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan praying for a judgment in favor of the State of Michigan, against each parcel of land therein described, for the amounts therein specified claimed to be due for taxes, interest and charges on each such parcel of land, and that such lands be sold for the amounts so claimed by the State of Michigan.

It is ordered that said complaint will be brought on for hearing and judgment at the February term of this Court, to be held at Charlevoix in the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, on the 2nd day of February, A.D. 1976, at the opening of the Court on that day, and that all persons interested in such lands or any part thereof, desiring to contest the lien claimed thereon by the State of Michigan, for such taxes, interest and charges, or any part thereof, shall appear in said Court, and file with the clerk thereof their objections thereto on or before the first day of the term of this Court above mentioned, and that in default thereof the same will be taken as confessed and a judgment will be taken and entered as prayed for in said complaint. And it is further ordered that in pursuance of said judgment the lands described in said complaint for which a judgment of sale shall be made, will be sold for the several taxes, interest and charges thereon as determined by such judgment, on the first Tuesday in May thereafter, beginning at 10 o'clock a.m. on said day, or on the day or days subsequent thereto as may be necessary to complete the sale of said lands and of each and every parcel thereof, at the office of the County Treasurer, or at such convenient place as shall be selected by him at the county seat of the county of Charlevoix, State of Michigan; and that the sale then and there made will be a public sale, and each parcel described in the judgment shall be separately exposed for sale for the total taxes, interest and charges, and the sale shall be made to the person paying the full amount charged against such parcel, and accepting a conveyance of the smallest undivided fee simple interest therein; or, if no person will pay the taxes and charges and take a conveyance of less than the entire thereof, then the whole parcel shall be offered and sold. STATE OF MICHIGAN
IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR THE
COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

In the Matter of the Complaint of Allison Green, State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, for and behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

To the Circuit Court for the County of CHARLEVOIX

ALLISON GREEN, State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, respectfully shows unto the Court:

1. That he is the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan and makes and files this complaint under, by virtue of and pursuant to the provisions of Act No. 206 of the Public Acts of 1392, as amended, and Act No. 380 of P.A. 1965, as amended.

2. That Schedule A annexed hereto is the tax record required by the act first above mentioned and contains the description of all lands in the aforesaid county upon which taxes, which were assessed for the years mentioned therein, have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent, the description of all lands in said county heretofore bid off in the name of the State and thus held and upon which taxes which were assessed subsequent to the tax for which such lands were sold to the State have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent.

2. That extended separately in said schedule against each description of said lands therein contained are (a) the total amount of delinquent taxes upon said description for the non payment of which the same may lawfully be sold at the next annual tax sale, (b) interest computed thereon as provided by law to the first day of May, next ensuing, (c) a collection fee of four per cent and (d) $2.00 for expenses, all in accordance with the provisions of the act first above mentioned.

4. That all of the aforesaid taxes, interest and charges are valid, delinquent and unpaid, and have remained delinquent and unpaid for sufficient time to authorize and require, as provided by the foregoing acts, the sale of the aforesaid parcels of land against which they were assessed and are extended in said schedule at the next annual tax sale for the non payment thereof, and that the said taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses so extended in said schedule against each parcel of land therein described constitute a valid lien upon each of the said several parcels of land described in said schedule as therein and against which extended in favor of the people of the State of Michigan, the payment of which lien this court may enforce as a preferred or first claim upon such lands by the sale thereof.

Wherefore your plaintiff prays:

a. That within the time provided by law this court may determine and adjudge that the aforesaid taxes, interest, collection fee and charges are valid and constitute a valid lien upon each of the said several parcels of land described in said schedule as therein extended:

b. That within the time provided by law this court make a final judgment in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of said lands for the payment of the several amounts of taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses as computed and extended in said schedule against the several parcels of land therein contained.

c. That said judgment provide that in default of the payment so ordered of the said several sums computed and extended against said lands in said schedule the said several parcels of land or such interest therein as may be necessary to satisfy the amount adjudged against the same shall severally be sold as the law provides.

d. That your plaintiff may have such other and further relief in the premises as to this court may seem just and equitable.

And your plaintiff will ever pray, etc.

Mary Ann McCann Marries L. Jay Matchett Recently

Mary Ann McCann of Jackson and L. Jay Matchett of Indianapolis, Ind., exchanged their marriage vows in a double ring ceremony solemnized at Queen's Catholic Church in Jackson on Saturday afternoon.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. John G. McCann of Jackson, former residents of St. James, Beaver Island, and Dr. and Mrs. Ronald D. Matchett of Swayzee, Ind.

The Rt. Rev. Victor P. Gallagher of Alpena, uncle of the bride, officiated at the ceremony in the presence of approximately 190 guests. Arrangements of flowers in the bicentennial theme of red, white and blue formed a setting for the service. Mr. and Mrs. Barry Pischner of Grand Rapids were the vocalists.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a gown of white peau de soie and re-embroidered Alencon lace for her wedding. Crystals and pearls scattered on the re-embroidered Alencon lace accented the gown that was fashioned with long sleeves and a chapel train.

Julie Brittain of Peru, Ind., assisted the bride as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Nancy Matchett and Sue Matchett of Swayzee, Ind., sisters of the bridegroom, Cheryl Coppens of Charlevoix, cousin of the bride, and Marian Powell of Converse, Ind.

Mac Fritz of Kokomo, Ind., served as best man. Scott Billingsley, Ed Herran and Tim Allwein, all of Indiana, and John McCann of Jackson, brother of the bride, were groomsmen. Eric Kloepfer and Melvin Matchett, cousins of the bridegroom, and Steve McCann and William McCann of Jackson, brothers of the bride, seated the guests.

A reception followed at Queen's Social Center.

The couple will live in Indianapolis, Ind., where the bridegroom is attending Indiana University Medical School. The bride is a recent graduate of Purdue University.

The bride is also the niece of Mr. and Mrs. John Coppens and Mr. and Mrs. James W. Gallagher of Charlevoix.

Security Benefits Rise

In 1976 social security beneficiaries can earn as much as $2,760 and still receive their full social security retirement or survivors benefits. This information was released today by Gordon Sattelmeier, Manager of the Petoskey social security office.

He went on to explain that the 1975 yearly limit was $2,520 and that the increase to $2,760 keeps the yearly amount in line with average wage increases in general.

Several special rules are that if a beneficiary earns over $2,760 in 1976, social security will be reduced the same as in the past by $1.00 for every $2.00 earned over the $2,760 limit. However, no matter how much beneficiaries earn in 1976 they can receive their full social security benefit for any month in which they do not earn over $230 in wages or do not render substantial service in their own business.

Sattelmeier hastened to add that different rules apply to beneficiaries who are receiving social security disability benefits. Also, people age 72 and over have no limit on their earnings so they can work and earn as much as they please with no loss of their social security checks.

One final comment for those who worked in 1975 and earned over the $2,520 limit. Their annual report needs to be filed with the Petoskey social security office between January and April 15, 1976.

Further information can be obtained by contacting the Petoskey social security office at 911 Spring Street. The phone number is 347-8727, and the hours are from 9:00 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

FAITH DEMONSTRATES THE FALLACY OF FALSE PRIDE

Pride can be a major stumbling block to the solution of many of the problems involving our fellow human beings. It is a false facade that often prevents us from seeking needed help, ending a quarrel, forgiving a minor grievance or admitting our own mistakes. Faith can demonstrate the error of this stubborn trait, by exposing pride as an enemy, totally incompatible with the love that is taught in the Bible. So go to your Church and learn how to tear down this barrier of pride that may be the only thing standing between you and happiness.

> "Pride goeth before destruction, and an haughty spirit before a fall."
> — Proverbs 16:18

Library notes

New titles for your holiday entertainment include: 'Where the Lost Aprils Are', by Elizabeth Ogilvie — a suspenseful novel in the great Ogilivie tradition. It is a modern-day tale about a successful young book editor who leaves New York to track down his mother's mysterious past. The book offers light, fast reading during the busy holidays.

'A World Full of Strangers' was written by Cynthia Freeman who tells us: "I have been writing this novel most of my life, and I have lived and loved San Francisco for as long as I can remember."

It is a novel of three generations spanning the decades just before and after World War II. It is about David Rezinetsky, who never doubted what it meant to be a Jew. It meant being poor, an outcast, deprived of the glory and promise of America. So he became David Reid who, with his wife travel from New York's Lower East Side to the golden promised land of San Francisco. He became rich and successful, bought an imposing mansion and acquired a mistress. His life held everything he could dream of except for a wife who could not forget her faith, a son with courage enough to leave behind his father's world of strangers. This is a work of scope and intensity, and it will remind many readers of "The Chosen."

Remember the famous epic novel 'The Big Sky?' It was the first of A.B. Guthrie's unique series about the American West. He has just completed the fifth book in the series. The author tells us that it may be the concluding novel. 'The Last Valley' is an account of a young man growing to maturity and a country growing older.

Gabrielle "Coco" Chanel was a force and a legend until her death, and she still is. She revolutionized the way women looked--forever. She made them throw away their corsets, bob their hair, shorten their skirts, and she brought ease to elegance. She created the woman's bathing suit, designed fake jewelry and the basic little black dress that could be copied and sold by the millions. She perfumed the world with her No. 5. Now we have a marvelous new biography about this extraordinary woman, written by Edmonde Charles-Roux. It is beautifully written and lavishly illustrated with 48 pages of photographs.

We have saved the best for the last. A new book by Chaim Potok. There is very little more that can be said about the gifted author whose first three novels carried him to enormous bestsellerdom. 'In The Beginning' is as rewarding as his last three books have been. We enter the life of David Lurie when he is four years old--a gentle, frail, sickly child. He grows up to experience the same anguish as the hero Asher Lev did in a previous Potok novel, torn between risking all that was dear to him: family love, friendship and his passionate identity with the centuries of Jewish tradition. This is certain to be one of the outstanding novels of the decade.

Ward Questions Salary Vote

County Commissioner Oscar Ward questioned Friday the action taken Dec. 30 to increase the supplement to judges salaries.

According to Ward, the statute, a majority vote of the elected personnel is necessary and this was approved by a 7-6 vote. "I don't think this motion will stand the test," he said.

Thus, the action taken at Tuesday's meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Commissioners was questioned and, after a lengthy discussion, was turned over to Charlevoix County's new prosecutor, J. Roy Hays, for an opinion.

That statute to which Ward in his statement, referred states that a majority vote is necessary for a final action on an issue. In this instance, eight of the 15 members of the board must approve an issue if it is to be a final action.

In a preliminary ruling after a brief research on the issue, Hays said that there must be a majority vote for a final action to be taken. He told the board that he would advise them in a letter by late this week of his opinion after researching the issue further. The question is now "What constitutes a final action?"

The supplements to the judges salaries which is the issue in question goes back to the Dec. 10 meeting of the Board of Commissioners when the board, by an 8-6 vote, approved a supplement of $1,2000 for the Circuit Judge, Probate and District Judges after turning down a proposed increases of $3,000 for the Circuit Judge and $2,500 for the Probate and District Judges by a tie vote of 7-7 with one member absent.

At the Dec. 30 meeting, the same proposal, $3,000 for the Circuit Judge and $2,500 for the Probate and District Judges was approved by a 7-6 vote with two members absent.

It is this vote, which is not a majority vote, that is being questioned.

Folks Flee North to Escape Stress of City Life

County Population Up 2,209 Since Census

By KEN WINTER

People are still moving North to escape city-life despite uncertain economic times.

Although there is no official barometer to measure migration, all unofficial indicators show people are still streaming here to live year 'round.

Charlevoix County Planner William Mercer, one of the north's unofficial people counters, says the trend will probably continue for some time.

"My gut reaction is that while we have slowed down in terms of growth rates of the late sixties and earlier seventies, people are still moving north," he says.

He estimates Charlevoix County's population has already jumped some 2,209 from official 1970 census figures of 16,541 and will continue to 21,360 by 1980.

Growth Rate

While the county's growth rate is beginning to slack off, Mercer says the numbers of people moving into the area is still the same.

In addition to the year 'round population, a recently completed Charlevoix County Planning Commission study indicates the population increases another 8,000 in the summertime.

Mercer says there are basically three types of people migrating north—welfare recipients, retirees and job seekers.

Both the county planner and Charlevoix County Social Services Director agree that welfare recipients, particularly ADC mothers, are migrating north.

Tillen says his department's caseload has increased particularly because of transfers coming in from parts of the state.

"Since the public assistance benefits are the same, many probably think it is better to live up here than in the city," Tillen said.

Many of those who built summer homes here 15 years ago are moving up here to retire in them, Mercer says about another large group of people that have migrated north.

According to the official figures covering the past year, retirement and disability payments are now going to 3,350 persons in the area, as compared with 2,983 three years ago. The majority of them are retired workers.

The Social Security Administration's annual report shows 1974 payments increasing nearly 81 percent over three years ago. The rise tops the East North Central States rise of 59 percent and the 60 percent in the State of Michigan.

Job Search

While both welfare recipients and retirees continue to journey, job seekers are finding it hard to buck the area's 12 to 15 percent unemployment and are beginning to slack off.

There aren't that many jobs up here for people to get," Mercer says about employment conditions.

"Most of those coming up are filling seasonal slots."

Despite the lack of jobs, Northern Michigan real estate firms surveyed indicated that permanent homes are doing better than resort home sales.

"While there had been a slight decrease since late 1973, there has been a good influx of people into area since early in 1975," says Jim Thomas of Thomas Real Estate, who covers both Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

"The resort business as we used to know it is down."

But even then, the area has experienced some unusual sales. The Landings, a 56-unit condominium in Boyne City, completely sold out after having half of them available at the beginning of the summer.

Thomas and other real estate brokers indicate both in-town dwellings and small businesses have been selling the best.

Gerald Chase, administrator for District 3 Health Department which serves Charlevoix, Emmet, Antrim and Otsego Counties, says building permits are still going out in large numbers.

While permits are down from three years ago, Chase says nearly 300 were issued in Charlevoix County alone in 1975.

School enrollments throughout the North have also been showing a steady increase since 1968.

Resort communities like Petoskey, Harbor Springs, Charlevoix and Boyne City have seen a minimum of 26 percent increase school populations since 1966, according to Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District figures.

"It seems we have had a steady increase, but nothing dramatic in one particular year," says one school official.

"Some place have gone up and some haven't."

Charlevoix School Superintendent James McKimmy, whose school district has seen a 32 percent increase, says many middle-aged people from Birmingham and Farmington have relocated in his district bringing along middle and high school-aged youngsters.

Still Growing

While other vital statistic figures fluctuate through the years, divorces in Charlevoix county have risen steadily, according to County Clerk Clarence Rabach.

In fact, the rate has more than tripled in this decade. In 1970 a total of 33 were granted; by the end of 1975 the number had grown to 103 for the year.

The birth rate which was at 131 in 1970 showed a decrease every year to 72 in 1974 following the introduction of the pill. In 1975, however, the rate showed an upward trend and by the end of the year had reached the 110 point.

Figures for the past six years reveal the fluctuation in this decade:

Births	110	72	84	99	114	131
Deaths	124	87	137	134	135	126
Marriages	181	168	196	186	159	168
Divorces	103	88	73	67	46	33

Cancer-Related Deaths Jump 5.2% in Charlevoix

The dramatic increase in cancer deaths in the United States in the past year, recently disclosed by health officials, draws attention to the situation in Charlevoix County.

What do the latest figures show for the local area? How does its mortality rate compare with that in other communities?

Figures released by the National Cancer for Health Statistics show that the increase in the cancer rate throughout the country as a whole was more than five times greater than had been expected.

Instead of a rise of about one percent, which had been the norm for many years, there was a sudden jump of 5.2 percent. It was the biggest one-year increase ever recorded.

Thus far the experts are baffled as to the cause. Some of them suspect that the surge may be due to a big rise in lung cancer among women, who are smoking more than they ever did.

In Charlevoix County, the figures show, cancer continues to be second only to heart disease among the major causes of death.

On the basis of the U.S. Public Health Service's last three annual reports, the number of deaths in the local area attributed to cancer in one or more of its various forms has averaged 34 per year. Lung cancer was blamed for 7 of them.

The figures refer to the resident population only. Deaths of non-residents are not included.

In terms of population, the local mortality from the disease was equivalent to a rate of 211 deaths per 100,000 people.

The average rate nationally, by way of comparison, was 163

School Board Attempts Another Building Proposal

By FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Board of Education, adopted a resolution Monday to apply for preliminary qualifications of bonds for the purpose of financing school construction.

In the case of the Charlevoix schools, it will be to bond for an estimated $2.8 million for the remodeling if and some additions to the Charlevoix Middle School that would give it another 20 years service and remodeling of and additions to the high school to allow for the growth of the school.

As the result of Monday's resolution, the school district will apply to the Department of Public Instruction to hold an election at which the voters will voice their response to the issues. The proposed election is scheduled for March 22, 1976.

At the present time, the final costs of the proposed remodeling and construction program have not been finalized. However, the program at the Middle School which was constructed in 1927 and to which additions were made in 1952 and again in 1956 would include renovation of the building that would cost an estimated $386,000 and new building that would cost an estimated $854,000. Fees equipment and interest would bring the total to $1.3 million.

The renovation would include replacement of heating and ventilation at a cost of $100,000 and the electrical system at a cost of $80,000; conversion of two science and shop rooms to shop and music rooms, $22,000 plus renovation of both the exterior as well as the interior of the building.

New construction would be the building of a new gymnasium at an estimated costs of $192,000; remodeling of the existing gymnasium to two science areas, two classrooms, administrative offices, and instructional media Center; new kitchen addition, , elevator and basement elevator passage and related construction.

High school additions and remodeling will include the connecting of buildings A and B and utilizing the area for four classrooms, science, vocal and speech departments; construction of a new metals shop and of a multi-purpose and locker room area.

The remodeling program would include the Home Economics, Special Education Departments and the General Education area in Business and Arts and Crafts, expansion of the Counselor area plus carpeting in the classrooms and corridors, replacement of ceiling corridors, roof replacement, window covering in all areas and related projects. This proposed program would cost an estimated $1.5 million.

Further actions on the proposed issue will be discussed at the Jan. 26 and Feb. 9 meetings of the board.

Yellow Lights

It's bad enough that we have to have those yellow lights downtown, are we going to have to put up with them all over the city? I noticed that Meech Street is starting to have them now. Charlevoix is a beautiful little community and I don't want it to look like downtown Chicago. Even if we save a little money and energy with the yellow lights, I would rather have the white ones. Let's keep Charlevoix–Charlevoix the Beautiful.

Street Cleaning

Is Charlevoix County's Road Commission on strike? I have to drive to Petoskey every day to go to work and I can't believe our county roads. It looks like a truck has never been through to clean the roads. I'm worried that someday, someone won't be able to stop when a school bus stops. Emmet County roads don't look half as bad. Their roads are always sanded down. I wish someone could do something.

No Salt

I've noticed that Charlevoix streets aren't being salted this year. Is this something new? If the city has decided to quit salting the roads, I think they should re-think their position. It's hard enough to get around in the winter as it is now. We need the roads salted.

City Charter

I can hardly wait for our new city charter. Maybe then we will have a little more say about how our city runs. I'm not even sure if I want to vote in this next election. There aren't any choices.

McRae Questions Bills Owed By Several Condominiums

Councilman Ralph McRae urged Charlevoix City fathers Monday to take a closer look at outstanding utility bills owed the city by local condominiums.

Last spring, McRae said local condominiums had $106,000 in outstanding bills and at last check there was still at least $29,000 past due.

"I would like the council to be given a list of those who still owe for sewer taps, water taps, lift stations, generators, past due utilities and unpaid taxes," McRae continued.

The city councilman would not elaborate on which condominiums were past due.

Mayor Ed Hansen said the new city auditors would present council with an account receivable ledger shortly.

In other major business, city council agreed to let the Michigan Aeronautics Commission install VOR (VHF Omni Range) instrumentation at the city airport.

The city would only be financially responsible for providing electricity and any necessary ground preparation, while VOR would be paid for by state and federal funds.

Councilman Ray Wood, a commercially-licensed pilot, said the new system would make the airport safer, as well as induce more airport traffic.

In other business, the council:

--Approved a taxi license renewal for the Arcade Cab Service owned by Oscar Ward of Charlevoix.

--Indicated it would not support continued collection of school taxes in the summer to the local school district unless other local units made a similar move. School taxes

School Meeting

Parents of elementary school children having questions about the Charlevoix's new teaching programs and philosophy of individualized education should attend a meeting on Tuesday, Jan. 20, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the elementary school.

If parents have questions or need information beyond that which was recently sent home, they are urged to attend this meeting.

Ralph Raymer, principal of the school, added that the regular parent-teacher conferences are scheduled March 3 and 4.

Need Your Help

Five Charlevoix County residents desperately need the use of someone else's eyes.

The blind residents are apart of the Visually Impaired Program that takes place in the Congregational Church in Charlevoix, every other Monday.

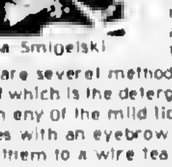
But, the only way they can attend the program is if someone is willing to volunteer their time to transport them from either Boyne City or East Jordan to Charlevoix every other Monday, from 1 to 4 p.m.

The program services county residents who are certified as being "visually impaired," by providing them with supplies and guidance to make a variety of handicraft items, ranging from plastic flowers and Indian necklaces to toy poodles and macrame.

The program hopes to expand its services to other people in the county, but it needs volunteers, according to Suzanne Wickert, special services coordinator for the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services.

Those who wish to volunteer may contact Ms. Wickert at 547-4471.

HOW TO CARE FOR YOUR DIAMOND



Glenda Smigelski

Diamonds get smudged and soiled and dusty. Lotions, powders, soaps, even the natural skin oils put a film on diamonds and cut down their brilliance. Chemicals in the air can discolor the mountings of precious jewelry.

Clean diamonds "glow" because the maximum amount of light can then enter and return in a fiery brilliance. It just takes a little care to keep them that way.

There are several methods to clean diamonds at home, the most simple of which is the detergent bath: Prepare a small bowl of warm suds with any of the mild liquid detergents used in the home. Brush the pieces with an eyebrow brush while they are in the suds. Then transfer them to a wire tea strainer and rinse under warm running water. Pat dry with a soft linless cloth.

Bring your diamonds to Reusch Jewelry regularly for professional cleaning and inspection of the mounting.

Horton Bay General Store Brings Back Old Memories

By KEN WINTER

HORTON BAY–News still travels around this sleepy Northern Michigan burg as it did nearly 100 years ago and it doesn't look as though the residents of Horton Bay want it changed.

Townsfolk still amble up the creaky wooden steps of the Horton Bay General Store that stands prominently in this one-time lumbering town to get the local news.

Like many small towns, Horton Bay has never been large enough to support a local newspaper, so this tiny community of 100 has always flocked to the old white wooden two-story store, for news as well as groceries.

Ernest Hemingway described Horton Bay as the town with only five houses in the main road between Boyne City and Charlevoix.

"There was the general store and post office with a high false front and maybe a wagon hitched out in front, Smith's house, Stroud's house, Dilworth's house, Horton's house and Van Hoosen's house," the Pulitzer novelist wrote in "Up in Michigan."

"The houses were in a big grove of elm trees and the road was very sandy. There was farming country and timber each way up the road. Up the road a ways was the Methodist church and down the other direction was the township school. The blacksmith shop was painted red and faced the school."

Hemingway's Horton Bay has changed but slightly in recent years. The General Store is one of the remaining vestages of the old lumber mill town. The store had originally been built as a "company store" to supply the boom.

Harriet Housel, along with her parents George and Betty, are the last of a long list of store proprietors who have greeted travelers with a cup of hot, steaming java.

Coffee Counter

Miss Housel thinks of her old country store coffee counter as a modern-day rendition of the iron stove that used to sit near where the counter now rests at the back of the store.

"To me it serves as the old pot-bellied stove, where people can come and meet friends," the store owner said while standing behind her six-stool counter.

Miss Housel

Although the store has been written up many times in newspapers and magazines in connection with Hemingway's occasional visit, Miss Housel says she really isn't interested in it being known for those visits.

She would rather have it remembered as part of the old Horton Bay community that is still preserved in many of the buildings dotting the sleepy highway running in front of her store.

"People like to come because it's old and has history," she says about the outside visits she gets from tourists.

"People ask me about Hemingway and I tell them what people have told me."

Miss Housel says whatever she has learned about Hemingway has come from her customers, often of whom witnessed the wedding of the one-time newspaper reporter to Hadley Richardson of St. Louis in September of 1921 at the next door Methodist Church.

In Hemingway's earlier years, Miss Housel says, the writer used to fish in Horton Creek which meanders through the town.

Hemingway's Connection

Local folks pay little attention to Hemingway's connection as they flock to the store for a cup of coffee and the latest tid-bit of gossip.

"It's been one of my dreams to serve coffee," says Miss Housel. "So if we didn't even have a counter, we'd still serve coffee."

The storeowner's biggest dream was becoming the owner of a small grocery like the Horton Bay General Store.

When she and her parents lived behind the Bay View Market in Petoskey as a child, it had been her dream to eventually run her own store.

Her father had been a toolmaker in California, where she had worked with him as a spot welder for an aerospace company during World War II and after.

Weary of the big city and concerned about her aging parents, she returned to Horton Bay after hearing the store was for sale.

For Miss Housel, the store customers are part of her family after running it for seven years.

"As far as feeling I'm tied down, I never feel that way," she continued.

"I don't mind it at all, it's like having a home in your store. "I'd be lost without it."

She says one gets attached to the customers after a while and she looks forward to summer people returning every year.

"People like the personal touch when they come into the store," she continued.

"I think people in the city get tired of the 'yes mams and no mams'."

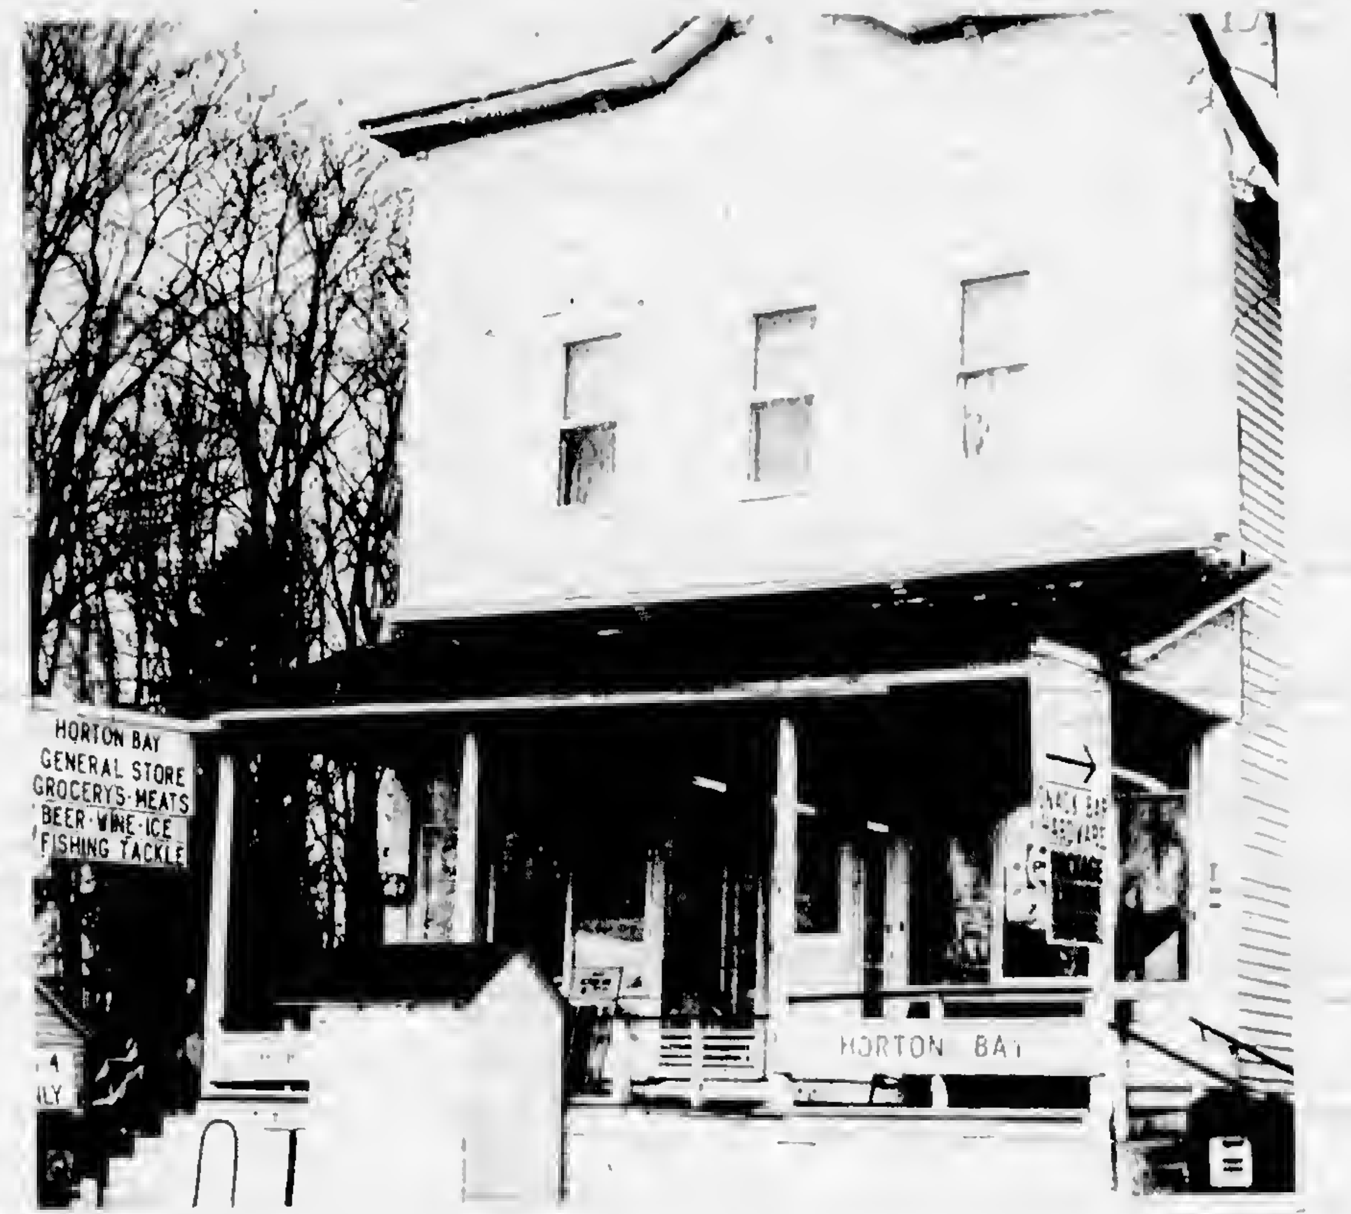
Grand Rapids summer residents who wander into the store range from banker Ed Barnes to contractor R.D. Brooks. Florist Tom Molesta and attorney Walter Russell are others often seen at the store. Dr. James Gunn and Rufus Teesdale, formerly from Grand Rapids, also make summer visits.

Ohle Recalls

Retired Chicago advertising executive William H. Ohle has made Horton Bay his permanent residence after summering here for 65 years. His grandfather was an original settler in the community.

Now a trustee of the Historical Society of Michigan, Ohle recently completed a book relating his family's connection with the town and the store.

As a child, Ohle writes that he can remember the display cases filled with licorice twists, jawbreakers, gum and other candy as well as cigars, corncob pipes, big twists of chewing tobacco ("Climax, The Grand Old Chew"), and a special cutter handy to whack off pieces of it.



He said the candy display cases were at the left of the store just before the shelves of groceries. Dry Goods were on the right side, featuring overalls, thread, bandana handkerchiefs, work socks and shoes.

Ohle recalls a variety of items generally associated with stores of an early era-a coffee-grinder, because vacuum-packed coffee had not been invented; butcher-wrap and a big spool of string dangling from the ceiling; and a glass cover on the store counter with cheese under it.

The Horton Bay writer also remembers an old Babcock butterfat tester, used as a basis for paying farmers for cream, since the store acted as a collection station for a local dairy. He said kids liked to wind up the tester to high speed, which was tolerated but not liked by the storekeeper.

Social Center

As it is today, Ohle says the store was a social center when travel was difficult. He said men used to gather around the old pot-bellied stove, and sit on captains' chairs especially on Saturday nights, to talk over events of national and local interest.

"If there was an overflow crowd which occurred when anything important was going on, like the First World War, or a hot election, late comers perched on the counter, swinging their feet and chiming in when so inclined," he recalls.

Harold "Bucky" Harris, now retired and a nephew of one of the past store owners, remembers the old yeast boxes filled with wood shavings that used to be strewn around the old stove.

He said the kids used to see if they could spit in them like their fathers did when they were up telling yarns at the store.

Although cars in recent years have diverted people to neighboring Boyne City for many of their purchases and social activities, the Horton Bay General Store remains the news center for the community.

Store Keepers Are Counting Loud

By PEG OHLE

If you see lights in local places of business during evening hours and weekends, don't assume a search is on for prowlers.

If you walk into a seemingly deserted store during the day and have to call before the proprietor emerges from a dark corner, don't be concerned.

It's inventory-taking time!

Throughout the area, business people are counting their stock items preparatory to filing their personal property tax forms.

That is one big reason for "Inventory sales." Every piece of merchandise that can be sold before inventory is taken makes the job easier.

Some businesses are naturally easier to inventory than others. Those with small one-of-a-kind items take longer than those with multiple numbers of large items.

We had an opportunity last week to help inventory a small grocery store, and after that experience we'd hate to face the job of counting items on the shelves of a supermarket!

We never knew there were so many brands and kinds of cookies, jellies, cake mixes, soap, cereals, or dog food. And most of them come in different size packages or cans.

Quantity

The quantity of each brand, kind and size must be carefully noted on the inventory pad, along with the retail price. It was the "two-fors" that got us–those items that are sold two for 35 cents, or 75 cents or 97 cents. It took some mental arithmetic to determine the inventory value of those items!

Grocery stores are difficult to inventory, but so must be variety stores and hardware stores. The very thought of all those under-one-dollar items in a variety store give us the shivers, and so do all those plastic bags containing screws and nuts and bolts in a hardware store.

As one old-timer points out, however, in the old days those screws and nuts and bolts and were not pre-packaged and had to be counted individually. Heaven forbid!

Nails, on the other hand, have always been a different matter. They're sold by the pound and inventoried that way. That makes sense.

Charlevoix's Shop of the Gulls is a shop with many one-of-a-kind items. Owner Jeanine Wallace says she takes her inventory during business hours, between customers, and that the whole procedure takes about a week.

Inventory Important

Inventory is important to her not only for tax purposes, but for buying purposes. She starts buying for the coming year at the end of January and her inventory discloses what items she is low on and what items have not been good sellers.

Bertha Sternaman of Oleson Variety Store says they start taking inventory the day after Christmas and finish it before the first of January, with six employees working at the job during business hours.

"We fill about six stenographer's notebooks with our stock inventory," Mrs. Sternaman said.

Edwards IGA Grocery has inventory-taking down to a science. They hire a crew of four or five persons who call off the items into tape recorders as they walk up and down the aisles. It takes them four or five hours to inventory the whole store. Of course, this information later has to be transcribed on paper.

Bill Kenifeck of Staley Hardware and Mrs. Kenifeck inventory their store in two days, on a Sunday and Monday. Kenifeck says he is interested only in the total retail value of his stock since he reorders merchandise on a running basis. They use an adding machine and calculator to count and determine the value of each type of item.

Happy inventorying everybody–and, customers, be patient.

SOS--Community Chest

The Charlevoix Community Chest has issued an SOS in order that it might meet its quota and honor its committments to the 12 agencies it supports.

Mrs. LoAnne Brown, president of the organization, said that the last direct mail letters would go in the mail this week in an effort to bring in the funds necessary to fulfill committments to its agencies.

Harold Bliss, Community Chest treasurer, said that $10,741.99 has been contributed to date. However, funds on hand bring the total to $11,260.14 toward the 1975 goal of $18,000.

Contributions to date have come from the following sources: summer solicitations, $4,337; commercial, $1,300; industry, $2,760.54; professional, $388 and residential, $1,822. Interest on the Community Chest funds total $134.45.

All agencies will receive 50 percent of their allotted funds on Feb. 1. If the quota is not met, the remainder will be pro-rated. Standing to lose a percentage of their funds which were drastically cut by the Community Chest Board prior to the drive are: United Fund which represents more than 35 agencies, Mt. McSauba Recreation, Charlevoix City Recreation, Charlevoix Area Hospital, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Salvation Army, Char-Em Association for Retarded Children, Red Cross, Big-Brothers-Big Sisters, Inc., Camp Daggett and the Charlevoix Community Nurses Fund administered by Mrs. Jeanne Miles.

Area residents who have not contributed to the 1975 Community Chest Fund are asked to do so at this time.

Economy or Environment

Northern Michigan residents will have to face a question that is confronting many people across the United States.

What is more important--our economy or the environment?

On the surface, it would seem that the only logical argument would be to save our environment--especially in Northern Michigan.

You might ask yourself who in their right mind would want to destroy the fresh water, acres of Northern Michigan pines and all the other natural elements that draw people from across the nation up here for a visit.

The quiet, the solitude, the peace--who would want to destroy the basic qualities that cannot be obtained in a large urban setting?

But then you begin to look around and see what is taking place.

Most recently, you read about the Michigan Department of Highways and Transportation wanting to improve U.S. 31 and 131 through Northwest Michigan for easier flow of traffic.

For three years, the state agency has been attempting to gather input from local residents about road conditions in the 10-county region.

If they listen to the Emmet County Planning Commission recommendations, there would be no super highway corridor off on I-75 swinging through their county.

They say the state should only be concerned with existing highways and improving the bottlenecks that exist in certain portions of the county, such as through the Bay View Association.

But then they listen to the Bay View Association, who says no way do they want a improved road going through their peaceful summer community full of cottages owned by people trying to escape the perils of the city.

And while official bodies like the Emmet County Planning Commission and Bay View Association articulate no major road improvements, the Charlevoix County Planning Commission looks at it a different way.

In a resolution adopted over a year ago, the Commission said it would support any improvement that includes the construction of a limited access highway from south to north through the county to connect eventually with I-75 at the Mackinac Bridge.

The commission also stipulates that it wants a route that would do the least amount of environmental damage to the county.

The commission is joined by local farmers who are also concerned about the development of a better transportation route.

Farmers contend that they are forced to pay more for fertilizer and other supplies because truckers are forced to travel over poor roads from Gaylord.

Dairymen, in particular, are quick to point out that nearly 95 percent of the milk produced in this area is bottled in Southern Michigan.

Therefore, they conclude, better roads are needed to transport their milk and at the same time be competitive with Southern Michigan producers.

Then there's another group, that doesn't necessarily have any particular organization behind it, but would be opposed to it on environmental grounds.

They contend that no matter what is done it will damage the area. They also argue that the highway department has a poor track record with road construction and environmental damage.

What then could possibly be the solution to the Northwest Michigan transportation problem?

We agree with those who argue against the development of a limited access highway that could possibly swing through the county.

But at the same, we do think this county is in desperate need of improved roads.

The question is to what extent?

We feel that this area is unique in many ways and one of the only ways the environmental uniqueness can be maintained is through the absence of large cement limited access four-lane highways.

However, it is our feeling that good road transportation routes are needed to support a vitally important and growing year 'round economy.

This could be achieved through improving existing highway networks in our area, instead of developing new super highways.

A state highway expert extimated that one mile of new four-lane expressway costs about $1.5 million a mile to construct.

We question whether that kind of money is worth the benefit it might bring to Northwest Michigan.

Bicentennial Salute

Charlevoix Courier Corp.
Charlevoix, Mich.

Editor:

For the betterment of America, as we enter into the 200th Year of our independence. We must look at and into the articles of our Constitution, and ponder upon the ignorances of our leaders toward it and its true definition according to writ.

Preamble

"We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect "Union," establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this "Constitution of the United States of America." Article II, Section 1, states; "The Executive power shall be vested in a President of the United States of America. He shall hold his office during the term of four years, and together with the Vice-President, chosen for the same terms, be elected. Number 8 of section 1, Article II, states: "Before he enter on the execution of his office, he shall take the following oath or affirmation:"

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of the President of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect, "AND DEFEND THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES".

Article II, section 2, states; "The President shall be Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States, and of the Malitia of the several states when called into actual service of the United States: He may require the opinion, in writing, of the principal officer in each of the executive departments upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices, and he shall have "POWER" to grant reprieves and pardons for offenses against the United States, "EXCEPT" in cases of "IMPEACHMENT".

Ford has not abided by the United States Constitution, nor have our leaders, who have let it pass without due process of law.

Now, we the people are paying to maintain the nixonites. Through tax monies earned by law abiding citizens and the right to have those criminals put in jail.

If we are to have different laws for the people of this country, then the time has come to re-write the Constitution in three parts, one for the upper class, one for the middle class, and one for the lower class.

We the people of America have been cheated, and if we the people put our lives as well as the lives of our families into the hands of the governing bodies, we will have to have our heads examined.

I would not put my trust, in them, anymore than a communist. Speaking of re-wording the constitution, Mr. and Mrs. America you had better make sure that you have a say in it because your body may have plans to include a one world government and if that happens without you knowing it, which court will you be tried in a Russian, Communist of China, or America. I doubt if it really mattered, because if it happens, who would care. What has come to be has passed, and who is to know who will suffer for it.

Yours truly,
Albert Legato

'Rahm. Rahm. Rham.' Sis Boom Bah-Humbug

For several years now I have had more than a passing interest in that art of total relaxation known as transcendental meditation, or TM for short.

In fact there was a time when TM lecturers hawked their wares at public meetings in Charlevoix and a good number of townspeople did take up TM. Some of them are still numbered among America's growing body of meditators, although there hasn't been a TM lecture hereabouts for quite some time.

One TM advocate in Charlevoix told me not long ago that he would have trouble getting through the day without transcendental meditation.

"I come home from work and I'm ready to drop. But then I spend 20 minutes at TM and I'm a new man. I've got all the vitality I need for whatever is on the evening's agenda."

At least that's the way he tells it, and I have no reason to doubt him.

Now although I have gone to the initial TM lectures, I have never been able to come up with the $125 which lets you in on all of the TM secrets and provides you with your own personalized "mantra" to carry you over into the never-never land of meditation. Mantras are simply words or sounds, usually of one syllable, which the practitioner repeats over and over to himself as he slips into meditation. You are never supposed to tell anyone your mantra, for some mystical, oriental reason.

All of which is preface to the fact that while the Clocks were tooling through Olesons' with their grocery cart Saturday, Judy noticed a pocketbook in the rack entitled: "Everything You Want to Know About TM – Including How to Do It." The book cost $1.95, a savings of $123.05 when you consider the cost of the TM lecture package, and I am never one to pass up a bargain. The book on TM went home with us.

As soon as the groceries were unpacked I sent the girls outside to slide on Bridge's hill and Judy disappeared somewhere in the vicinity of the sewing room. Danny went upstairs to play and I could hear the springs on his rocking horse squeaking in the distance. I was safe.

I took my book on TM into the living room and raced through the first few chapters about how Maharishi Mahesh Yogi inaugurated the Transcendental Meditation Movement in India 17 years ago and how it has grown to include believers and practitioners the world over. Finally I came to Chapter 5 – "How to Do TM." I could hardly wait.

I read how you shouldn't meditate shortly after eating, because you'll only fall asleep. You're supposed to find a comfortable chair – or sit on the floor – and remove any constrictive clothing that makes you uncomfortable. Then you close your eyes and give yourself a full minute of peace and quiet to prepare for meditation. At the end of 16 breaths, you begin saying your mantra over and over to yourself, under your breath of course. Fortunately, the book suggests a universal mantra, "Ram," pronounced "Rahm." You repeat your mantra over and over until the worries of the workaday world drop away and your mind becomes a virtual blank. "Rahm." "Rahm." "Rahm."

Suddenly there was a small voice in my left ear, coming from the vicinity of the french doors.

"Psst! Daddy!"

I opened one meditating eyelid a crack to see Danny peering at me through the glass.

"Rahm." "Rahm." "Rahm."

"Psst! Daddy. The dog is eating garbage."

"Rahm." "Rahm." "Rahm." I could feel my fingers and feet begin to tingle as great waves of total relaxation rolled over me. "Rahm." "Rahm." "Rahm."

"Psst! Daddy!"

I opened the other meditating eyelid.

"The dog just threw up in the dining room."

"Rahm." "Rahm." "WHAT?"

"The dog just threw up in the dining room."

I intend to take up TM again as soon as all the children are in college.

If President Ford and Henry Kissinger really want to know how they're doing on the road to detente, they should check out what fashions are influencing American women.

At one time, people really trusted the government. When the United States embraced a nation in friendship, that was it! We all rushed out and bought clothes that reflected their culture. That was before we got stuck with a closet full of Nehru jackets, a style that flourished for about six days.

The other day as Maxine and I were picking our way through the racks in the sportswear department, I held up a red satin oriental jacket with black braided loops and a mandarin collar and asked, "Whatya think?"

"How much is it?"

"Twenty-six dollars."

"How old is Mao Tse-tung?"

"Eighty-one."

"You want an honest answer?"

"Of course."

"I wouldn't pay $26 for it if Barbara Walters wore it with a China Doll wig."

"Why are you so cynical?"

"Not cynical . . . just cautious. I was going to buy an angora sweater the other day, but I'm going to wait and see what direction we're moving."

"That's ANGOLA!" I said. "And besides, you're being too hard on this country. After all, our African bush jackets are still in and so are our Russian boots and big fur hats."

"In until when?" snapped Maxine bitterly. "I have a $34 pair of knee-length boots hanging in the balance over the disarmament talks. One disagreement and they're out!"

"Maybe," I suggested, "by that time the White House will have established detente with New York City and we can palm them off as an American style."

"It's a possibility," she said. "But you know what I really dread? Those sheets that you wear draped over your head and secured with a black ring and those long black robes that are impossible to drive in."

"I know," I sighed. "It's a big price to pay for a couple gallons of gasoline and a quart of oil." (Copyright 1976 Field Enterprises, Inc.)

Was Nixon Breathless Enough?

Isn't it marvelous that the big politicians are catching up with the little children? As you must have guessed, I am referring to the use of suicide as a political tool.

Remember when you were a young brat and your mother said no? You would make all sorts of drastic threats in an attempt to get your way. The ultimate threat was you would kill yourself.

The usual method of self-destruction was by holding your breath.

This is not an easy way to commit suicide, especially when your big sister (Terrible Jean) is watching and betting a zillion dollars you don't die. I tried it many times and never once succeeded. I simply couldn't keep my mouth shut long enough, even then.

Even more depressing than not dying was the fact my suicide attempts had no effect upon my mother. My eyes would water and my checks would bulge and Terrible Jean would herald my approaching demise with great whoops of sorrow. But Mother remained totally unimpressed, just as though she buried a son every day.

My problem was probably Terrible Jean. She had never been able to hold her breath long enough to kill herself and she didn't want me to show her up. So she did not adequately communicate the seriousness of my breathless situation to Mother.

I needed a General Haig to deliver my suicide messages. Or Leonard Garment. They are reportedly the aides who convinced President Ford that Richard Nixon would kill himself if Ford didn't pardon him of all past, present and future crimes, including reincarnations.

Ford was obviously convinced Nixon could hold his breath unto rigor mortis. So the King of Watergate never had to prove he isn't a crook.

Now Nixon has recovered his breath sufficiently to pose happily on golf courses and arrange TV appearances. And President Ford is forced to ask himself the question my mother never had to face: "If I hadn't given in, would that little punk really have held his breath long enough?"

The FBI has developed another political use of suicide. This also reminds me of my childhood and Terrible Jean.

She used to egg me into doing awful things – such as swiping candy from a blind neighbor – and then she would threaten to tell Dad I did it unless I promised to do dishes for her for life. Ultimately her blackmail mounted to such proportions that life hardly seemed worthwhile. My father's wrath was no worse a threat than a lifetime as Terrible Jean's slave. She would agree and suggest that the only sensible solution was an honorable suicide. She would help me hold my breath long enough by sitting on my face. She would lose a slave but she would gain a bedroom of her own.

This is the same method used by the FBI on Martin Luther King. Their snoops uncovered evidence indicating King might be human. They threatened to tell his wife while suggesting his wisest move might be suicide.

King refused to hold his breath but didn't live long anyway. Now we're all afraid to listen to the 11 o'clock news for fear we'll learn the FBI sat on his face.

Maybe it's too bad kids can't hold their breath long enough. It's not much fun being grown-up in a world where suicide is used as a political tool.

Melvin Pearl

Melvin W. Pearl is Alcoholism Counselor for the Tri-County Substance Abuse Center which has recently moved to 205-07 Bridge Street. Here he tells the Courier about some of the activities of the Center. Louise Kane Director of Counseling for the Center is pictured with him.

COURIER: How old is your program?

PEARL: We started a little over a year ago.

COURIER: How are you funded?

PEARL: We receive Federal and State funds. Locally, the overseeing agency is the Committee for Action of Rural Indians in Petoskey, of which Louise Reznik is chairman.

COURIER: How many persons are in your office?

PEARL: Louise Kane is Director of Counseling, Richard Phillips is a Counselor, Jane Kogima is a Counselor's Aide and Jean Fields is secretary.

COURIER: What kind of services do you provide?

PEARL: We provide one-to-one counseling for persons with alcohol problems, family counseling for those with such problems, group therapy, and conduct drunk driving awareness classes for those cited for drunk or impaired driving. Persons are sent to the drunk driving awareness classes by the District Court. We also receive referrals from the Circuit Court of persons who have alcohol problems and are charged with crimes such as Breaking and Entering, Assault and Battery and being drunk and disorderly. The Probate Court also refers some juveniles to us. Many of these persons are first offenders. We tell them they may become worse. It is a prevention program. We hope that through education they will gain more knowledge of the effects of addiction and tell others about it.

COURIER: What about those with drug problems?

PEARL: Those who are cross-addicted (having both alcohol and drug problems) are referred to the Drug Awareness Center in Petoskey.

COURIER: How do your group therapy meetings work?

PEARL: We gather twice a week. Sometimes there may be only two in three in the area. Transportation to the meetings is a problem. We are looking for a meeting place in Boyne City.

COURIER: Do you get referrals from places other than the courts?

PEARL: Yes, the Department of Social Services and the Health Department send us people in need of help. We also work with Alcoholics Anonymous, Ala-Non and Al-a-Teen.

COURIER: What else do you do?

PEARL: For persons who need detoxication, we may take them to hospitals or half-way houses as far away as the Upper Peninsula or Wisconsin where there are such facilities just for Indians. Our goal is to shoot for a total detoxication and therapy program in the area. There is none here now. It is better if we don't have to take clients away from home. We have facilities for placing people in jobs after a certain length of sobriety. We also have resources for continuing education, to get high school diplomas or go on to college. We try to get them working on something positive.

COURIER: What do you have planned for the future?

PEARL: Besides what we mentioned before, we plan to set up a recreation program for sober people, including pool and other games. If anyone has a coin-operated pool table or other recreation equipment or furniture, we could certainly use it. We also hope to start classes in beadwork, macrame and other skills. Some of the school teachers have offered to help us and we have already gotten a lot of assistance from the Ministerial Committee. We had a Christmas party for Indian families and about 200 attended. Our clients cleaned up the office area for the party.

COURIER: Do your counselors have special training?

PEARL: Yes, all Counselors are being trained as they work by experienced State Employees. Louise has had two years of professional training and is continuing it. Jane has been going to school for over a year. I worked with Alcoholics Anonymous for 14 years and was a probation officer. I'm still being trained.

COURIER: Are people with alcohol or drug problems welcome to just walk into your office?

PEARL: Yes, and if we can't see them at that time, we'll set up an appointment.

Donors Needed for Drive

Donors are still needed for the first Red Cross Bloodmobile of 1976 Mrs. David Fowler and Mrs. Robert Tollas, co-chairman of the event have announced.

The Bloodmobile will be at the Assembly of God church, 203 E. Upright-ave. from 1 until 7 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 15.

Appointments may be made by calling 547-9314. However, if you do not have an appointment walk-ins are welcome.

Seventeen-year-olds are reminded that they may donate with parental permission.

Charlevoix's quota has been set at 150 units Mrs. Fowler said.

She went on to say that there is great need for blood. Every day it is utilized in hospitals in the area for residents of Charlevoix county. By donating through Bloodmobiles area residents are able to obtain this precious commodity without cost except for its administration, she said in urging that everyone who can...that is, anyone between the ages of 17 and 65...give if at all possible.

Assisting with the arrangements for the visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile are Mrs. Roger Roznoski who is recruiting nurses; Mrs. Allen Towsley who is contacting other workers; Mrs. Don Kelly who has assembled a corps of telephone

Charlevoix Mothers Set For March of Dimes Drive

Charlevoix County mothers will be out knocking on doors Thursday, January 22, to collect donations for the March of Dimes.

The one-day drive includes several fund raising activities to support a variety of projects being undertaken by the Charlevoix County March of Dimes.

Besides the door-to-door campaign, canisters will be placed in local restaurants and other businesses for residents to make contributions on that Thursday.

Through-out the month, Mrs. Sue Dixon will be contacting local businesses and industry for donations.

Most area residents will also be receiving mailers in case they would rather mail their donations.

Charlevoix High School cheerleaders will be joining the campaign with a blanket toss at several of the high school's basketball games. Those wishing to make contributions at that time may toss money into the blanket.

"We are enthused about this campaign due to the fact that we have greatly assisted our community during the past year," says Mrs. Janet Ready, county chairperson.

Mrs. Shirley Roisen of Boyne City, past-polo victim, has received help from the march of Dimes.

The Charlevoix Area Hospital received a $1,000 donation for the purchase of a fetal monitor used in detecting distress in an unborn child.

March of Dimes funds have also been used to pay for rhogam injections to RH negative mothers following delivery and supported prenatal classes by offering to pay registration fees and purchasing a film on the newborn.

"Currently, we are offering literature, movies and film strips on good nutrition, venereal disease, the harmful effects of drugs and birth defects to schools and organizations in Charlevoix County," Mrs. Ready said.

"As you can see, our main emphasis is on the prevention of birth defects before they occur."

Those wanting to help on the January 22 door-to-door drive in Charlevoix should contact Mrs. Vicki Voisin at 547-4441. Businesses and industries may contact Mrs. Dixon at 547-6124.

Mrs. Jane Lieberman of Charlevoix is coffee day chairman.

Other residents involved with the program include Dorothy Potter, secretary and public relations; Kay Chase, school coordinator; Roger Rozema, treasurer; and Dr. Thomas Mosher, medical advisor.

State Law Helps Voter Registration

The new state law which permits residents to update their voter registrations or apply for new registrations at state driver license offices is resulting in increased registration, according to Secretary of State Richard H. Austin.

Statewide a total of 35,678 applications were received during the first month of the program which began October 1. About half were for new voters and half were for change of address.

The new voter registrations include people moving into Michigan from other states, as well as other residents not previously registered. The change of address category includes persons who renew registrations which have lapsed, as well as persons who simply have moved within the state and are transferring a current registration from one election jurisdiction to another.

The new system is in addition to the duties of township and city clerks, who continue their full responsibilities for the voter registration process.

The Charlevoix office of the Secretary of State reports that it is busy making voter registrations, although it has not kept track of the number. Whenever a person applies for a driver's license, he is told he may also register to vote at that time if his voting registration is not valid.

A MONEY MESSAGE FROM THE PEOPLE AT SAGINAW SAVINGS...

$1,000 Minimum on all Certificate Accounts

Why it can pay you to choose Now from our half-a-dozen "highest interest" savings plans.

SAVINGS ACCOUNT

If you follow the financial news you know that interest rates can drop. Just as the prices of stocks, gold, or other investment vehicles can drop.

But when you deposit funds in one of our Savings Certificates the interest rate specified is guaranteed for the full length of the certificate — from one year to a full six years. And you are also guaranteed, by insurance, that every dollar you deposit — up to $40,000 will be returned to you.

So this could be a good time to take advantage of our guaranteed rates — the highest available on insured savings. And it could also be a good time to move money from lower interest rate accounts elsewhere into a Saginaw Savings "high rate" regular passbook account which permits complete flexibility as to deposits and withdrawals with insured safety.

Which Saginaw Savings plan is best for you? Make your selections from the chart. Or ask one of our people to help you decide which plan may best suit your situation.

J.V. Loses Game

Charlevoix Dumps Gaylord Blue Devils

With the current cage season at the half way point, Charlevoix now has a 2-5 record after defeating Gaylord 74-63 on the Rayder court Friday.

The Rayders will open their second round of play in the Michigan-Huron Shores League on Friday when they entertain Cheboygan in a return game.

Paced by Dave Tollas with 17 points, the Rayders jumped to a 19-13 first period lead; increased the advantage of 32-19 at halftime and, though they were outscored 19-14 as the second half got underway, held on 46-38 going into the final eight minutes.

Both teams scored 24 field goals. Charlevoix, however, capitalized on their trips to the free throw line by connecting on 26 of 38 attempts for the victory. Charlevoix had 25 personal fouls.

Behind Tollas in the scoring column were Bob Alger with 15 points; Pat Schaefer with 14; Bud Klooster with 13; Scott Boss with 10; Matt Doan with three and Steve Michael with two points.

Walt Plachta and Ed Harmon shared scoring honors for Gaylord with 16 points each. Del Dowker had 12 and Jerry Sorensen, 10 points. The Blue Devils scored on 17 of 28 free throw attempts while collecting 26 personal fouls.

J.V. Loses

A strong third period surge in which the Gaylord JV's outscored the young Charlevoix Rayders 19-10 gave the visitors a 48-40 win here Friday night.

The Rayders were ahead 9-7 at the first quarter and trailed by only one point, 21-20, at halftime but faltered as the second half got underway and were unable to overcome the 39-31 third period deficit.

Gary Galbraith with 17 points was top scorer for the victors followed by Tom Sides with 10 points. Gaylord had 18 field goals; 12 of 18 free throw attempts and 12 personal fouls.

Charlevoix had 17 field goals; six of 12 charity shots and 12 personal fouls. Jim Alger with 13 points was the team's leading scorer in the game. Niel Dziedzic had nine; Jim Elzinga and John Cinnamon, six each; Joe Left, four; Tom Left and Scott Swanson, one point each.

Matmen Maintain Crown In Kalkaska Tourney

The Charlevoix Rayder grapplers successfully defended their title in the Kalkaska Invitational Wrestling Tournament to capture the title for the second year.

The Rayders racked up 124 points to edge a strong Grayling team that had 114 points. Roscommon had 104½; Frankfort 80; Kalkaska 64½; Elk Rapids 51; Glen Lake 49; Whittimore-Prescott 25 and Mancelona 17.

The victory, however, was a costly one for the Rayders who have suffered several serious injuries. Gary Probert has re-injured his knee, originally hurt during the football season and was scheduled to undergo surgery Monday; Terry Drew, who had surgery on his knee following the football season, re-injured his knee and will be laid up indefinitely; Tom Jones, who received a head injury, will also be sidelined indefinitely; Ande Keller was knocked out briefly as a result of an illegal slam to the mat and, for the present, is sidelined and Tim DeYoung received a chipped bone in this thumb which will slow him up.

Coach Norm Probert said he had never had as many injuries in his years of coaching as his team has right now. "I guess the law of averages is just catching up with me", he commented.

Charlevoix had seven participants in the finals at Kalkaska Saturday. Placing first in their respective classes were Tim DeYoung (119); Chris Wimmer (145) and Dane Whitley (185).

Placing second were Mark Byard (98); Ron Hilton (105); Mike Kiteley (112), and Rob Hilton (126).

Andy Keller (155) came in third and Craig Golovich (138) fourth. Also participating were Drew who was injured, Greg Loper and John Cinnamon.

Probert had high praise for DeYoung, Loper and Kiteley.

In his match with Jeff Schlaach of Grayling, DeYoung was trailing 4-1 when he hit Schlaach with a Michigan pinning combination at 5:30 to assure the Rayders a tie for first place. Wimmer nailed down the title with his first place win in the 145 pound class.

Probert also commended sophomores Loper and Kiteley for their performances against highly-seeded opponents. Probert said Loper came within a whisker of defeating a strong Elk Rapids grappler. The loss was by an 11-10 margin. By not getting pinned by Carl Partello of Grayling, one of the top rated wrestlers in the state, Kiteley gave the Rayders much needed advancement points. Partello had pinned his last 17 opponents.

Coach Probert will take his JV squad to Mancelona for a noon assembly on Thursday and to the Glen Lake JV Takedown invitational tourney on Saturday.

Rogers Celebrates 100th Year

There was a special birthday party at Grandvue Medical Care Facility Sunday.

Marshall Rogers celebrated his 100th birthday, complete with cake, gifts, good wishes from many friends, and relatives and a letter of congratulations from President Gerald Ford.

Before entering Grandvue about a year ago, Rogers lived with his nephew, Donald C. Rogers, on Bergman Road in the Boyne City area. His only other relative in the area is Mrs. Dorothy Deming of East Jordan.

Rogers was preceded in death by two wives, the second of whom, Zepha, died in 1971. He had no children but there are several nieces, nephews, grandnieces and grandnephews living in various parts of the country in addition to the above-mentioned two.

Rogers was born in Fremont and lived in Hubbard Lake and Flint, among other places, before coming to Charlevoix County. He worked until he was 75 years old, his last being during World War II at the AC Sparkplug Company in Flint.

Donald Rogers says his uncle is in good health with "no aches or pains", but that his eyesight and hearing are impaired.

It is ordered that said complaint will be brought on for hearing and judgment at the February term of this Court to be held at Charlevoix in the County of Charlevoix State of Michigan on the 2nd day of February A.D. 1976 at the opening of the Court on that day, and that all persons interested in such lands or any part thereof desiring to contest the lien claimed thereon by the State of Michigan for such taxes, interest and charges or any part thereof, shall appear in said Court and file with the clerk thereof their objections thereto on or before the first day of the term of this Court above mentioned, and that in default thereof the same will be taken as confessed and a judgment will be taken and entered as prayed for in said complaint. STATE OF MICHIGAN
FOR THE
COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

In the Matter of the Complaint of Allison Green, State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, for and behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

To the Circuit Court for the County of CHARLEVOIX

ALLISON GREEN, State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, respectfully shows unto the Court:

1. That he is the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan and makes and files this complaint under, by virtue of and pursuant to the provisions of Act No. 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, as amended, and Act No. 380 of P.A. 1965, as amended.

2. That Schedule A annexed hereto is the tax record required by the act first above mentioned and contains the description of all lands in the aforesaid county upon which taxes which were assessed for the years mentioned therein, have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent; the description of all lands in said county heretofore bid off in the name of the State and thus held and upon which taxes which were assessed subsequent to the tax for which such lands were sold to the State have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent.

3. That extended separately in said schedule against each description of said lands therein contained are (a) the total amount of delinquent taxes upon said description for the non-payment of which the same may lawfully be sold at the next annual tax sale, (b) interest computed thereon as provided by law to the first day of May next ensuing, (c) a collection fee of four per cent and (d) $3.09 for expenses, all in accordance with the provisions of the act first above mentioned.

4. That all of the aforesaid taxes, interest and charges are valid, delinquent and unpaid, and have remained delinquent and unpaid for sufficient time to authorize and require, as provided by the foregoing acts, the sale of the aforesaid parcels of land against which they were assessed and are extended in said schedule at the next annual tax sale for the non payment thereof, and that the said taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses so extended in said schedule against each parcel of land therein described constitute a valid lien upon each of the said several parcels of land described in said schedule as therein and against which extended in favor of the people of the State of Michigan, the payment of which lien this court may enforce as a preferred or first claim upon such lands by the sale thereof.

Wherefore your plaintiff prays:

a. That within the time provided by law this court may determine and adjudge that the aforesaid taxes, interest, collection fee and charges are valid and constitute a valid lien upon each of the said several parcels of land described in said schedule as therein extended.

b. That within the time provided by law this court make a final judgment in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of said lands for the payment of the several amounts of taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses, as computed and extended in said schedule against the several parcels of land therein contained.

c. That said judgment provide that in default of the payment so ordered of the said several sums computed and extended against said lands in said schedule, the said several parcels of land or such interest therein as may be necessary to satisfy the amount adjudged against the same shall severally be sold as the law provides.

d. That your plaintiff may have such other and further relief in the premises as to this court may seem just and equitable.

And your plaintiff will ever pray, etc.

Blood Clinic

The older you get, the more likely you are to have a serious problem with high blood pressure. Interested individuals over the age of 50 may participate in a free blood pressure clinic in Charlevoix.

District Health Department No. 3 will be offering this clinic in the Charlevoix High School Cafeteria, on Tuesday, January 20 at 2 p.m. in the afternoon.

Sue Presnell, Registered nurse for the Charlevoix office of District Health Department No. 3 would like to emphasize that "the biggest single cause of strokes is untreated high blood pressure." Most people can't tell when their blood pressure is high, without a blood pressure check.

For more information about the January clinic please call Sue Presnell at the Charlevoix Office of District Health Department No. 3, telephone 547-6523.

are normally collected in the winter

—Heard a proposal by the Charlevoix Garden Club to plant a garden in the existing fish pond in East Park because of vandalism done to the park pool in the summer months.

—Received a lot-split request from Miss Annabel Comfort for her property located at the corner of Dixon and Nettleton. Miss Comfort requests her existing lot with two homes be made from a 66 by 165-ft. lot into one 66 by 71 ft. lot and another 66 by 94-ft. lot.

—Received a petition to close the Grant Street sliding hill because of vandalism and intimidation of younger children. Council took no action.

per 100,000. In the State of Michigan it was 154.

Health officials at the American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute are engaged in in-depth examinations of the death records to determine the cause of the sharp increase.

It will take the better part of a year, they believe, before a detailed analysis of the statistics will show what types of cancer have become more prevalent, what environmental factors, if any, may be responsible, what foods and food additives may be having an effect and whether the cancer surge has been concentrated in particular sections of the country.

The former Martha Carpenter was born in Antrim county Sept. 29, 1890, and was married to Lewis Bolser in Charlevoix county in March 1911. They resided in the Ellsworth area and later the East Jordan area. Mr. Bolser died in 1956. Later she was married to Joseph Montroy who died in 1960. She had lived in Boyne City for the past 18 years. She was a member of United Methodist church of Boyne City.

Surviving are a son, Max Bolser, Sr., of Ellsworth; a daughter, Mrs. Margretta Green of Boyne City; nine grandchildren; 14 great-grandchildren and a brother, John Carpenter of Central Lake.

Max Selfridge

Max F. Selfridge, Chief Engineman, Retired, U.S. Coast Guard, was dead on arrival at the Charlevoix Area Hospital Sunday after suffering an apparent heart attack.

The body will be returned to McDonough, Ga., for funeral services and burial.

Born at McDonough, Ga., June 3, 1928, Mr. Selfridge enlisted in the U.S. Navy in 1949 and after serving three years enlisted in the U.S. Coast Guard in 1952. In 1959, he came to Charlevoix and, in 1969, was retired from the U.S. Coast Guard as a Chief Engineman. In 1963, he was married to the former Mrs. Helen Connaghan Jones at Petoskey. They had always resided here.

Besides his wife, he is survived by four stepsons, Ray Jones of Charlevoix, Thomas Jones, at home, Joseph Jones of Lansing and Clayton Jones of San Diego; a step-daughter, Mrs. Donald (Cathy) Livingston of Lansing; his mother, Mrs. Samuel L. Selfridge of McDonough, Ga.; a brother, Samuel Selfridge, also of McDonough, Ga., and two sisters, Mrs. Betty Stamp of Atlanta, Ga., and Mrs. Jeanette Greer of McDonough, Ga.

Mrs. Katherine Miller

Funeral services for Mrs. Katherine Miller, mother of Robert L. Miller, former superintendent of the Charlevoix schools, were held at the Eagle Funeral Home in Hudson on Tuesday. Interment was in a Hudson cemetery.

Mrs. Miller died Saturday at the Beverly Manor Convalescent Home in Petoskey where she had been a patient for several years.

She is survived by one son, Mr. Miller of Grand Ledge and three grandchildren.

Mrs. Anna Felo

Funeral services for Mrs. Joseph (Anna K.) Felo, who died Friday at Sanford, Fla., where she and her husband were spending the winter months, were held Monday at the Granikow Funeral Home in Sanford. The body will be returned here for graveside services at Brookside cemetery in the spring.

Mrs. Felo was born in Czechoslovakia, was married to Mr. Felo at Flint and lived there from 1914 until coming to Charlevoix in 1959. Since 1969 they have spent the winter months at Sanford.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a son, Joseph W. of Salem, Ore.; three daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Moore of Lakewood, Calif., Mary A. of Glendale and Susan A. of Lapeer; two grandchildren and three sisters in Czechoslovakia.

State Cuts $43,000 in School Funds

Cuts in the state budget have resulted in the loss of approximately $43,000 in state funds to the Charlevoix School District it was announced at the Charlevoix Board of Education Monday night.

During the meeting, counseling personnel at the Charlevoix High School gave indepth reports on their department.

Ms. Gayle Kaczynski told of the career program that was being introduced whereby persons in the professions, technicians, skilled and unskilled people in the community come into the school and speak to students interested in that person's particular career. She said the program was working well and asked anyone who might like to share his work experience to arrange to speak to a group of students.

Charles Bentley, who shares the counseling duties with Mrs. Kaczynski, spoke on the guidance program, stating that it was not only to assist the student but his parents and the administration. He said that of the 61 local students who had registered for the A.C.T. during the 1974-75 school year, the majority rated above average in the tests as compared to students in the same academic level in the state and the nation. He went on to explain the goals of the department and what they hope to accomplish, especially with the students advancing from the Middle to the High School.

Supt. James A. McKimmy said that at every level efforts were being made to see that all students were receiving special attention in the Language Arts.

Boy Fortin, who heads the Adult Education program, reported on the Adult Education being conducted at the County Jail by the Charlevoix schools in cooperation with George Lasiter, Probation officer for the courts. He said that of the five students who had participated in the program, one had passed the G.E.D. test and that others had enrolled in Adult Education programs in their own communities after completing their sentences.

Mrs. William Lusk, representing the Charlevoix county chapter of the Easter Seal Society, presented a stretcher and various First Aid supplies to Mrs. Marge Davenport for use in the Charlevoix schools. The same or similar presentations of such supplies were made to other schools in the county by the Easter Seal Society.

Supt. McKimmy reported that the basketball program had been initiated in the Elementary school with Stanley Martin as coach. The fourth grade has one hour instruction per week with an hour in the gym on Saturday. The fifth and sixth grades receive two hours per week of instruction and time on Saturday under the program.

Mr. Olach, business manager, reported that there was a need for a sewer hook-up at the School Bus garage to take care of water in the building resulting from the washing of buses. He said it would cost approximately $200 plus the cost of the hook-up.

He also said that the high school building had a total of 37 outside doors, all of which needed to be replaced. He said the type needed would cost an estimated $415 per opening or $15,355 for the 37. He recommended that these be replaced as soon as possible to save on fuel and to protect the building. The issue was taken under advisement.

The electrical distribution system is presently overloaded with the addition of more and more electrical equipment since the building was constructed. He said a new distribution system to care for the increased load was being installed at a cost of an estimated $570.

FRANKLIN KNEW WHAT GOD EXPECTS OF EVERYONE

The occasion of Benjamin Franklin's birthday reminds us that it would be almost impossible to list all the accomplishments of this distinguished American patriot who still exerts a profound influence over our lives, or to decide whether he is best remembered as a statesman, diplomat, inventor, author, philosopher or simply as our foremost advocate of thrift, hard work and sensible living. In any case, you can do no better than to follow his common sense advice, and to attend the Church of your choice regularly, for as Franklin himself pointed out, God helps those who help themselves.

"Whatever thy hand findeth to do, do it with all thy might"

JAN

For Spring Primary

City Primary Voter Registration Deadline is January 19

Are you planning to vote in the city's Primary Election on Feb. 16?

If you haven't registered yet, you have until 8 p.m. Monday, Jan. 19, according to the City Clerk's office. On that date the City Clerk's office in the City Hall will be open from 8 a.m. until 8 p.m. for your convenience.

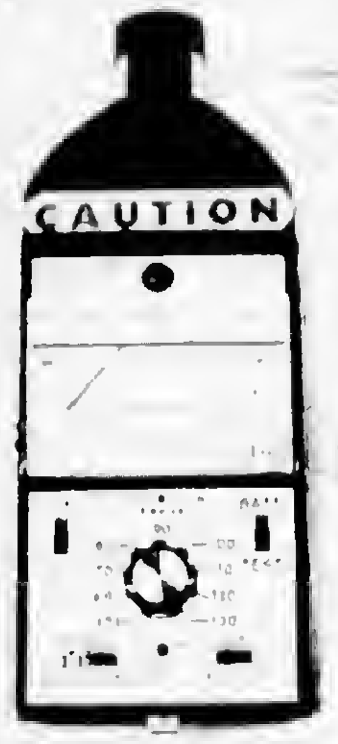
But not everyone is waiting until the last minute to register. In the past four months, for example, a total of 118 people had registered as of Jan. 8. Of this number, there were 29 new registrants in the first ward, 49 in the second ward and 38 in the third ward.

The overall total registration in the city on Thursday was 2,342, an increase from 2,296 on Sept. 25, 1974, and 2,236 on Oct. 17, 1974. Not included in the total are the number of people formerly registered who have moved and registered elsewhere or who have died, a City Clerk spokesman said.

Total registrations in the city reveal 662 in the first ward; 897 in the second ward, making it the city's largest ward, and 793 in the third ward.

This number is expected to increase during the last days for registration prior to the deadline on Jan. 19.

A large percentage of the new registrations during recent months have come through the Secretary of State's License Bureau where new residents have registered when purchasing new license plates.



DECIMETER

Noise Bothers Everyone

If you work in the Charlevoix County Building you're worth about 55.

If you happen to own a Plymouth without a muffler you're at least an 85, possibly a 94.

And if you own a truck and are roaring through downtown Bridge Street, you're good for a 90 or better.

These are the ratings that Charlevoix's newest piece of electronic wizardry will identify you as having. It's called a sound level meter.

The newly purchased meter is the first step Charlevoix city fathers are taking toward curbing noise.

Many noises can be hazardous to the health and extremely irritating. The continuous sound of a typewriter or a lawn mower or, even worse, a group of young aspiring musicians practicing near your home can be nerve-racking.

Sound is rated in terms of decibels and is measured in those terms on a sound measuring device that picks up sound waves through a microphone.

The noise level outdoors in the country is rated at a low 10 decibels, while offices range from 40 to 50 decibels.

An automobile horn 15 or 20 feet away measures around 90, while a small aircraft engine would soar upwards toward 120 decibels.

Medical doctors have long established that a loss in hearing begins once you pass 20. They have designated loss in hearing as prebycusis, which is actually a loss of sensitivity in hearing with age especially after being subjected to the higher frequencies.

On the other hand, loss of hearing is frequently caused by disease, accident and unfortunately by exposure to excessive noise.

Experts say most people can work under noise up to 90 decibels for an eight hour period without suffering any damage.

Harbor Springs Police Chief John Kendall says his community has been actively watching noise levels over three years after they adopted a noise ordinance.

Like Charlevoix, Harbor Springs has purchased a noise measuring instrument to enforce its ordinance. Charlevoix is still considering an ordinance.

"It's very effective as a deterrent," he said about the instrument."

"Most of our problems have been with parties."

But, surprisingly enough, once a patrolman appears on the scene with a decimeter the party usually quiets down, Kendall continued.

"We've never have had to go to court," the police chief said," but we have written a couple of tickets.

Kendall says his department is happy with the ordinance.

Under the Harbor Springs ordinance, noise can not exceed 70 decibels in a residential area or 76 decibels in the business district.

Airline Owners Claim Mayor Has Damaged Reputations

By KEN WINTER

A Beaver Island air transit company is seeking $1.5 million in damages from Charlevoix Mayor Edward P. Hansen for allegedly defaming the company and its owners.

In a counter claim suit filed last Tuesday in Charlevoix Circuit Court, Welke Aviation, and its owners, William and Paul Welke, claim the Charlevoix mayor has damaged their business in statements made to a Boyne City newspaper last fall.

The Welkes claim statements made by the mayor in a story appearing in the Charlevoix County Press, a weekly newspaper, were libelous and defaming to them and their business.

The Welkes claim the story deprived them of their civil rights.

Twenty Days

Hansen, who has twenty days to answer Welkes' claims, told the Courier that no allegations were ever made against the Welkes, but rather their company.

"The only question in my mind is whether these people have a right to operate without a permit or contract from the city," the mayor said.

The mayor says he had told the company owners at least five times that they need a permit from the city.

At issue, according to Hansen, is whether or not the city has a right to license or regulate business operating on publicly-owned property.

Welkes' damage claim follows a complaint filed last November by the City of Charlevoix in circuit court seeking an injunction against the Beaver Island company from operating at the city airport until a city license was obtained.

The city, in bringing suit against Welke Aviation, contends that the company is violating a city ordinance that regulates landing fees and other uses of the airport.

Under the city ordinance, commercial users of the airport must pay $3,600 a year or $300 a month.

The ordinance also requires a person operating on a commercial basis at the municipal airport to first obtain a contract or lease from the city.

Unreasonable Demand

Robert Wexstaff, acting city administrator, said that Welke had not fulfilled the requirements named in the ordinance.

Welke claims the fee established by the city is illegal and unreasonable, as well as being in violation of conditions established when the city received federal funds for airport improvements in 1963.

The city's efforts to keep Welke Aviation from operating at the airport ran into a roadblock last December when Judge Martin Breighner denied the city's request for a preliminary injunction against the Beaver Island firm.

Judge Breighner has scheduled a hearing on the city's suit for Monday, February 2, at 9 a.m. in Charlevoix Circuit Court.

State Takes Over Personal Property Taxes

By PEG OIILE

The State has taken over another function of government formally handled by local officials.

Under the Single Business Tax Law (P.A. 228 of 1975) local assessors must report to the State the value of personal property inventories of all businesses within their jurisdiction.

This means the value of goods held for resale by retail and wholesale businesses; finished goods, goods in process and raw materials of a manufacturing business; and materials and supplies, including repair parts and fuel.

Instead of remaining in the county as they now do, taxes on this business personal property would go to the State, which supposedly would reimburse the local units of government on the basis of the State equalized value of the inventory property multiplied by the tax (mill) rate for each taxing unit.

The law further states that the Department of Treasury may audit the personal property statements of any taxpayer and may audit the total value reported by a city, village or township. If errors are found, the Department of Treasury may correct the figures used in calculating payments and notify the local government of the change in inventory.

While most taxing units are scheduled for re-imbursement of business personal property taxes, schools are not.

The law specifically states that "school districts, intermediate school districts, community college districts, vocational education and special education districts shall not be included under the provisions of this chapter."

If, and how, this loss in tax revenue to the schools is to be made up is not indicated.

Although provisions of the law call for re-imbursement of collected personal property taxes to the local units of government, some questions might arise.

The monies go into the State's general fund. When asked what would happen if the State's general fund ran extremely low, County Equalization Director Joan Blanchard replied, "I don't know. Maybe we wouldn't get our full share back."

This concern could be heightened by the fact that under the law an amount of $800,000 from the general fund is appropriated to adminiter the act for the 1975-76 fiscal year. This amount may be higher in years to come. Who pays for it?

The new law will make little difference to the small townships in the county which have few business enterprises. However, a township like Charlevoix, which has a broad business base, including Medusa Cement, the amount of money sent to Lansing would be considerable.

Mrs. Blanchard says that the value of business personal property in Charlevoix County in 1975 was approximately $10,00,200. Based on the county's 1975 mill rate of 4.7, this means that about $47,000 of county tax funds alone would go into State coffers before being returned to the county treasury for operation of county government.

This would be in addition to all the personal property taxes levied for the townships, cities and villages within the county.

Another loss to local taxing units is the one percent collection fee they now receive for collecting taxes on business personal property.

Former County Clerk Dies

Fenton R. "Pete" Bulow, 79, Charlevoix County clerk for almost 40 years before his retirement in 1968, died this morning at Grandvue Medical Care Facility where he had been a patient for 11 months.

A native of Charlevoix County, Mr. Bulow spent his boyhood in East Jordan and served with the Coast Guard, then a part of the U.S. Navy, during World War I. After the war he returned to East Jordan and went into business with his brother, Glenn.

On July 15, 1929, he was appointed county clerk by the late Judge Parm C. Gilbert to fill a vacancy. He ran for election to the post on the Republican ticket in 1932 and was re-elected clerk every two years until his retirement in 1968.

He served as president of the Charlevoix County Fair Board from 1927 until 1932; helped organize the Rebec-Sweet American Legion Post in East Jordan and later served as commander of the Leslie T. Shapton post in Charlevoix.

Mr. Bulow played cornet with the Charlevoix City Band for many years and was active in the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club, the Republican party and the Michigan Association of County Clerks.

At the time of his retirement, Mr. Bulow had served longer as county clerk than any of Michigan's 83 clerks.

He is survived by his wife, the former Ruth Hamilton whom he married in 1929; and three daughters, Mrs. William (Janet) Clark of Syracuse,

Charlevoix Charter Commission Looks at City Charter

EDITOR'NOTE: Within the next three months, Charlevoix residents will be viewing a new proposed charter to operate the city under. The charter, which is intended to replace the present Fourth Class Cities Act in Charlevoix is now being written by the Charlevoix Charter Commission. This is the first of a continuing series on the commission's work.

By KEN WINTER

Devising a new framework to operate city government isn't as easy as it might seem.

Since last April, when Charlevoix's nine-member commission was elected, the commission has been busy studying different elements of city government.

Besides looking at Charlevoix's existing government, the commission has examined other local communities and how they function.

While it's too early to know exactly what the commission intends to present for public hearing this spring, there are some basic concepts that will probably appear in the final draft.

At this point, the commission appears to favor what is known as the "Council Manager Plan." Under this formula, the council would consist of six member, two elected from each of the city's three wards with city voters casting ballots on all candidates, regardless of ward.

Instead of the mayor being the seventh member of the council, he would be one of the six councilmen elected to the council. Unlike the present mayor, who actually retains almost all managerial power, the new mayor would be more of a ceremonial head of the city. The mayor would also preside over council meetings as he does now and vote on key appointments, but would have no veto power.

Unlike the present city administrator's position, which is held at the pleasure of the Mayor, no member of the council would be able to individually appoint or remove the city manager. Nor would they be able to move any other city employees.

Under the proposed charter, the Council would be able to express its views and freely discuss employee problems with the city manager. But, neither the council or its

Grant Street

The recent trouble on Grant Street hill makes us all aware of the danger to life and limb as well as morals of the little children who now use the hill. There must be a solution to the problem and ignoring it will never make it go away.

One solution would be to use the North Grant Street grade between Clinton and Park Avenue for the youngsters to use after school and early evening. In so far as male guards, they have given up on trying to police and keep order on the south hill due to the Newman alley where the troublemakers can run to when the police are called from time to time to stop the trouble. There must be a change. The north Grant Street hill is well lighted and residents live on both sides which could well help to keep the troublemakers in line. Also the grade is about the right slant for small youngsters.

Another solution would be to cut a path down the bluff above the municipal beach and have definite after school hours for the small fry and evening hours for the older youngsters. There is the snow fence already there to keep the youngsters from sliding too far and as all children go to that beach in summer without parental supervision there should be no objection to using it in the winter. Also parks were meant for recreation. City streets were not intended for recreation.

Dear Sir

I am an inmate at London Correctional Institution. I used to live in Charlevoix about five years ago, before I came to Ohio. I would appreciate it very much if you would print the following in your newspaper. I can't pay you. I can only say, "Thank you".

Male, White, age 35, an inmate at London Correctional Institution would like to hear from pen pals of his home town or surroundings. Will answer all letters. Address all letters to: Bill Crawford, No. 141-194, P.O. Box 69, London, Ohio, 43140.

Grant Street

I take pen in hand to air a problem. I live on Grant Street two blocks from the top of Grant Street Sliding Hill. I often walk downtown down this hill and along Newman Alley. It is a pleasant enough walk, no traffic to dodge or fumes to inhale. Beginning last year, I cannot help but notice a great danger to children on this hill from illegal auto traffic! At the beginning of winter this hill is shut off to traffic. Signs are put up, within a matter of a day or week these are knocked down and ultimately destroyed. Snow is banked up across the street by the city to stop traffic. I myself saw an auto rapidly driven past me a block from the top of the Hill hit this snowbank and continue barreling on down that hill and away. Ask not me who it was, I do not know. Now just suppose a group of those beautiful, rosy cheeked children of yours folks, would have been somewhere on that hill tumbling about, as so often I have seen them there, this driver could never have been able to stop on that slippery street in time to avoid a serious accident! Folks and Fellow Citizens of this part of this good City of Charlevoix, I fear for your little ones!

I deeply sympathize with you and your children folks. They need a hill on which to slide and ski. I recall my childhood on the

MRS. CHARLES EARLEY pins the Eagle Scout Award on her son, Joe, as his father looks on. The Charlevoix High School senior received Scouting's highest honor Thursday.

Charlevoix High Senior Earns Eagle Scout Award

Joe Earley will remember last Thursday for many years to come.

It was the day the 18-year-old Charlevoix High School senior received Scouting's highest honor--Eagle Scout Award.

Although the ceremonies were simple and brief, they represented nearly 4½-years of work in Boy Scout Troop 43.

"It's one of the greatest things in my life," Earley said after receiving the award.

"It's a great honor, it's one of the best honors I have ever had."

Earley received the award following a special dinner held at Charlevoix's Congregational Church.

Now a junior assistant scoutmaster, he has served in a variety of positions ranging from patrol leader to assistant senior patrol leader of his troop.

He also earned the Polar Bear Award for camping at least 24-hours in below-freezing weather, in addition to earning the 50-Mile Award "for hiking 50 miles or more.

Earley is a member of the Order of the Arrow, Scouting's honored camper's organization.

A member of Charlevoix High School's golf team for four years, Earley plans to study data processing at Ferris State College this fall.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Earley, who live at 105 E. Lincoln.

Both Earley and Scout Joe Seidel were recognized for having just completed the Ad Altare Dei, scouting's religious award for the Roman Catholic Church.

Seidel also received the Gold Eagle Palm, for having earned a total of 42 merit badges. Twenty-four are required for Eagle.

Other scouts recognized last Thursday were Scott Johnston, Den Chief Cord and cooking skill award; Francis Pschner, firemanship merit badge and second class; Tim Hanna, firemanship, personal management, mammals, geneology and animal industry merit badges; and Mike Klama, firemanship and tenderfoot.

U of M Plans Alumni Meet

Area alumni of the University of Michigan will gather for cocktails and dinner January 22 at the Country Hearth restaurant in Petoskey.

Speaker for the occasion will be Bob Ufer, who has broadcast over 300 consecutive Michigan football games during his career, most recently the Orange Bowl game.

Dinner tickets are available from Charles Ketterer, phone 347-3709.

NO TWO DIAMONDS ARE ALIKE
So diamond prices vary considerably depending on cut, carat weight, clarity and color. For example, a flawless, colorless stone of fine cut and weighing one carat, could sell for up to $3900. On the other hand, a stone with flaws, poor color and cut, and weighing one carat would sell for as low as $700.
Diamonds in all size ranges vary in a similar way. Being a product of nature no two stones are ever alike, and each vary in price according to its' individual quality. A knowledgeable jeweler can explain these differences and insure that you receive the best value for your diamond dollar.

Cures for Cabin Fever

Try 'Bumping' for Change of Pace

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

Anyone in northern Michigan can define "cabin fever."

Cures are as varied as the definitions.

Snowmobiles have been credited as the most universal and popular antidotes to the virulent disease; but for many, snowmobiling isn't the answer.

If cabin fever is a state of mind, some peoples' cures strike others as sheer insanity.

Bump jumping, unique to the immediate area, is often cited as the most drastic. Those who have tried and failed say it means trading a ragged state of mind for a ragged body.

Bump jumpers' origins are lost in legend. Currently the only bump jumper maker begs for anonymity. Formerly, the Foster Boat Works turned out this dubious piece of athletic equipment.

The mysterious wood carver of bump jumpers, who resides in Charlevoix, says he simply cannot handle any more business than he has, supplying a Petoskey hardware store.

His wife comments, "Bump jumpers can cure cabin fever or send you right back to the cabin with a broken bone."

Bump jumpers are a platform seat attached to an upright brace which is in turn attached to a single runner. The whole thing stands about a foot high. The object of the sport is to keep ones derriere on the seat whilst plummeting down a hill, simultaneously jumping off moguls by shoving downwards vigorously with your feet. After hurtling through space, the further the better, the bump jumper and jumpee are expected to land upright on the single runner and continue apace down the hill.

Bump Jumping

Charlevoix mothers warn that bump jumping is particularly hard on rubber boots which are dragged like outriggers to steady the vehicle.

At about the same level of intensity is hotdog skiing. Hotdogging can be formalized or whimsical. It may be just an outburst of exhurberance on a crystaline day when the fevered mind escapes in a freedom dance, taking body along; or it can be an athletic event for which skiers prepare with olympian dedication. Boyne Mt. will host "Free Style" Skiing Championships on February 27, 28 and 29th.

The Boyne Complex and its spunky competitor Nub's Nob in Harbor Springs welcome normal skiers also. All the local ski resorts maintain cross country ski trails as well as downhill runs and trails.

February 11th Boyne Mountain will be the site of the annual Can-Am Slalom races. For those not inclined to strapping on the boards, these are exciting spectator sports.

March 5th they will hold the National Women's Collegiate Championships.

Within the last four years, cross-country skiing's popularity has grown rapidly. Dedicated cross country skiers, Nordic skiers, or ski tourers as they are called, brag of their freedom: no costs, beyond equipment; no tow lines, no limits to where you can go; and for area residents, no driving and hassles with parking at ski resorts.

Almost any day, Nordic skiers of all ages can be seen gliding silently down a country path, into woods, noiselessly moving through natural area formally out of bounds.

Pack Lunches

Gregurious cross country skiers pack lunches, fill their boda bags and set off on ski tours. The warmth of the skiing gives lie to the frigid temperatures. A bonfire fights the chill at the picnic.

Popular trails abound in Charlevoix, including Bell's Bay, around Pine Point, and along Lake Michigan toward Big Rock.

By Christmas the smaller inland lakes were frozen and fish shanties signaled the opening of one of the season's oldest cabin fever cures. The South Arm of Lake Charlevoix supports an annual village of shanties, along with transient tip-ups, watched from snowmobiles. The hard core move onto the main body of Lake Charlevoix once the ice is safe.

Ice Fishing

Fish shanty villages have their own traditions as much as ski touring or snowmobiling. Shanties can be elaborate, with warming stoves and liquid refreshment for the fishermen who visit back and forth maintaining a wary eye on their rods.

Bus Fares Go Up

Senior citizens riding Commission on Aging buses will soon be asked for larger donations for rides.

The Commission will request they pay 30 cents for round-trip rides within cities, 60 cents for round-trip rides within the county and $1.25 for round-trip rides to Petoskey.

Present donations for 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00 are not sufficient to cover costs of operating the buses, the Commission reports.

More Pay Days

Employees of Charlevoix County may soon begin receiving 26 checks a year instead of 24.

A resolution to investigate this procedure was passed by the Board of Commissioners last week.

Commissioner Lee Moerland reported that auditors for the county had made a recommendation that employees be paid by-weekly rather than on the 15th and 30th of each month as is now the case.

New Employees

Two new employees have been added to the county payroll.

Lois Elzinga will replace the late Phyllis Oliver in the office of Recorder of Deeds. Her duties include recording instruments and clerical work.

Ruth Rostar has joined the District Court staff as a deputy clerk. She replaces Marilyn Blauman, who has moved to the Court's Petoskey office.

Give Them a Chance

Although work on Charlevoix's new proposed charter will not be completed for another three months, it's not too early to think about city government revision.

Already people are beginning to mutter that they've heard this and that, with out really having seen anything.

We think it is important for Charlevoix residents to remain as open-minded as possible when considering the charter question.

The nine-member commission has been working diligently since its inception last April evaluating and considering possible alternatives for a new charter.

If the commission handles its job properly, it will have looked at our existing situation and will eventually come up with a document that should improve local government.

Once a charter is drawn up, it has to go back to the public in hearing and then in a vote before anything official can take place.

The charter commission is simply a group of local residents attempting to improve our government, but only with the approval of the entire city.

The unfortunate thing is that people are already prejudging the commission's work without really giving it any time to conclude their research and writing.

As the time for a formal public hearing approaches us, we would encourage all interested citizens to start attending the commission meetings every other Tuesday in the council chambers.

Informing and educating the community about the charter proposal will be no easy task for the commission.

The more people who take the time now to begin understanding the commission's work, the more valuable the public hearing will be when it comes up in several months.

Like city elections, too many people are not willing to take interest in local government.

Then, when something comes up that does not coincide with general public opinion, everyone is unhappy and blames city hall.

Becoming involved with the charter commission is one way local residents can begin to take an active part in the operation of their community government.

Good Going, Senator

Apparently the word has finally hit Senator Robert Davis that his constitutents back home are opposed to the newly created Single Business Tax.

The Senate Republican leader and northern Michigan representative said last week that small businessmen are paying more than their fair share of taxes now that the tax has taken effect.

Davis, R-Gaylord, told a news conference that small businessmen will pay an estimated $50 million more a year than anticipated under the new tax system, which took effect January 1.

It was only last fall in Charlevoix that area small businessmen hounded Davis about the dangers it would have for them.

Despite their warnings, only State Rep. Ralph Ostling (R-Roscommon) would publicly oppose the tax. Davis went ahead and supported legislation setting up the new tax.

Now that the tax has been established through Davis' efforts, he is asking Governor William G. Milliken to support a bill in this legislative session to ease impact on small businessmen.

He said Senate Republicans have received "a great deal of negative response" from owners of laundries, dry cleaning firms, printing companies and other small businessmen who feel they are being unfairly taxed.

"It is their feeling that small businesses, which are the backbone to Michigan's economy, are paying too great a portion of the total tax burden," Davis said in a letter to Milliken.

"The added expense of this new tax may prove to be the downfall of many small businesses in the state."

The Single Business Tax replaced the previously existing tax system with a single 2.35 percent levy on wages, profits and other factors.

In a separate statement issued last week from the Senate Republican Information Office, Northern Michigan residents were told they could be proud of Senator Bob.

At a time when newspapers, radio and TV are telling of legislators missing 30 sessions out of 141, and of seven of 38 senators showing up on time, the release said Senator Davis finished the 1975 legislative season with a 95 percent attendance record.

"Sure there are things that come up in the district which are important enough to miss session for, and you can't be healthy every day, but I believe that actually going to session and voting on the issues is what I'm here to do," Davis concluded.

If the Single Business Tax is an example of our senator's legislative work, we would rather see him absent from legislative sessions more often.

He even could come back to his district more often and find out how they think about issues before sponsoring legislation that will cause a burden.

Handicap Problem

January 9, 1976

Charlevoix City Council
City Hall
Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

Dear Councilmen:

We have been following with interest your discussions relative to the enforcement of the General Rules for the state construction code. Through the effort of many concerned citizens, legislation was passed to insure uniformity of the barrier free provisions throughout the state.

A recent article in NRA Journal of Rehabilitation reports some current research substantiating the fact that the entire population, is vulnerable to the possibility of becoming handicapped, or being handicapped for, some portion of life. Only 17 percent of the physically handicapped population were born impaired in some way. The other 83 percent acquired their disability through disease, traumatic injury - such as strokes and car accidents, war, or advanced age. Therefore, the non-disabled must begin to "feel" for the problems of handicapped people.

It may be difficult for some to realize the very serious problems so many local children and adults face in trying to overcome the obstacles which presently exist in so many of our buildings. The Intermediate District has access to films and various simulation techniques which help to demonstrate this problem and would be most amenable to offer our assistance in any way. Please don't hesitate to contact the Special Education Department for this information. We would like to help our community become barrier free to all persons.

Sincerely,

Charlevoix-Emmet
Special Education Staff Members

Larry Whitehead.

Charlevoix Facility

The Charlevoix City Council, our three County Commissioners, the Charlevoix township Commissioner, and of course the people in our immediate area should use their combined persuasive powers to have a branch of Grandvue Medical Care Facility located in Charlevoix. The advantages of having the Facility here are many. The facility on Peninsula Road is now having its problems with the City of East Jordan over the cost of running a water line to it's site. And the Commissioners are also in the process of planning an addition to the now crowded building.

In Charlevoix any new structure would be close to the Charlevoix Area Hospital for emergencies, plus the availabilty at all hours of the hospital's services and personnel. In our city are also all the necessary utilities. Our Fire Department with their dependable promptness might some day prevent a very tragic incident. Certainly the fire insurance rates would drastically be reduced.

The present location of the Grandvue Facility is very much isolated and must give it's occupants a feeling of loneliness and depression. The taxpayers around here must in winter time travel twenty miles of hazardous roads to visit their relatives and friends. Many groups of concerned people would constantly offer their friendship and companionships to those who really need encouragement if it was built here.

The site of the present Facility was strictly a political compromise. It is time to be sensible and spend our money where it will do the most good, or benefit the most people. The City and Township of Charlevoix together now pay 25 percent of the County Taxes. The County owns land next to the jail that could be used for this project.

At least the Commissioners should not proceed with their expansion plans until; they have given serious consideration to this proposition.

Clockwise

If any foreign power, through some chemical or atomic wizardry, were able to inflict one-tenth of the destructive force upon the United States as an ordinary winter storm we would surely throw everything in our nuclear arsenal at the aggressor and still get the worst of the bargain.

If winter, for example, had been invented by Adolph Hitler and he had used it with a free hand against his enemies in Europe and America, his reputation as a blood-thirsty tyrant would have been increased many fold over what it is today.

What are extermination camps and gas chambers compared to the suffering and death inflicted by the elements to those of us who happen to live in frigid zones of Mother Earth?

If winter occurred only once every 10,000 years, it would be looked upon as a global calamity, commemorated in folk songs and Bible verses.

Consider for a moment the consternation in Washinton if an aggressor nation should:

–Dump 10 feet of frozen water vapor over one third of the United States' land area and keep it there for periods ranging up to six months.

–Drop the temperatures from the 70's and 80's to zero and below and keep it there for weeks on end.

–Kill all of our crops and force us to let our land lie fallow and unproductive for month after month.

–Glaze our streets and sidewalks with ice so that literally thousands of persons are killed and injured needlessly in automobile accidents and hundreds of others are caused to fall and break their arms or legs trying to go about the business of earning a living.

–Force each of us to spend hundreds upon hundreds of dollars every year in fuel oil to keep the frost out of our parlors and workshops.

–Pick our pockets to the tune of additional hundreds of dollars a year for heavy winter clothing, overshoes, insulation, storm windows, snow tires, snow shovels, snow plows and weather-stripping.

Add to all of these the inconveniences of winter: The balky automobile engine. The drive-way that won't stay shoveled. The snow and ice that damage shingles and wreak havoc with eaves. The list is endless.

Consider all of these things and then try to explain to me how the northern reaches of the United States were ever settled in the first place and why they remain populated today.

It is hard sometimes to realize that some years for a full six months the climate in northern Michigan is so bad that outdoor living of any kind is clearly out of the question, except for brief excursions into the field of winter sports or other tomfoolery.

If, in our space explorations, we encountered a planet with a climate as wretched as that of, say, Ellsworth, we would never go back, would we? Yet literally millions of Americans who should know better live in climates which, for the better part of each year, are fit for neither man nor monkey.

By the same token, if a visitor from outer space should ever descend on Charlevoix in the middle of January he could be excused for hieing himself off to sunnier climes after casting a baleful eye at ice-clogged Round Lake and the high snow banks along every street and alley way.

Truly, winter is an abomination of the first water. It is not a rare climatic occurrence. It's the same year after year. We know what it's like and we know that we can't change it. By everything that's holy, this wilderness should be deserted by thinking creatures from October through April.

Instead, we slip and slide through our daily routines like village idiots, bedazzled by the fact that Fate has been kind enough to let us live in northern Michigan.

Although doctors are the current group bearing the brunt of malpractice insurance, life insurance executives are being told to look for new trends and a new day.

It seems everyone wants assurance of what's coming to him or her and they want to insure their rights against risks. It is not inconceivable that in the not too distant future all of us will be carrying liability insurance.

The other night at a party I approached a man who seemed rather depressed. "Cheer up!" I said. "Things aren't that bad."

He grunted and went back to his drink.

"Let me tell you a joke," I giggled.

"It'll make me laugh?" he asked.

"It will make you hysterical," I promised. "It seems President Ford, Pope Paul and Mayor Daley were aboard a boat that would only hold one person. As it began to sink they held a discussion about who should be saved."

"A boat capsizing is not funny," said the man.

"Wait a minute. I'm not finished. President Ford said, 'There is no question that I should be saved because I am responsible for the destiny of over 200 million people. I should be the one to survive.' The Pope interrupted and said, 'I can appreciate your importance, but I provide spiritual leadership for the entire world. My absence would throw civilization into turmoil.' At this point Mayor Daley spoke up and said, 'Look, we live in a democratic society. Let's put it to a vote.' Mayor Daley won 7-2."

"You call yourself a humorist?" asked the man unsmiling.

"I've done that joke a million times and it's always worked before," I said.

The next morning I heard from the man's lawyer, who said his client had lain awake all night long worrying about Jerry Ford and Pope Paul bobbing around in the water. "He suffered mental anguish, insomnia, and an emotional whiplash. He is suing you for $500,000."

"Five hundred thousand dollars!"

"Right. He said you promised to make him laugh and he didn't."

"But..."

"There are witnesses."

"But..."

"You should have spelled out the options: (1) He may not get the joke; (2) He's heard the joke before; (2) He is related to Mayor Daley and did not see the humor in it. If I've told you humorists once, I've told you a million times. When you see a person depressed – don't get involved!"

The idea was to get to know my 2 teenage kids again. I might learn to like them again, the way I did when they were tiny and I could cuddle them in my arms and easily lock them in a cupboard.

So we drove to Florida for a holiday vacation. Ma, Pa, 17-year-old Ed and 19-year-old Christy, packed with all our earthly tape decks and electric curlers into our 6-year-old gas-gulping Oldsmobile. 3,029 miles round-trip with stops at several motels to watch the toilets overflow.

God help us all.

It was our first family vacation in at least 5 years. We took the kids everywhere with us when they were little because that's what All American families always did on Saturday Evening Post covers. We went the complete route Together, Waltons on wheels, visiting the Mayflower, Parrot Jungle and 1,456 flopping seals.

Then, one day in St. Louis, while my neck was still sore from looking up at McDonald's biggest arch, the kids grew up.

They announced they were bored sick with Ma and Pa and the amusement-park life. They didn't want to follow the pioneer trail, marked only by billboards, to the village of the Neon Indian. They wanted to go home and see their friends.

It was an Emancipation Proclamation and from the day on my wife and I traveled free. The children stayed home with the peanut butter. It was marvelous to check into a Holiday Inn and be reminded why the word "motel" is a double entendre when Johnny Carson says it.

But, just like in a Chester Morris movie, the calendar pages flipped. Came Christmas 1975 and an invitation to revisit our favorite spot, beautiful Marco Island on the west coast of Florida. Suddenly my wife decided her 2 youngest had to see the island before they were too old for me to pay for it. And the lousy kids agreed to go, not because they really wanted to, but because they like to hear me sob hysterically.

So I got to know my kids again. I learned important things:

Ed is no problem traveling if you don't mind nudging and pushing and otherwise guiding him between bed and board. He can't respond to spoken directions because 2 earphones have become permanently attached to his head. He carries a tape player everywhere, with spare batteries in every pocket and extra Frank Zappa tapes in his mouth. (If you don't know who Frank Zappa is, say thank you to God.)

Christy always agrees with her mother. This meant I had no chance of winning the domestic disputes which inevitably occur along the freeway.

When I am the pilot, my wife is navigator, in charge of reading all maps and signs. I require explicit instructions and constant reassurance. When the proper procedure toward Florida is to turn left at the next exit, I want to be given that information several times as I approach the turn. When, for the 15th time, I ask, "Is this where I turn left?" I do not approach such answers as "Right, unless you want to go into the ocean."

Such sarcasm is dangerous. Obviously, when the navigator is asked if a left turn is the right turn, she should not answer "right," she should say "correct." When the navigator consistently refuses to obey these most rudimentary rules of safety, the pilot is certainly justified in screaming and pounding the steering wheel and threatening to kill.

But my wife doesn't see it that way and neither, I learned during this rebirth of blessed fatherhood, does our darling daughter. It was 2 against 1 all the way, with no help from my son because the angriest pilot in the world can't holler louder than Frank Zappa.

I didn't win one argument in 3,000 miles. Onward and Upward, except when you turn left, right?

Meet Charlevoix

Clyde Cunningham

Clyde Cunningham of Marion Township was recently elected chairman of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners for 1976. This week the Courier talks with him about his experience on the Board, about his work and his family.

COURIER: How long have you served on the Board of Commissioners?

CUNNINGHAM: Since 1961, when it was the old Board of Supervisors.

COURIER: What townships do you represent?

CUNNINGHAM: Marion, Norwood, St. James and Peaine.

COURIER: What committees have you served on?

CUNNINGHAM: Agricultural, Equalization – for 14 years – and Ways & Means.

COURIER: Are you a native of Marion Township?

CUNNINGHAM: Yes, I am living on land that my grandfather, Thomas Cunningham, homesteaded, in a house that is well over 80 years old. My father, Edward Cunningham, remembers planting the trees around the house when he was 17. He was born in 1876.

COURIER: How many acres do you farm, and what do you grow?

CUNNINGHAM: We have 120 acres, 80 of which were the original homestead. We have 70 head of cattle and grow feed – grain and hay. Our son Mitch really runs the farm while I run the implement business in Ironton.

COURIER: What do you see as the major problems facing the Board of Commissioners this year?

CUNNINGHAM: I don't see any thing really major. We will undoubtedly have some problems but nothing very important.

COURIER: Will you run the Board any differently from the way it has been run in the past?

CUNNINGHAM: No, it will be the same. There is some talk about setting up some rules, but I don't know if this will happen. They could probably be changed every year, anyway, with different chairmen and different commissioners.

COURIER: You offered the resolution presenting the lower supplements for judges. Do you think this matter will come before the Board again?

CUNNINGHAM: I don't know, but if it does I won't change my vote. I believe all judges should prove themselves for at least a year before receiving an increase in supplement. All our judges are doing a good job and we did raise them $600 while other county employees received only a $540 cost of living increase. Also, by statute, we cannot lower a judge's salary when it is set. Courts are becoming an expensive proposition.

COURIER: What positions do you hold in addition to County Commissioner?

CUNNINGHAM: I am on the Board of the Co-op and the Consistory of the Community Reformed Church.

COURIER: There are a lot of Cunninghams around town. Are you related to any of them?

CUNNINGHAM: Yes, My sister Annabelle is Charlevoix City Treasurer and my wife Jeanette is Deputy Treasurer for the county. My brother Ray has the Cunningham Radio & T.V. Company. My brother Alvin "Hap" lives in Charlevoix and is retired from the Charlevoix Oil Company after many years. I also have a sister in East Jordan and a sister in Ironton. Originally, there were five boys and four girls in our family.

Four-County Sheriff Department Study New Jail Keeping Methods

Jail keeping just isn't what it used to be and some of those who have to spend time in the jug should count their blessings.

If you had been around when Devil's Island was still going you probably wouldn't have been around to tell anyone about it.

"It seemed to be their policy to kill off their prisoners," said Don Walter of the Michigan Department of Corrections.

Williamsburg, Virginia used to have open cells where there would be public flogging. Other types of punishment included a sweatbox placed near a fire, constant pouring of cold water on the victim's head from a high place and useless labor, such as turning a crank 1,800 times in an hour.

And believe it or not, public executions were held as late as 1936. Some 20,000 gathered in Kentucky for that one on August 14.

These were a part of the methods nearly a dozen jail keepers from Charlevoix, Grand Traverse, Emmet and Antrim Counties learned about in a special two-day training session held at the county jail.

The jail keepers learned about the old punishment methods to gain a perspective of how enforcement had improved.

Conducted by the Michigan Department of Corrections, the course included a review of the new state jail rules, rights of the confined and methods for a jail search.

"The jails we have today aren't that different from the 1800's," Walter told the group.

"Especially, when you look at most of the things of life that have changed."

While indicating there have been few changes, Walter did discuss several major changes that have occurred.

For example, he said several jails are now trying glass instead of the use of bars in cell areas.

He said that prisoners in glassed-in cells seem to be less aggressive.

DONALD J. WALTER (second from right) of the Offices of Jail Services talks with local jail keepers during a special two day session held last week.

Planners Work on Recreation Plan

A new recreation plan for the county is being developed by the Planning Commission.

Now in a preliminary state, the plan will be discussed at the Commission's February meeting and later submitted to local cities and townships for further consideration.

Portions of the recreation plan have been taken from recreation proposals that are currently being discussed in many of the political units.

According to County Planner Bill Mercer, the new plan will be used in making requests for funds, as they become available for parks and other recreational facilities.

It was under the old recreation plan, drawn up in 1970, that bond money was obtained to construct the recreation building at Whiting Park.

Cheboygan Dumps Red Rayders

After coming from behind to tie the score 65-all at the final horn, the Charlevoix Rayders lost to Cheboygan by a score of 71-67 after being outscored 6-2 in the overtime Friday night.

The Rayders trailed throughout the game 24-16 at the quarter; 39-35 at halftime and 56-46 at the three-quarter mark. Playing a scrappy fourth quarter in which they scored six field goals and seven charity shots to nine points for Cheboygan, the Rayders tied the score at the final horn.

In the overtime to break the 65-65 tie, Cheboygan scored on six of nine free throw attempts for the victory. Charlevoix's Bud Klooster scored two.

Matt Doan with 26 points paced the game. He was followed by Pat Schaefer with 13; Bob Alger with 12; Klooster with six; Scott Boss and Brian Williams with four points each and Steve Michael with two points. The Rayders had 24 field goals and connected on 19 of 29 free throw attempts while collecting 26 personal fouls.

Dave Lindsay had 20 points; John Heiss, 18, and Scott Hancock, 17 for Cheboygan. The Chiefs had 27 field goals and 17 of 29 charity shots. The team had 24 personal fouls.

Rayders Romp Over Young Chiefs

The Charlevoix Rayder JV quintet jumped to a 25-7 lead over the visiting Cheboygan JV's and were never headed as they romped to an 82-50 win over the young Chiefs.

Niel Dziedzic set the pace with a torrid 22 points as the Rayders went ahead 42-24 at halftime and 64-41 going into the final period before coasting to a lopsided win.

The young Rayders poured in 36 field goals and added 10 of 24 from the free throw line for the victory. The team had 17 personal fouls.

Following Dziedzic in the scoring column were Jim Elzinga with 12, Kip Cinnamon with 11, Jim Alger and Joe Left with 10 points each, Steve Schuch with seven, Chuck Towsley with four, Tim Left with three, Pat Klooster with two and Scott Swanson with one.

Greg Williams and Paul Elliott scored 14 points each as their team scored 21 field goals and eight of 17 charity shots. Cheboygan had a total of 22 personal fouls.

J.V. Wrestlers Tie for Eighth Place

The Charlevoix JV wrestling team, one of two JV squads entered in the Glen Lake Invitational Take-down tournament last weekend, tied with Elk Rapids for eighth place with a total of 68 points.

Petoskey, with a full squad, took the tournament with 197 points followed by Pine River with 142; Marion with 114; Kalkaska with 109 points; Frankfort with 102 points; Manistee with 85; Glen Lake with 81 and the Traverse City JV's, the only other JV team in the tournament, with 45 points.

Charlevoix came out of the meet with two medal winners, Mark Byard in the 98 pound class placed second and John Cinnamon, in the heavyweight category, third. Other place winners were Lee DeMitchell (105) and Jeff Skelton (112) placed fourth and Dennis Whitley (167) placed fifth.

Others who participated and their weight class follow: Bill Trost (119), Don Trost (126), Rich Borths (132), Hideki Yamazaki (138), Dan Bruce (145), Ande Keller (155) and Greg Loper (185).

With 38 boys out for wrestling, Coach Probert decided to give non-regulars an opportunity to compete on a varsity basis in the Glen Lake tourney Saturday. This tournament offered wrestlers a change of pace where only the takedown was counted.

Varsity Wrestlers to Hold Assembly

Charlevoix Rayder wrestlers with their coach, Norm Probert, traveled to Mancelona Thursday to join a team of Ironmen grapplers in a noon assembly exhibition.

Most of those who made the trip were the less experienced who were upped in weight classes to give the Mancelona wrestlers, new to the sport, a chance of winning.

In previous years, Charlevoix wrestlers have competed with those from schools for the blind and the deaf. In an exhibition of how these handicapped people can participate in the sport of wrestling a Charlevoix wrestler, wearing a blindfold, had no trouble with his opponent. In turn, a Mancelona grappler, Jerry Bunning, wearing the blindfold, pinned his Rayder opponent in 5:20.

Scrimmage results are not usually reported. However, since Hideki Yamazaki, Japanese exchange student, came through with his first mat victory in this country with a pin in 1:51, Coach Probert made an exception and reported it to the press.

Purpose of the meet and the special exhibit with the blindfold was to show students that wrestling is one sport that is for everyone, handicapped or not.

STATE OF MICHIGAN
IN THE CIRCUIT COURT
FOR THE
COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX

In the Matter of the Complaint of Allison Green, State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, for and behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon

To the Circuit Court for the County of CHARLEVOIX

ALLISON GREEN, State Treasurer of the State of Michigan, respectfully shows unto the Court:

1. That he is the State Treasurer of the State of Michigan and makes and files this complaint under, by virtue of and pursuant to the provisions of Act No. 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, as amended, and Act No. 380 of P.A. 1965, as amended.

2. That Schedule A annexed hereto is the tax record required by the act first above mentioned and contains the description of all lands in the aforesaid county upon which taxes, which were assessed for the years mentioned therein, have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent, the description of all lands in said county heretofore bid off in the name of the State and thus held and upon which taxes which were assessed subsequent to the tax for which such lands were sold to the State have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent.

3. That extended separately in said schedule against each description of said lands therein contained are (a) the total amount of delinquent taxes upon said description for the non-payment of which the same may lawfully be sold at the next annual tax sale, (b) interest computed thereon as provided by law to the first day of May, next ensuing, (c) a collection fee of four per cent and (d) $3.00 for expenses, all in accordance with the provisions of the act first above mentioned;

4. That all of the aforesaid taxes, interest and charges are valid, delinquent and unpaid, and have remained delinquent and unpaid for sufficient time to authorize and require, as provided by the foregoing acts, the sale of the aforesaid parcels of land against which they were assessed and are extended in said schedule at the next annual tax sale for the non-payment thereof, and that the said taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses so extended in said schedule against each parcel of land therein described constitute a valid lien upon each of the said several parcels of land described in said schedule as therein and against which extended in favor of the people of the State of Michigan, the payment of which lien this court may enforce as a preferred or first claim upon such lands by the sale thereof.

Wherefore your plaintiff prays

a. That within the time provided by law this court may determine and adjudge that the aforesaid taxes, interest, collection fee and charges are valid and constitute a valid lien upon each of the said several parcels of land described in said schedule as therein extended;

b. That within the time provided by law this court make a final judgment in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of said lands for the payment of the several amounts of taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses, as computed and extended in said schedule against the several parcels of land therein contained;

c. That said judgment provide that in default of the payment so ordered of the said several sums computed and extended against said lands in said schedule, the said several parcels of land, or such interest therein as may be necessary to satisfy the amount adjudged against the same, shall severally be sold as the law provides;

d. That your plaintiff may have such other and further relief in the premises as to this court may seem just and equitable.

And your plaintiff will ever pray, etc.

Swanson Loses Second

Swanson K&D suffered its second loss of the current Independent Basketball season Monday when the "B" League All-Stars chalked up their first win of the season by a score of 68-62.

In a second game Townhouse knocked off Doug Way Oil 80-60.

Despite its loss, however, Swanson's continues to lead the four-team league with a 6-2 record with Townhouse in hot pursuit with a 5-3 record followed by Way Oil 4-4 and All Stars 1-7.

The B. League all-Stars trailed Swanson's 36-31 at halftime and found themselves playing 'catch up' ball as the second half got underway. There were successful in their attempt as they outscored K&D 40-14 to take a one point 51-50 lead going into the final period when they poured in 17 points of 12 for Swanson's to post their first win of the season.

GOD IS AN INEXHAUSTIBLE SOURCE OF POWER

We have been constantly hearing about the "energy crisis", which has resulted in the desperate search for new sources of power, both natural and artificial. Whatever the source, the goal is the continuation of our good life and the further achievements of progress in every aspect of it. Human beings also need a continuing supply of power in order to accomplish their own personal goals, whatever they may be. God is a never-ending source of the power you need, so go to your Church and learn about this unlimited resource that is always available to you.

members would be allowed to give orders to any official or employee, either publicly or privately.

Many have compared the "city-manager plan" to a corporation, where the council serves as the corporation's board of directors and the manager is the company's president or chief executive.

The council, like the board of directors, would be more concerned with establishing policy. Day-to-day business would be handled by the city manager, who would be hired by the council.

Council observers say that under the present system, too much time is spent on routine matters that would normally be handled by the administrator.

They argue that the council should be more involved with charting the city's future and establishing general policy, rather than taking up time at council meetings to talk about a broken sidewalk or curb.

Others have also pointed out that the present administrator has to fight constant council interference with city employees. Under the new proposal, this wouldn't be allowed to take place.

I realize that this problem is a headache for every concerned parent, for the city council and for the mayor. Can anyone come up with a good solution? I believe this to be a "Sixty-four dollar question!"

shanties is moved about as scouts find schools of trout, perch or smelt. Fishing goes on 'round the clock, as laid-off seasonal workers help fill the family larder while fighting the seasonal blahs.

Meanwhile, if the ice is just right and the wind conditions encouraging, ice boaters can be seen setting off from the public boat launch next to Irish Boat Company on Lake Charlevoix.

Ice boater, Bob Schofield asserts he's never had "cabin fever in Charlevoix. "You just have to get outside to keep your sanity, or insanity, whatever," Schofield laughs.

There are about a half dozen ice boaters in Charlevoix, whose machines can theoretically attain speeds three times wind velocity. Mandatory safety gear of gloves, goggles and crash helmets, protect these hardy sailors from flying ice chips and the occasional tip over.

Not too much snow and good clear ice are the prerequisites for ice boating.

Meanwhile, the sled dog races pray for their definition of "perfect conditions": a good snow base, with powder on top. Kalkaska's Midwest International Sled Dog Championships on February 7th and 8th are thrilling spectator sport.

A whole family endeavor, the sled dog races include children's races, for a one-dog team, as well as multi-dog team races for women and men. There's an atmosphere of easy-going yet serious competition, which is enhanced by the outgoing malamutes, huskies and other sled dogs, who are bred for their good manners.

The same weekend, February 7 and 8, ringside sportsmen can watch the Michigan Outdoor Speedskating Championships in Petoskey.

If snowmobiling is too noisy and all other alternatives too energetic, the cabin fever sufferer could consider a sleighride, bundled in warm blankets, behind a team of Driggetts horses, contemplating the myriad joys of living in northern Michigan, instead of fighting tourists and mosquitoes in Florida or the Caribbean.

Plane Lands in Area Corn Field

An experienced Traverse City pilot landed his small training plane without incident in a cornfield south of here Saturday morning according to Charlevoix county Sheriff's officers.

Hogan A Helms, 50, flying instructor at Northwestern Michigan College, said he was piloting the training plane owned by the flying school at the college on a routine flight with Charlevoix as his destination when he discovered the engine was not receiving a full supply of fuel. When he could not gain altitude, he came down under high voltage lines along the Marion Center road and landed in a snow-covered cornfield on the Joe Martinchek farm 600 yards from the highway a mile south of the city limits.

Hearing the plane come down at approximately 10:15 a.m., residents of the area reached the site on snowmobiles, found the pilot uninjured and the plane undamaged. After surveying the situation, the group rounded up toboggans, placed the wheels of the plane on them and, with the aid of six snowmobiles, towed the plane to the highway.

Sheriff's deputies who had arrived at the site guided a snowmobile driven by Glenn Crain and its tow to the Charlevoix airport where it was checked over for any damage and took on fuel before returning to Traverse City.

Hogan said that he believed that the fuel line has started to freeze because of the near-zero weather, causing the fuel supply to be cut off.

Lions Plan Dinner

The Charlevoix Lions Club will observe its annual Charter Night at a social hour and dinner to be held at the Grey Gables Inn on Saturday evening.

The social hour is scheduled for 7 p.m. Dinner will follow at 8 p.m. in the new banquet facility at the Inn.

Tom LaBlance, Bill Supernaw and Steve Ager compose the charter night committee.

Guests at the dinner will be the members wives.

Blood Drive Successful

The recent Bloodmobile held here Thursday proved to be the most successful in recent months according to Mrs. David Fowler, chairman, who reported that 176 people people responded to the call for blood.

A total of 157 units were donated by area residents, seven over the quota of 150 units, Mrs. Fowler said. Of the 179 who responded, 19 were deferred for various reasons such as colds, medication and similar reasons.

Among the donors were 51 first time donors. Among these were 18 high school students.

In reporting the results of the Bloodmobile visit to the Assembly of God Church on Thursday, Mrs. Fowler said the results were most gratifying. She mentioned especially the 51 first time donors and the high school students. "More and more of our young people are becoming aware of the reason for the Bloodmobile and are responding to the need" she said of this group.

Mrs. Fowler and Mrs. Robert Tollas, co-chairman, expressed their appreciation to all donors and to all those who worked to make the visit of the Bloodmobile a success.

8 Attend Clinic

Forty-five Charlevoix County officials and employees attended the Blood Pressure clinic sponsored at the county building recently by District Health Department No. 3 Gerald Chase of the department has announced.

Of this number, eight were referred to their physicians. Half of the number were already being treated and the others were borderline cases, Chase said.

To date the Health Department has screened approximately 1,400 people.

Score One for Charlevoix Taxpayers---We Think

By KEN WINTER

A tax collection switch will cost city coffers nearly $3,000, but the savings will be passed on to Charlevoix taxpayers.

The apparent clerical "oversight" occurred last summer when city fathers agreed to levy 50 percent of school taxes in the summer. School taxes are normally collected in the winter.

City Council agreed to make the change after local school officials said the action would save them from having to borrow against anticipated taxes.

Schools usually find themselves in a financial pinch until their taxes are collected in the winter.

No one is really sure who is to blame and whether there is any blame to be placed for not tacking on the one percent collection fee the city normally gets for picking up the school taxes.

"We've never collected the one percent on our own taxes," said Acting City Administrator Robert Wexstaff.

So when the city agreed to collect half of the school tax in the summer with the city's taxes, Wexstaff says no one thought about picking up a one percent collection fee.

"I don't think the Council understood the mechanics, no one would unless they got involved with it," Wexstaff continued.

City Treasurer Annabelle Cunningham confirmed Wexstaff's observation.

"Nobody gave it a second thought," the city treasurer added.

"I'm not so sure there should be a fee on it anyway."

While admitting the collection fee would have been to the city's advantage, Miss Cunningham said collecting the school tax in the summer is really no trouble.

"In some ways collecting the taxes early has its advantages," she said.

"We're all set up for it anyway."

If the collection fee was supposed to be on the bills, the city treasurer said it would have had to come from the direction of the city assessor, board of review and city equalization board.

World's Largest Cherry Pie Makes Local Debut May 15

By TOM DAMMANN

The world's largest-ever cherry pie will be baked here in a special oven at Medusa Cement Company on Saturday, May 15.

It will weigh close to ten tons, according to Dave Phillips, proprietor of the Grey Gables Restaurant, who sired the monstrous project.

A combination Bicentennial celebration and inauguration of Michigan Week 1976, it is hoped that hundreds of special education students from around the state will accept invitations to watch the historic proceedings.

In any case, the ghosts of George Washington and Paul Bunyan are expected to hover about to enjoy an event calculated to put Charlevoix on the map, hopefully not with a splash to be heard 'round the world.

Plans were discussed at a meeting last week observed by representatives of the local and national news media.

Participants were: Elbert Kaiser, Manager of theMedusa plant here; Charles F. Krott, Vice President, Will-Flow Incorporated; Marvin Blandford, General Manager, Frost Pack Distributing Co., Petoskey; Larry C. Levengood, representing Health Department District 3; Mrs. Jacqui Merta, Executive Director Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce; and Jim Shepard, Superintendent, Char-Em Intermediate School District.

All-Out Support

Kaiser announced that he has received all-out support from his immediate superior David Somes, Vice President of Production in Medusa's home office in Cleveland, Ohio.

Kaiser said that he has been authorized to build a special oven of fire brick to be heated by propane gas. It will be 18¼ feet in diameter and capable or receiving the pie in its 14 foot diameter, two foot deep tin, nesting in a cradle.

Will-Flow will fabricate the tin, from stainless steel, making it "probably the most expensive pie tin every built," according to Kratt.

Phillips advised that Hufford Industries, which was unable to be represented at the meeting, will build the 16¼ foot diameter cradle.

Jim Shepard agreed to send invitations to special education officials throughout the state.

Big Eyes

"I can't wait to see those kids' eyes light up as we lift that pie into the oven," Phillips remarked. He added that plans are being prepared to put on a professional variety show to entertain the audience during the approximately two hours required for baking the pie. Announcements will be made as those plans take shape, he said.

He said he anticipates some 5 to 10 thousand people will be on hand that day, and that he hopes to borrow bleachers from the school system to seat them.

Sheriff Philo Summer, who could not attend, had advised him that he could handle the auto traffic, parking and crowd, providing he had sufficient warning.

Larry Levengood said the Health Department will supervise the facilities, preparation, cooking and distribution of the pie after it is removed from the oven, as well as sanitation accomodations on the scene.

As the plans were discussed it became obvious that the event will require as much engineering as culinary prowess.

Special Chefs

The program will begin at 9 a.m., at the site, Phillips said.

Canned cherries will be supplied by local cherry packers including Sherman Canning Co., East Jordan and the Elk Rapids Canning Co. Lemons have been promised by the Hasen Produce Co., of Traverse City. Blandford said Frost Pack will coordinate the gathering of flour, sugar, cornstarch and shortening needed.

Phillips said chefs from Chef Pierre in Traverse City will help him work out the formula for the 20,000 pound pie.

"After all they make thousands of pies every year, so with the assistance of a computer we ought to be able to work it out," he explained.

A special platform made of plywood supplied by Kit Carson Lumber Co., will be built, on which the pie crust will be rolled.

First the dough will be made in a carefully sanitized cement mixer. It will then be carried to the platform covered with sanitized plastic, in sanitized wheel barrows.

The dough will be laid out in a long narrow strips and flattened by ordinary lawn rollers pushed by men walking along side of the strips, using sanitized plastic shoes.

The pushers will remain on the platform until the last strip is rolled, so that their shoes will not become contaminated.

Fork lifts will then carry the strips of dough for laying within the tin.

Simultaneously, the canned cherries will be poured into a spanking new dump truck supplied by Erber auto. The truck will also be lined with sanitized plastic.

A large steel pot will be used for heating the filling of cherry juice, lemon juice, sugar and cornstarch. When the mixture is ready the fork lift will swing the pot to the dump truck and pour it into the cherries. Workers will then stir it with sanitized shovels.

Dump Trucks

The dump truck will deposit the mess into the tin and new strips of crust will be laid over the top.

The final operation will be the sprinkling of an egg wash and sugar over the top crust from one of the city's "cherry pickers" (pardon the expression) used to trim and prune trees along the city's streets.

A crane will then lift the cradle-tin-pie into the oven, heated to 350 degrees.

Some two hours later it will be removed from the oven. After it has "cooled" the pie will be dished into containers with sanitized shovels, of the ground-breaking variety, and passed among the thousands of onlookers for eating.

And a new record will have been established, qualifying it for entry in the "Guiness Book of Records", according to a letter from the publisher.

In fact, it was the possibility of scoring in the "Guinness Book of Records" which inspired the project in the first place, Phillips disclosed.

Last year, after the success of the Grey Gables record album, an employee suggested the Phillips try to set some sort of a record.

The employee was, coincidentally, Steve Hufford, son of Walter Hufford, one of the owners of Hufford Industries.

Phillips perused the current "Guinness" and found that the largest meat pie ever baked was a five and three quarter ton, eighteen by six foot, eighteen inch deep one executed in England in 1964. The largest mince pie, also baked in England, weighed 2,260 pounds and was made 44 years ago. There were also a record pizza and a record omlet.

"But no fruit pie," Phillips observed, adding that in these other instances, the cooking had been performed in stages and sections.

"This pie will be baked all on one piece," Phillips said.

"I'll believe it when I see it," interrupted his six year old son, Bryan, during a recent interview.

But it was a remark to which his father has become impervious, outwardly at least.

Charlevoix Federal Credit Union Requests Zoning for New Building

Charlevoix Federal Credit Union took its first official steps towards creating new offices Monday with a request to re-zone property on the corner of Petoskey and Burns.

The local credit union asked city fathers to set up a public hearing on changing the zoning from the present R-2 (multiple housing) to a Restricted Office District classification.

Attorney Michael Gibbons said that the credit union hopes to construct a 2,000 sq. foot building to serve as its new offices.

The credit union is presently located in a professional office building on Bridge Street.

Although plans are only in their preliminary stages, councilmen were able to view a site plan presented by Charlevoix architect Hans Wiemer.

Gibbons said the office would be open weekdays from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., with business conducted primarily through phone and mail, as well as premise visits.

The credit union attorney presented council with a petition signed by 12 neighbors who had no objections to the project.

A hearing was set for February 23.

In other business Monday night, council:

–Agreed to hire the Chamber of Commerce for $750 to help with the Michigan Amateur Golf Tournament in Charlevoix from June 21 to 26.

–Approved the use of East Park for Chamber of Commerce activities. The dates included the 8th annual Lakeside Hobbycraft Show on July 10, Venetian Festival on July 23-25, and the Waterfront Art Fair on August 14.

–Agreed to allow a Mardi Gras parade to be held Friday night, February 27, on Bridge and Clinton Streets beginning at 8 p.m. and lasting for 45 minutes.

–Approved a lot split at the corner of Nettleton and Dixon.

–Established March 22 as the public hearing date for the new city zoning ordinance.

–Received a letter from attorney Arthur Reibel indicating he represents a citizen's group that opposes the construction of a second phase at Wharf Condominiums.

–Received a letter from attorneys for Richard Way, a local developer, asking about the city's portion of paying for utilities and streets in Westport subdivision.

Plant Expansion Nears Completion

Midwest North's plant expansion program is nearly completed, according to William Roloff, plant and manufacturing manager for the local division of Ron Pair Enterprises, Inc.

A Detroit-based firmed involved in the manufacturing of environmental dust control equipment, Midwest North relocated its manufacturing facility to Charlevoix in April, 1974.

Last September, the company held ground-breaking ceremonies for the expansion of its existing facility at 105 Stover Road by the construction of a 15,000 square foot addition.

Roloff, a relatively new resident of Charlevoix, has headed Midwest's manufacturing operations for several years, including the Detroit-based operation prior to its relocation to Charlevoix.

"Midwest's move to Northern Michigan was largely due to managements desire to become a part of a small closely knit community," Roloff said.

Prior to joining Midwest, Roloff worked 15 years with Huron Cement Company. He worked several years as plant manager in Buffalo and later in Detroit before joining Midwest.

Roloff and his family live at 100 Hampton Street.

Average Income Climbs to $10,000

To what extent has the rising cost of living affected residents of Charlevoix County during the last five years?

How large an income does a local family have to have these days to equal the purchasing power it had in 1970?

A great deal more, according to data obtained from the Conference Board, the Department of Labor and others.

In the five-year period, they show, the purchasing power of the dollar eroded by more than 23 cents, continuing the long-time trend in that direction. In terms of the 1949 dollar, for example, it is now worth only 48 cents.

Added to the unrelenting rise in the cost of goods and services has been the increase in taxes, especially for Social Security.

All in all, the average family needs to be making nearly 40 percent more than it did five years ago to maintain the same standard of living.

For Charlevoix County families that had an income of $6,500 in 1970, approximately $9,100 would be required today. Those that had $8,500 then need $11,900 now. Those in the $10,000 bracket have to have $14,000 and the ones at the $15,000 level, $21,000.

Fortunately for most local families, their incomes did rise sharply in the last five years, reaching an average of $10,020 per household by 1975, compared with $8,006 in 1970. It was an increase of 25 percent.

The gains they made enabled them to offset the rising cost of living better than families in many parts of the country.

The big losers in the race with inflation include wage earners whose paychecks haven't kept pace, those who are on fixed pensions and welfare recipients.

A study by the Conference Board, covering the past 10 years, shows that taxes continue to absorb a rising share or personal income, about 23 percent today.

Social Security contributions constituted the fastest growing segment of the total tax, shooting up 283 percent in the 10 years. State and local taxes went up 266 percent, it finds, and Federal income taxes, 170 percent.

Judges' Salaries

I was disappointed to read that the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners will not be able to supplement our local judges' salaries. For the last few years we have had to put up with some questionable justice in this town. Now we have what I think are excellent judges and we aren't going to compensate them for a job well done. I've noticed in the Petoskey paper that Emmet County is providing a salary supplement. Why aren't we. One of the judges is even from Charlevoix. I hope the Charlevoix Board of Commissioners changes their mind.

Davis Editorial

Your editorial on our Senator Bob was well put. The new single business tax is going to put a lot of us small business owners in the hole. I can hardly believe that our own Northern Michigan senator would even consider backing a tax that would hurt his district so much. I certainly hope he is able to make some changes so we won't get hurt so much.

Governor's Visit

I was surprised to learn that Michigan Governor William Milliken is coming to Charlevoix County. I think this is a honor not paid too often by a large political office holder. People are always complaining that no one will ever listen to us up here. We need to demonstrate our interest by showing the governor we care. Even though it is a political event, I hope as many people as possible show up.

Plowing

In case you haven't noticed, our city streets have been in pretty good shape compared to other communities. I hope people take the time to let our street crews know how much their hard work is appreciated. I for one would hate to go out in the early morning hours and plow a street. Many thanks.

BUYING DIAMONDS – INTELLIGENTLY
John Reusch
When judging the quality of a diamond we use the four "C"s - color clarity, carat weight, and cut. Color is the most notable.
Stones that are slightly less white may be called commercial white or top cape. When they get a little yellowish they are called dark cape. As long as a stone "faces up" reasonably white it is likely to be sold as a white stone.
You often hear the term blue white applied to diamonds. This is a misleading term due to the fact that a blue white diamond is a rare stone, and many people gave paid a premium for a stone that was sold as blue white, when it was actually light yellow.
At Reusch Jewelry we have an approved set of master grading diamonds to show you the variations in color.

JOSEPH S. SEIDEL (left) receives notice of Army ROTC Scholarship from Lieut. Colonel Albert Steffen.

Seidel Earns Scholarship

Joseph F. Seidel, Charlevoix High School senior, has been awarded a four-year Army ROTC College Scholarship.

The scholarship was awarded last week by Lieut. Colonel Albert Steffen, professor of Military Science at Lake Superior State College.

Under the scholarship, Seidel may attend any one of over 280 colleges and universities in the country. Depending on the school, the scholarship may be worth as much as $11,000.

Seidel is the son of Lieut. Colonel (Ret.) Francis and Mrs. Seidel of Marion Center Road. He is an Eagle Scout and has been active as a junior assistant scoutmaster.

Selection of Army ROTC Scholarship winners is based on the results of the individual's Scholastic Aptitude (SAT) or American College Test (ACT) scores, high school academic record, and extracurricular or athletic activities. The applicant must also appear before a board of military officers for an interview. Approximately 12,000 students competed for the 1,000 four-year scholarships last year.

The Army will pay for Seidel's college tuition, books and other fees. He will also receive a tax-free allowance of $100 each month while he is in school, and when he graduates from college he will be commissioned as an officer in the Army with a starting salary of over $10,000 a year and a guaranteed job.

Local Boy Scouts Hold Klondike Derby

Five Boy Scout troops were in Petoskey recently for the 1976 Northern District Klondike Derby held at the Fairgrounds.

All five placed in the competition in which Scouts displayed their outdoor skills including tent pitching, fire building, First Aid, animal identification, map and compass reading, sled judging and Scout skills. The construction of an igloo by each patrol was an added feature at this year's Derby.

The three patrols of Boy Scout Troop 11, their membership and rating follow: Owl patrol, Mitch Martin, patrol leader, David Buday, Paul Stangis, Willie Rander and Rex Young, second place; Eagle Patrol, Donald Avery, patrol leader, Jim Landon, Pat Avery, Bill Horton and Steve Young, third place; Wolverine patrol, Allen Muma, patrol leader, Mike Paul, George Smith and Joe Smith, third place.

Adults accompanying Troop 11 were Scout Master Louis Edwards, Assistant Scout Master, John Houting, Jerry Paul, Alvin Ranger and Steve Schuch.

Troop 43 sent one patrol, the Beaver Patrol, with Joe Seidel as patrol leader. Its membership was composed of Francis Pischner, Greg Dixon, Ed Sarasin and Tom Leonard which placed second. Roger Pischner accompanied the troop.

The Weblo Den, made up of boys who are through with the Cub Scout program and are preparing to enter the Scouting program, placed second in the competition. The members were John Spieles, Bill Dohm, Glenn Smith, Chris Putman and Mike Baer. Dave Novotny accompanied the troop.

The Derby was held in zero weather.

Charlevoix Gearing Up For February Mardi Gras

There are only a few days left before Charlevoix service clubs must submit their candidates for the 1976 Mardi Gras King and Queen contest.

Local clubs are being asked to provide the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce with names of their candidates by February 1, so the nominations can be included on the official Mardi Gras ballot.

The ballots will then be distributed to various local businesses, where residents will be able to vote for their candidates.

The king and queen selection is the first major event leading up to Charlevoix's Mardi Gras planned for February 27.

Chamber officials met last week to begin wrapping up last minute details for the gala event.

The event is expected to get underway Friday, February 27, with the crowning of the Queen and King in the Market at 7:30 p.m.

Following the crowning on Friday night, the new royalty will lead a street parade from Belvedere to Bridge Street and then to Clinton.

Following the parade, celebrations are expected to take place in local restaurants, as well as private homes.

Saturday activities get underway with the judging of snow sculptures. More details on that event will be released later. The Charlevoix Courier and WVOY will be offering a $50 cash prize for the best sculpture.

At [illegible] p.m. Saturday, ski competition will be held at Mt. McSauba with individual winners receiving awards being given by the Grey Gables.

Cross country events are also being planned.

Activities continue on Sunday with the Lion's Club annual Winter Outing.

The Charlevoix service clubs will sponsor a Sunday afternoon of winter events ranging from snowmobile to sack races.

Chamber officials say they are asking local schools to participate by holding poster contests in each of the three schools.

Students will be asked to make posters featuring a Bicentennial-Mardi Gras theme. Ribbons will be awarded to the top three posters in each building.

Mardi Gras pins will also go on sale in early February for 50 cents, with the money going toward supporting other chamber-sponsored events.

Money earned from votes for king and queen candidates will go toward completion of the band shell in East Park.

Saginaw Savings Changes Name

"Family Federal Savings and Loan Association" is the new name of Saginaw Savings and Loan Association, which has offices in Charlevoix and 14 other cities in Michigan.

The change in name of the Association, one of Michigan's oldest and largest financial institutions, was announced at a press luncheon last week in Saginaw. At that time Family Federal Savings' president, Fred G. Theuer, received the Association's new charter from Dr. Joseph R. Ewers, president of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Indianapolis, the federal agency that issues savings and loan charters.

"Family Federal Savings is the name that best describes our response to the increased need to provide financial services to the predominant customer unit, which is the family," said Theuer.

"Our game plan is highly pro-consumer oriented," he added, "and what better name than Family Federal Savings could spotlight this objective."

Family Federal Savings becomes the largest savings and loan institution in Northern Michigan to acquire federal chartering. Founded in 1888, the Association has four offices in Saginaw and branches in Alma, Frankenmuth, Freeland, Vassar, Hemlock, St. Charles, Clio, Gaylord, Mt. Pleasant and Rogers City, as well as Charlevoix.

Family Federal Savings' total assests now exceed $230 million. The Association currently has over 50,000 savings accounts and 10,000 loan accounts.

Among the many loan services offered by Family Federal Savings are home loans, open-end mortgages, construction loans and installment loans.

Savings programs include passbook accounts, certificates of deposit, automatic savings deposits, telephone transfer accounts, individual retirement accounts and direct deposit of pension, social security, annuity and dividend checks.

The Association also provides Transmatic services, Keogh accounts, free American Express money orders, traveler's checks, drive-in windows, corporate accounts and free notary public service.

Family Federal Savings' Charlevoix office is located at 207 Bridge Street. Robert Hicks is manager of the office and he is assisted by Joyce Wells and Deanne Potter.

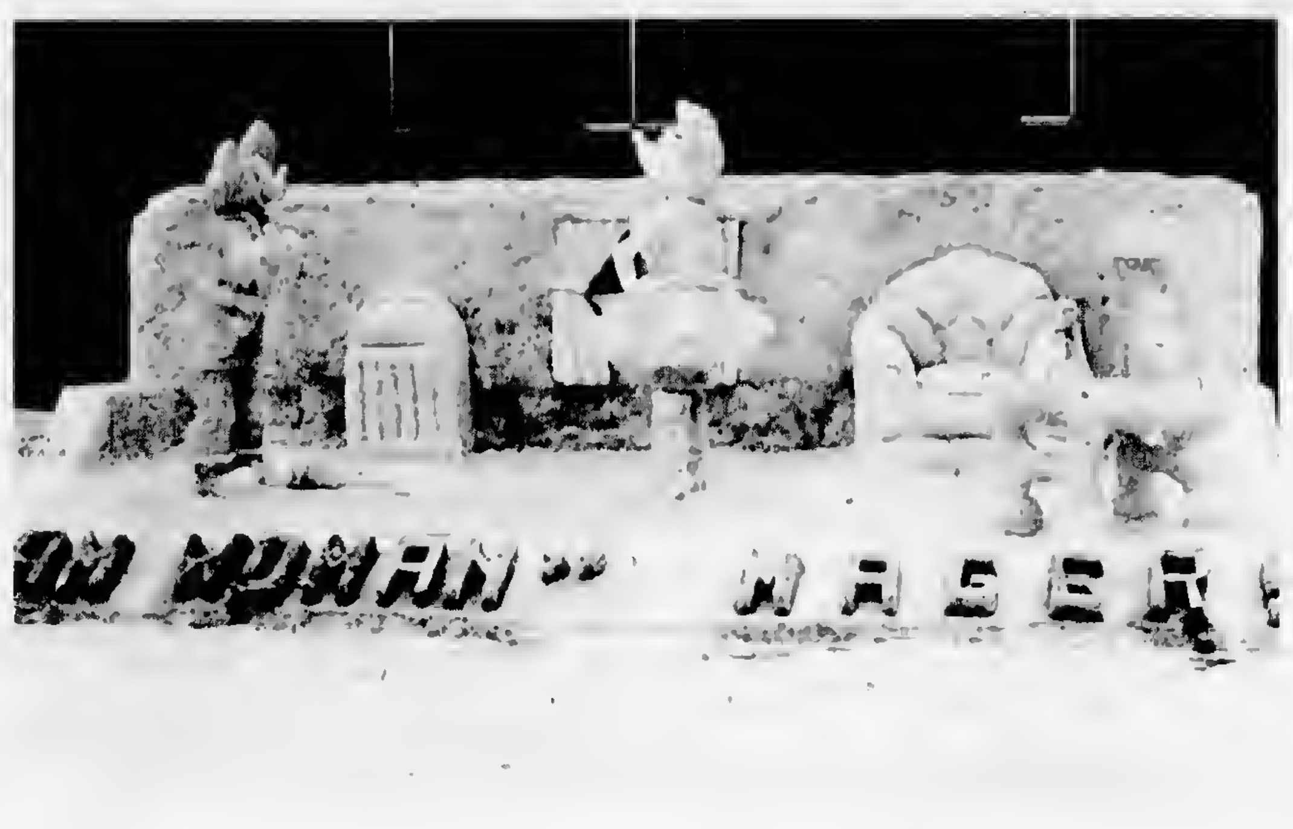
The Second Front Page



THIS SNOW SCULPTURE was entered in a recent contest at Northern Michigan University. It is an example of the more elaborate type of design that can be made with snow and slush and carving tools.

Think Snow...Think Sculpture

One of the features of the Third Annual Winter Mardi Gras will be a snow sculpturing contest, sponsored by the Courier and Radio Station WVOY.

While Mardi Gras is still almost a month away, persons considering entering the contest might like to know a little about snow sculpturing.

First, snow sculpturing is not a new art. It dates back to the time when someone conceived the idea of rolling large balls of snow and making the balls into "snowmen." Another ancient form of sculpturing from snow are the "forts" made by children by tunneling through snow banks.

When snow sculpturing became an art form is not known, but it was included in the activities at the Dartmouth College Winter Carnival of 1928. Today, such contests are part of winter carnivals in all areas of the country where weather permits.

Northern Michigan University's winter carnival, called the "Winfester" always has many snow sculpturing entries which are works of art and science. Contestants are given as long as two weeks to build the entries and they receive more points for winning in, or just entering, the contest than for any other Winterfest activity, including skiing and ice skating.

Contestants are given some hints on making snow sculptures, starting with the basic snow piling.

During this stage, large masses of snow should be placed in appropriate locations and scale roughly in accordance with the design (a design for the sculpture is drawn before the actual snow piling starts).

The snow is added in layers of six inches to one foot and sprayed with water to form a snow-ice composition. Sheets of plywood can be used as "forms" for this phase of the build up.

Then comes the "roughing out" state, when the snow masses are like large lumps of marble. Carving can now proceed to shape the basic elements of design, using axes, machette knives and shovels to carve the snow-ice composition.

Finishing of the sculpture is done just before the contest. All detail is applied at this time – such work as fine carving and applying "slush" (snow-water mixture) for all special features and to smooth the entire sculpture.

If a base is required, it should be the final part of the sculpture to be carved out. For a 12-inch base, the whole sculpture should be built with a 12-inch extension of snow-ice during the actual bottom of the design.

There are several basic criteria for successfully making snow sculptures, many of them obvious. These are lots of snow, cold weather, energy enthusiasm, places for workers to warm up, plenty of time for construction, avoidance of a winter thaw, a theme, motivation and good organization.

In the latter category construction crews are suggested. These would be snow haulers, snow pilers, snow slushers, carvers, etc. A good piece of advice is to let the artists direct and do the details. There is a job for everyone, regardless of skill or ability.

Ruppe Aide To Visit Community

Jerry Newhouse, Lower Peninsula district representative for Congressman Philip E. Ruppe, will hold office hours in Charlevoix at the County Building, Wednesday, January 28, from 12 noon until 1 o'clock.

Any area citizen wishing to discuss a matter involving the Federal government is invited to talk with Mr. Newhouse at that time.

No prior appointment is necessary.

Lincoln Day Dinner Plans Finalized

Sale of tickets for Governor Milliken's Lincoln Day dinner February 5 in Boyne City will be discontinued this coming weekend, according to Thora Kotowich of East Jordan, general chairman.

Tickets may be obtained through advance sale only because the dinner is to be catered. No tickets will be sold at the door.

The dinner and Goveror Milliken's Lincoln Day address will be held in the Boyne City High School gymnasium at 7 p.m. Congressman Philip E. Ruppe will introduce the Governor and the Epsilon Jass Band with Jeanie Harrison will entertain during dinner. The reception will be held prior to the dinner at Anthony's Inn, formerly the Dilworth hotel.

The underwriting of a portion of dinner tickets costs for interested high school students by a number of Petoskey and Charlevoix County donors has been an unusual feature of the ticket sale in the past week, resulting in a virtual sell-out.

Cutter Sundew Heads North

Charlevoix's Coast Guard cutter Sundew is in Whitefish Bay in Lake Superior.

The Sundew is relieving the Coast Guard cutter Mackinaw of its duties as Commander Task Unit, Whitefish Bay, a function of "Operation Taconite".

The cutter Mackinaw has been diverted to the St. Clair River to clear a massive ice jam with reported thicknesses of up to eight feet. Two other Coast Guard cutters are in that area attempting to free the jam.

"Operation Taconite" is the code name for a five-year study of the feasilibity of year-round navigation between the taconite plants of western Lake Superior and the steel mills of lower Lake Michigan and Lake Erie.

Participants in this study include the Lake Carriers Association, U.S. Steel and the Coast Guard, who supply the ice breaking assistance.

Last winter, navigation was successfully kept open in the major ice areas of Whitefish Bay, the St. Mary's River and the Straits of Mackinac.

Sports Store Closes

Portside Sports is the latest Charlevoix business to run into financial difficulty.

The corporation is indebted to the Charlevoix County State Bank in the amount of $5,472.60, plus interest, and the bank has a secured interest in all inventory and equipment carried for operation of the corporation.

Portside recently held an auction of all equipment and inventory, the proceeds from which amounted to $4,424.18, which funds will be used to pay the bank.

Portside Sports also owes over $32,000 to 48 other creditors. Attorneys for the corporation say it appears that bankruptcy proceedings will be filed in the near future.

School Bond Issue Needs Your Support

It's always easy for a newspaper to sit back on the sidelines and lend its support to community issues without having to suffer the consequences.

But in the case of Charlevoix Public School's bond proposal, the outcome of the March 22 election will be shared by everyone.

We're almost embarrassed that our local school board and educators have to spend the time they do every year convincing local residents that better facilities are needed.

We think the $2.8 million bond proposal being offered for consideration is a reasonable request and will do all we can to support the proposal.

Many argue that economic times are uncertain and they just don't see where another penny can be squeezed out of weekly paychecks to support the schools.

However, we're not convinced that the economic stress people complain about is as deeply rooted as people would like others to believe.

Many local businesses may not have the pots of gold they enjoyed several years ago during Charlevoix's boom, hut most are making enough to keep operating.

Although Charlevoix County is suffering from high unemployment, much of this is no different from other years in this resort-oriented community.

To us, the real issue at hand is how much do Charlevoix taxpayers want to support local schools.

Local educators have demonstrated to us that they are doing the best job they can with what is available.

And, true, physical facilities don't mean everything, but we think they play a significent role in a good learning environment.

At the present time, the final costs of the proposed remodeling and construction program have not been finalized.

However, local school board members do have a fairly concrete idea of what they want.

Our primary interest is what the district is proposing to do with the middle school.

Built in 1927, the building is outmoded and desperately needs to be replaced.

School officials estimate renovation of the existing facility would cost $386,000. A new building would cost an estimated $654,000. Fees, equipment and interest would bring the total to $1.3 million.

The renovation would include replacement of heating and ventilation at a cost of $100,000 and the electrical system at a cost of $80,000; conversion of two science and shop rooms to shop and music rooms, $22,000, plus renovation of both exterior and interior of the building.

New construction would be the building of a new gymnasium at an estimated cost of $192,000; remodeling of the existing gymnasium to two science areas, two classrooms, administrative offices, and instructional media center; new kitchen addition, elevator and basement elevator passage and related construction.

There is no question in our mind that improving the middle school facility is imperative and must be supported.

Already filled to capacity, the high school also needs some improvements.

School officials hope to create four new classrooms through additions and remodeling between building A and B. They also hope to construct a metal shop and multi-purpose and locker room area.

The remodeling program would include the Home Economics, Special Education Departments and the General Education area to Business and Arts and Crafts, expansion of the Counselor area plus carpeting in the classrooms and corridors. This proposed program would cost an estimated $1.5 million.

Both the middle and high school projects are projected to cost $2.8 million.

Although the bond issues won't be considered until March 22, we don't think it is too early to consider them.

Flyer Says Thanks

To the Editor:

I would like to extend my heartfelt thanks to all the persons in your area who were so helpful in the unfortunate circumstances that precipitated an emergency landing of our Cessna plane one and one-half miles south of the Charlevoix Airport on 17 January.

Our thanks to the Crains and the Potters, the man who owned the land, their neighbors and the many whose names I did not know, who furnished the snowmobiles and sleds to haul us out of the field.

To the Sheriff's Department, especially Roger Moses, who furnished the escort on the highway to the airport —a special thank you.

Our mechanic flew to Charlevoix, fixed the plane, and we flew it back to Traverse City. With a little skill and lots of luck, there were no injuries to my student nor myself and no damage to the plane.

Again, my sincere appreciation to all the people who gave so generously of their time and effort.

Charter Commission

The men who took on the responsibility of writing a document which would be accepted by a young nation, populated by persons of many different interests, must have had a providential hand guiding them. Not before those times had the opportunity arisen to create a whole new concept of government, if they could agree upon what kind of government they really wanted.

There were those who felt that only an elite group should guide the interests of the nation and there were those who felt that the common man had a good enough grasp of what was needed for his security and need not be overly dictated to by some distant bureau.

Those originators of the Declaration of Independence and, finally, the Constitution of the United States had little to go on in design for the script of a new government; plenty of theory, but little real precedence. One thing they did have that they agreed upon and that was the desire to keep the individual citizen as involved in the power of the government as was reasonably possible without forfeiting order.

The nine men elected by the citizens of Charlevoix have no less an awesome responsibility to provide a document which will give to the people an orderly government of their public affairs and still maintain the person to person contact between voter and representative.

These nine men of Charlevoix were no less diversified in their ideas of good government than were the original group. They do have the advantage, however, of studying literally hundreds of other communities which have experienced the same sort of needs.

Now that we have entered into the Bicentennial Year of our great nation we are feeling a new excitement at the thought of establishing a charter which will not only serve our people well in the years to come, but will also make their city government more directly responsive to their thoughts and criticisms.

Before long the Commission will be presenting sections of the proposed charter to the public for their observations. This will be done through the media as well as by presentation at public gatherings. For the time being, let it be known that the members of the commission are agreed closely on these points:

a. Our city government should be representative of the voters in their own area.

b. The representatives and the citizens should have the opportunity to address problems "eye to eye", in an informal atmosphere.

c. The body elect (council) should set policy for city government and supervise its execution.

d. The mechanics of administration and operation should be a business-like affair with the benefit of the taxpayers always in mind.

Red Cross Successful

Dear Ken:

Many thanks for the publicity you gave our visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile a week ago. Special attention to those students giving blood was deserving (18 of them) and also to 33 other first time donors.

It takes many people to organize a Bloodmobile visit. Special thanks go to the Assembly of God Church for donating their facility, to Pastor Schorsch for finding unloaders and helping to re-load the van, and to the gals from the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority who organized and staffed the Canteen for the entire day. They really worked hard. Their thanks, as well as ours, go to Edward's IGA, Essenburg's Grocery, Oleson's Food Store, Neff's Market, Staley's Market and the Village Milk House. These merchants again generously supplied all the goodies needed to supply the Canteen for the day.

We are required to supplement the Red Cross nursing staff with Charlevoix nurses on Bloodmobile Day. Again, the RN's and LPN's from our area willingly donated their time. We thank them and Mrs. Roger Roznoski whose task it was to schedule them.

Also helping us out with publicity were the Community Calendars of the area television station and radio stations. WJML and WVOY were both great about providing public service announcements as well.

Finally we'd like to thank the 157 successful donors and the 19 who received their "I tried" stickers. Without these people there could be no Bloodmobile visit and we really appreciate their efforts which enabled us to "go over our quota by seven pints.

Sincerely yours,
Charlevoix Community

Humphrey is a Phony

My newest hero is Paul Covey Jr., a 21-year-old resident of South Euclid, Ohio. I admire him more than I do many more famous people, such as Hubert Humphrey, the fourflusher.

Covey was recently arrested for reckless driving and hauled into the police station. The cops said he could make 1 phone call.

Covey phoned the Vatican and asked for the Pope.

Now that's class. When seeking help, why not go right to the top? A lesser man might have phoned his parish priest.

The cops began to wonder why Covey was on the phone so long – over 5 minutes. They picked up an extension and heard him pleading his case to one of the Pope's emissaries. If he couldn't talk directly to the Pope, he said, he wanted to be connected with the Cardinal in charge of praying off traffic tickets.

At this point the conversation was terminated by law and Covey was informed he would have to pay the toll charge. Which he did. Which brings us to Hubert Humphrey, who didn't.

You must have heard the rather amazing news that Humphrey is generally favored to win the Democratic nomination for President this year. Which is certainly a telling measurement of the quality of the candidates and the depth of the Chappaquidick.

Most people thought Humphrey was finally done with White House yearnings after he failed to win the nomination in 1972. Humphrey obviously thought so himself because he didn't bother paying his 1972 campaign debts.

It is common for losing politicians to weasel on debts. Hotel bills, advertising bills, airline bills, loans from supporters and so on. Why pay them if they didn't purchase victory?

But didn't Mother always say that was stealing? Would Happy Hubert steal? Do we really need another crook in the Oval Room?

It was just last month that Humphrey decided to do something about those 4-year-old bills. He still owed a whopping $900,000, a dirty fact which might be used against him in the 1976 campaign. So he paid off – 4 cents on the dollar. His creditors were gypped out of over $800,000. They had to agree to the settlement because Humphrey insisted there was no way he could pay up in full. Besides, Hubert might get elected this time and it doesn't hurt to be able to say to the President: "Hey Humph, remember that time I wrote off that $150,000 you owed me? Well, here's what I'd like you to do..."

Sorry, but phooey. Mother was right. When a man doesn't pay his debts he's a thief, just as surely as a bank robber. And when a U.S. Senator does it, without a blink, you know the status of the White-collar criminal has reached a height on par with sainthood. Raggedy muggers are crooks. Well-dressed welshers are modern princes to be admired for their lofty goals, rather than condemned for their cruddy morals.

It all saddens me because I used to be a Humphrey fan. He was my kind of liberal, even if he did talk like a water fountain run amok. I figured he was for the little guy and certainly he wouldn't condone the type of lopsided justice which pardons a Richard Nixon and sends the 2-bit burglar to prison. Now I learn he not only condones it, he used it to grease his way around cut corners.

Paul Covey has class. He went for the Pope and failed, but he paid the freight. Humphrey pooped out for President and ran out on the bills. The big phony has no class at all.

He'll probably be nominated and elected.

Clockwise

by Bob Clock

After our first taste of high-level election year oratory last week, it appears that the 1976 presidential campaign may set a new low-water mark for the well turned phrase, the apt metaphor and the striking simile.

And a shame it is, too, because the 1976 election could well make a turning point in the destiny of the United States. What our politicians and statesmen say in the next ten months probably will be studied by scholars and historians for centuries to come for clues as to what went wrong — or what went right — at the polling places of America in the 200th year of the nation's birth.

President Ford's State of the Union address last Monday night covered all the bases. But his language by and large did little to whip up public fervor for the programs which the voters must buy before they put their "X's" next to Jerry's name in November.

Sen. Edmund Muskie's response to Ford's address was equally uninspired. I found myself yearning for the day when the late John Kennedy could conjur up tears or laughter, love or hate, pride or scorn in millions of households across the country simply by his choice of words and his impeccable delivery.

I also remember being moved as a boy by the ringing addresses of Franklin Roosevelt and the bombastic radio oratory of Adolph Hitler, even though I couldn't understand a word he said. Winston Chorchill also could give me goosebumps, although he was scarcely more intelligible to American ears than Hitler.

But the day of the great orators is over. The silver tongues are tarnished and we must content ourselves with pedestrian statements by pedestrian men about earth-shattering events.

The election of 1976 is one of these events and it is a pity that we don't have a candidate waiting in the wings to spell out the issues in emotional as well as intellectual terms so that we could all savor them more deeply and intelligently.

Why is the election of 1976 so all-fired important? After all, we vote for a president every four years and the nation has survived 50 presidential elections, hasn't it? What makes this year so important?

Well, sir, it is important because the country is just emerging from the trauma of one of the worst financial upheavals in our history, a nationwide recession which saw the jobless rate soar to 50 percent in some of our urban areas.

We have seen more businesses fold in the past year than we witnessed in the past 10.

Through the cancer of inflation we have watched the value of the American dollar sicken and waste away.

We have seen public assistance roles double and triple in some areas.

We have witnessed the spectacle of great cities crawling to Washington for a handout from federal coffers.

We have been forced, in only 18 months, to make changes in our lifestyles that we never dreamed possible, all at the expense of personal comfort.

Our homes are not as warm as they once were.

Our diets have changed dramatically from "steak twice a week and chicken on Sunday."

We cannot afford the luxury of driving wherever we want, whenever we feel like it. Gasoline is just too expensive.

Although the economy, generally, seems to be turning around, we have come through the recession with prices at record high levels and a raft of unsolved problems begging for solutions before the patient is declared cured.

In the months ahead, President Ford is going to tell us that the business acumen of the Republican party has carried us through the recession and that the nation is ready for another round of free enterprise and laissez-faire economics.

The Democratic candidate, whoever he may be, will tell us that "boom or bust" cycles are inhumane, and that "economic planning"-Socialist Style-is mandatory in order to wipe out wide fluctuations in economic activity.

This one issue – which goes to the very marrow of American life and thought – is what the next election is all about. But we don't have anyone to tell us about it.

Erma Bombeck

There are elements of human nature I will never understand.

A careless camper will flip a match during a rainstorm and seconds later the entire forest will be in flames.

We will give a party and my husband will "lay a fire" using 30 pounds of paper, a mound of brittle kindling, and a seasoned log with a guarantee stapled on the side. Within minutes, an entire party will be driven into the streets by smoke.

He's the only man I know who had a fireplace with a gas lighter go out on him.

"Why don't you forget the fire tonight?" I said, collaring him before the party.

"Nonsense," he said, "I've got the secret. I just have to use more paper and get it started early. That's the secret. Start it early and get a bed of hot coals. Then, just feed it logs all night."

At 6:30 p.m., he burnt the evening paper which I had not read.

At 6:35, he emptied three trash cans into the fireplace and created another small flame.

At 7:05, he emerged from the garage with a wagon full of papers I had been saving for the last three months for the Boy Scout paper drive.

The guests began to arrive.

At 7:45, he burnt all the calendars in the house, plus five napkins which he was able to snatch away from guests.

At 7:50, he frantically tore the plastic bags off the dry cleaning in the hall closet and burnt a drawer full of brown paper grocery bags I save for garbage.

At 8:05, with the living room snowing with flying fragments of soot, he began emptying shoe boxes and wedging them under the log.

At 9:00 he was reduced to lighting unpaid bills with a match and throwing them in on the smoldering log. I collared him, "Look, Smokey the Bear, will you forget about the lousy fire and pay some attention to your guests?"

"I almost got it," he said feverishly. "Just a few more pieces of paper." He ran to the cedar chest and emerged with the baby books, our wedding pictures and our marriage license.

At 1 a.m. he grabbed me by the shoulder, "It's going," he said. "It's really blazing. Remember those cereal boxes with only a little cereal left? I threw it away and the boxes did it!"

"Wonderful," I said, pulling the covers around my neck, "now will you put it out and come to bed. We've got a big day ahead of us tomorrow. I am having you committed."

Meet Charlevoix

Bill Miller

Bill Miller, a native of South Arm Township, left the area in 1916 to seek his fortune in the larger cities of the Midwest. He returned to Charlevoix six years ago to retire. This week he tells the Courier about his ancestors who pioneered to Charlevoix County and what it was like in the "old days."

COURIER: Where did your parents live in Charlevoix County?

MILLER: The first homestead of George and Esther Miller was in Norwood Township near the present Redi-Mix plant. My mother was born in Howell and my father was born in Canada. They were married in Charlevoix in 1884. My three sisters, including Mary Bruce who lives in Charlevoix, were born in that homestead. I have a picture of my mother and father in front of the house right after it was built.

COURIER: Where were you born?

MILLER: My parents later moved to South Arm Township, near Miles and Detour Roads. My brother Leo, who now lives in Florida, and I were born there. The picture I have here shows that house about 1896. My three sisters are in front with my mother and father.

COURIER: Where did you all go to school?

MILLER: My sisters went to the old Rock Elm school on Heise and Ranney Roads. My brother and I went to school on the outskirts of East Jordan until we moved.

COURIER: What was it like around here in those days? What did you do?

MILLER: The main sources of entertainment were husking bees and barn dances on Saturday nights. We kids used to make jump bumpers and sell them for 25 cents. We also had ice skates, sleds and went ice-fishing. In summer we had our chores and did work for other people such as topping beets and picking cherries and strawberries. I started doing that at age six. But we were permitted to swim twice a day and we went fishing with poles we made ourselves.

COURIER: What did people do for a living?

MILLER: My father and most other men were lumberjacks and worked only in the winter. In the summer they grew vegetables and grain for the cows and pigs. All we had to buy were staples such as salt and sugar and flour. There was also a lot of game – deer and rabbits. My brother and I worked free in the East Jordan theater rewinding reels, cleaning, and hauling ashes. The movies were thrillers like the "Perils of Pauline", "Ten Nights in a Barroom" and "Uncle Tom's Cabin." They had plays, too. I also remember selling Chicago Sunday papers in East Jordan.

COURIER: Did you read much in those days?

MILLER: Oh, yes We had no radio Tv or cars. When I was very young I read "Les Miserables", "Count of Monte Cristo", "Tarzan" and the Zane Grey books.

COURIER: Why did your family leave the area?

MILLER: The timber was gone and the men could hardly earn two dollars a day around here. We went to Muskegon just before World War One where the foundries were paying eight dollars a day. I started in a foundry at age 13.

COURIER: What did you do after that?

MILLER: I had detective agencies in Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit and Milwaukee. During World War Two I spent five years in the military intelligence department of the Army. For 11 years I was a week-end professional boxer.

COURIER: For a person gone so long, you have certainly kept up your interest in the area, especially with all the old pictures.

MILLER: Well, we always spent summer vacations here and I like family pictures. By the way that picture of the first homestead was made from a daguerreatype. My father traded eight pounds of butter for two pictures.

COURIER: What do you do now to keep busy?

MILLER: I work with Fish, was executive director of Big Brothers for four years and am now on the board of the Humane Society.

Beaver Island will be the subject of the February program of the Charlevoix Historical Society. Featured will be a picture display and talk by Petoskey photographer Helmuth (Bud) Schulz, who assembled his collection during trips to the Island over a period of nearly 40 years.

Recalled in pictures will be the picturesque shanties which once ringed the harbor of St. James during its quiet days as a fishing village.

All who are interested in this marine outpost of Charlevoix County are invited to the meeting of the Charlevoix Historical Society at 8:00 p.m. on Tuesday, February 3, in the Community Room of the First State Bank of Charlevoix.

FIREBRAND PATRIOT, John Adams, insistent on Independence, carefully studies the completed Declaration. The Continental Theatre Company presents "1776," an exciting musical about the birth of the American nation.

'1776' Play Coming North

The successful musical show "1776" is coming to the area.

It will be presented February 14 at eight o'clock in the Middle School Auditorium in Petoskey.

The showing is sponsored by the Crooked Tree Arts Council, the American Association of University Women, area Boy Scouts and the Petoskey Bicentennial Commission. Tickets may be obtained from members of any of these groups as well as at Reis Gallery in Charlevoix and the Petoskey Chamber of Commerce.

Boy Scouts will receive one free ticket for every 10 they sell.

The events that occurred in Independence Hall during the hot summer of 1776 have become a rousing, heartening and glowing musical re-telling the story of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

The unusual aspect of "1776" is that it humanizes the personal conflicts that erupted in the Continental Congress as it rose to the momentous decision to cut the American colonies loose from England and form a new nation.

In history books the Founding Fathers are often painted in heroic poses of foresighted, patriotic and selfless statesmen. But "1776" depicts them somewhat differently—as human, fallible, sometimes petty, sometimes magnificent men with a variety of strengths, problems and weaknesses. The show has fun with their bumblings, timidities and quirks of character.

Art Council Offers 2 Classes

Two new classes in Art for children, sponsored by North Central Michigan University and the Crooked Tree Arts Council, will begin the week of February 14.

One class, for children ages six to ten, will meet on Saturday mornings and the other classes, for children ages 11 to 15, will meet Thursdays after school.

The younger children's class will work with mixed media and the older class will encompass drawing, printmaking, sculpture and painting.

There will also be a class for adults featuring painting and drawing, as well as printmaking and jewelry-making. The adult class carries three college credits and will start the week of February 4.

Tuition for the children's classes is $25 and for the adult class, $36. Further information may be obtained from Louise Herlocher at 347-2125 or North Central Michigan College in Petoskey.

Charlevoix Ski Team Takes First Place

The Charlevoix ski team, in its second meet of the current season, was the winner in a triangular meet held at Boyne Mountain Wednesday.

Charlevoix placed first in the boys' division with 45 points, followed by the host team, Boyne City, with 52 and Bellaire with 63 points.

The girls' won with 29 points; Boyne City had 44 and Bellaire 78.

Effective this season, scores are figured on the point system with the low score winning.

In the slalom, Lee Begrow placed first with John Battiste, Boyne City, second and Eric Lundtiegen, Charlevoix third.

Begrow also placed first in the giant slalom; Mark Malpeli, Charlevoix, second and John Kircher, Boyne City, third.

Camille Malpeli placed first in the slalom in the girls' division followed by Amy Kircher, Boyne City, second, and Patty Bauer, Boyne City, third.

In the giant slalom, Amy Kircher came in first, Camille Malpeli, second and Ann Howland of Bellaire, third.

The win was a costly one for Charlevoix for it saw one of the team's most promising skiers, Pam Boss, suffer a fractored leg during the competition, Coach Mike Bonelli reported.

In their first meet of the season, Charlevoix split with Petoskey with the girls winning their meet by a score of 30-43 and the boys losing to the Northmen 27-46.

Camille Malpeli took both the slalom and the giant slalom; Lisa Winmner placed third in both events and Pam Boss placed fourth in the slalom.

Lee Begrow placed third in the slalom and second in the giant slalom in the boys' division.

"An explanation of the basic wrestling moves and counters along with a demonstration will bring greater enjoyment to the spectator" Coach Probert said of the clinic to which everyone, especially parents, are invited.

Can several policies to protect one business cost more?
They certainly can, if the coverages overlap! If you have several insurance policies to protect your business, you may be paying twice for the same insurance! Coverages don't often overlap, but one "double coverage" is one too many. Check your insurance policies to see if there's any duplication now. Or better yet, call us to see if you qualify for our Business Multi-Peril Insurance. Multi-Peril puts all the coverages you need into one package with one premium. That's right—it's all together.

Local Boy Scouts Receive Awards

Every community has its Boy Scout troops.

However, in Charlevoix Troop 50 with seven members is a very special troop for its membership is composed of mentally handicapped young men whose Scoutmaster is Clement Olach.

Last week marked a milestone for four of these people who were honored at a Court of Honor, an event where badges are presented in the presence of their families and friends.

The foursome included Robert Hahn, Fred Moyer, Sean Sweany and Dale L. Martin pictured here with Scoutmaster Olach as he made the presentation of badges. Each received the Symbols badge, Ideals badge and Flag Badge, the first of 12 they must earn to become full-fledged Second Class Scouts. As they are received they are placed around the Scout Insignia. Pictured with them is Rick Merriner, also a Scout, who is working with Scoutmaster Olach. In the picture above he is lighting the candles in preparation for the formal ceremony.

The troop was activated two years ago under the guidance of Scoutmaster Olach. Robert O. Bergmann works with him as Institutional Representative.

The Scout members are presently working on Knot Tying and First Aid badges and are planning a camp out so members may earn their Camping, Hiking and other awards.

The Scouts must also earn Citizenship, Cooking and Swimming symbols to qualify as Second Class Scouts.

"Theh boys work hard, are very interested in the Scout program and are proud of the fact that they, too, can be Boy Scouts like their peers" Olach said of his troop. The troop meets weekly throughout the year and though its membership may change as the membership at Bergmann Center changes, there is a nucleus of 'regulars' with whom Scoutmaster Olach works.

"We find it a gratifying experience" Olach said in behalf of himself and others who work with the troop.

Tax

According to state law, cities and townships may add a one percent collection fee on tax statements to cover the expense of preparing and mailing them.

In townships where treasurers are not paid, the collected fee is the only salary a treasurer earns for his work on the tax rolls.

Townships and cities who have paid treasurers can put the money into their contingency funds or waive the fee completely.

Norwood Township, for example, picked up $430.65 for collecting its portion of school taxes last summer. Charlevoix would have gained $3,016.

In either case, Charlevoix residents will be glad to know that remaining portion of school taxes being collected this winter have the collection fee.

Near Charlevoix on interior lake lot: Two bedrooms, partially furnished, aluminum siding. Attached garage. At just $21,500.

Obituary

Mrs. Richard Farmer

Funeral services for Mrs. Richard J. (Catherine) Farmer, 63, who died Jan. 18 at Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey where she had been a patient for two weeks, were held Wednesday at the Winchester Funeral Home. The Rev. Daniel Minor of East Jordan officiated. Interment was in Brookside cemetery.

The former Catherine T. Bogart was born near Kingsley in Grand Traverse County June 4, 1912, and later lived at East Jordan before moving here in 1930. She was graduated from the Charlevoix High School and in 1934 was married to Mr. Farmer at East Jordan. They always resided here. She was a member of the Barnard United Methodist church and the Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Charles (Donna L.) Cross of Alpena; one son, Phillip Daniel, of Charlevoix; six grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Ilo Helms and two brothers, Carl Bogart and Donald Bogart, all of Charlevoix.

The family suggests that anyone wishing to honor Mrs. Farmer's memory contribute in her name to the Michigan Heart Association.

John D. Pike, Sr.

Funeral services for John D. Pike, Sr., of Montague, who died Sunday, Jan. 18, at Hackley Hospital in Muskegon where he had been a patient for a month, were held at St. James church in Montague Wednesday. The Rev. Joseph Godzisz officiated. Interment will be in Holy Cross cemetery at St. James, Beaver Island, in the spring. The Clock Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Born in Grand Rapids Aug. 22, 1915, Mr. Pike was educated at Howe Military Academy, Grand Rapids Catholic Central High School, Muskegon Community College and Western Michigan University. He served with the Merchant Marine during World War II and, for the past 28 years, had been Quality Control Engineer at the Misco Division of the Howmet Corp. On Feb. 2, 1941, he was married to the former Helen LaFreniere at St. James. He was a member of St. James church and its Holy Name Society, the American Association of Quality Control Engineers and the Whitehall Eagle's Lodge.

Surviving are his wife; three sons, George N. of Cheboygan where he is a coach and athletic director, John Jr., stationed at Newport, R.I., with the U.S. Navy, and Francis E. of Muskegon; a daughter, Mrs. Steven (Elaine) West of Kalamazoo; three grandchildren and six sisters.

Wayne Belding

Memorial services for Wayne W. Belding, 62, who died at the Veterans Hospital in Miami, Fla., on Wednesday, were held at the United Methodist Church Saturday. The Rev. Austin Regier officiated.

Graveside services for Mr. Belding, a World War II Army veteran, were held at the U.S. military cemetery at Barrucas, Fla., at his request.

Mr. Belding had been hospitalized in Miami a month before his death and at Ann Arbor for a month prior to leaving for the South.

Born at Newaygo Feb. 21, 1913, Mr. Belding came to Charlevoix as a child and was graduated from the Charlevoix High School.

A talented musician, Mr. Belding had his own orchestra and played at the Argonne Supper Club for more than 20 years. He also was a commercial artist and was widely known for his sketches of local scenes. He had been associated with Paul-Reed, Inc., as a designer; designed many downtown store fronts and created Charlevoix's distinctive rustic community signs. At one time he also was associated with Belding Real Estate.

He is survived by his wife, the former Helen Halverson of LaCarsos, Calif.; a daughter, Mrs. Roger (Sharon) Knudsen of Decorah, Iowa; two sons, Warren and Paul, both of Naples, Fla.; six grandchildren; his mother, Mrs. Ruth Belding of Charlevoix; a brother Rodney, of Charlevoix and three sisters, Mrs. Orlin Cunningham and Mrs. Adrian Werner of Charlevoix and Mrs. Kenneth Wagner of Midland.

Born in Nebraska Sept. 26, 1887, the former Maye E. Howe was married to Fred Everett at San Francisco on May 5, 1909. They lived there until 1911 when they moved to Detroit. In 1955 they moved to Ellsworth and lived here four years before returning to the Detroit area. Mr. Everett preceded her in death in 1959. For the past three years she had resided in East Jordan with her son, Fred Everett.

Surviving are her son; 14 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Mark Stapleton

Funeral services for Mark Stapleton, 18, of St. Charles and Charlevoix, were held Friday at Cass Funeral Home in Saginaw. Interment was in an area cemetery.

Stapleton, who was in the South to compete in professional motorcycle races, was found dead Monday of asphyxiation as the result of a faulty heater in the camper van in which he was traveling according to St. Augustine, Fla., authorities.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. James Stapleton and a resident of St. Charles, he was graduated from high school last June. He was an avid motorcyclist and, at the time of his death, was traveling the winter circuit. His parents divided their time between St. Charles and their Charlevoix home at 201 Nicholls st.

His survivors include his parents and a sister, Terry, who is a student at the Charlevoix High School.

Mrs. Robert Merriam

News of the death of Mrs. Robert (Lydia Jane) Merriam has been received by friends here.

FAITH WILL GIVE YOU PATIENCE FOR TODAY'S WORLD

In this age of instant foods and virtually everything else, we often clamor for the immediate fulfillment of all our wishes as a matter of course. Patience has nearly become a lost art because we seem to have so little need of it in this push-button era. However, faith in God will not only help you regain your patience, but will let you know if the rapid results you have come to expect are really worthwhile attaining. There may be no such thing as instant success, but there is an instant faith which will direct you toward it in the proper manner. It's as near as your Church.

"But let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing."

New Bank Director Named

Glenn Kenney

Glenn L. Kenney, president of Kit Carson Lumber Company, was elected a director of the First State Bank of Charlevoix at the Bank's recent annual shareholder's meeting.

The announcement was made by Louis J. Hollow, president of First State.

Kenney is a member and past trustee of the Charlevoix Congregational Church, current president of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club and board member for the Charlevoix Area Hospital. He was also instrumental in the organization and operation of the Hidden Brook Foundation and is a past president of the Charlevoix Board of Education.

A graduate of Michigan State University, Kenney and his wife, LaRue, are long-time residents of Charlevoix.

Eight of the present directors of the bank were re-elected at the meeting. They are Thomas A. Duke, chairman, J. Terrence Brennan, Donald C. Coulter, Dorothy Dixon, Russell C. Henderson, Louis J. Hollow, G. Franklin Ochs and William M. Skillman.

Shareholders attending the meeting heard of the continued good earnings record of the Bank and plans for the coming year.

Decorator Addresses Club

The February meeting of the Charlevoix Woman's Club will feature a talk by local interior decorator Cheryl Georgi.

Mrs. Georgi will speak on the various methods and aspects of good, basic interior design.

The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 in the Community Room of the First State Bank. Hostesses for the evening will be Mrs. Patricia Begrow, Mrs. Joseph G. Morris, Jr., Mrs. Richard Wood and Miss Mary Beth Wallick.

All members are urged to attend and bring a guest for this interesting and informative meeting.

It's Cold Outside Baby

Last week was a cold week. There were six straight days of below zero weather, ranging from a low of zero to a high of 28. However, heavy winds on several days made the wind-chill factor much lower.

The Charlevoix Life Guard Station reports the following high and low temperatures: Sunday, 0 and 24; Monday, 20 and 24; Tuesday, 19 and 27; Wednesday, 18 and 24; Thursday, four and 19; and Friday, four and seven (before noon).

Charlevoix Harbor is filled with ice and the channel froze over Friday for the first time this year.

There was at least a trace of snow every day last week.

Wilderness Comes to Cinema III

"The Adventures of the Wilderness Family", which is showing at Cinema III in Charlevoix this coming Sunday, is based on the true story of a modern American family who are fed up with the hassels of city life.

They move to the Northland, build their own cabin and live off the land. With their affection and respect for nature, the wild animals accept them as friends, and soon their home becomes an animal orphanage.

This is an amazing and beautiful human drama of a family who shares the dream of today's youth and dares to live that dream.

There will be four showings of the film Sunday, at 1, 3, 5, and 7 p.m.

Try Books For Winter

If the winter days are dragging, take a trip to the Charlevoix Public Library. It is cheerful, warm and full of books, magazines and newspapers to inform and entertain.

When you are through browsing, take a book or two or three home to while away the evening hours. Take a book to a friend who can't get out or to a child with a sniffly nose.

Library hours are one o'clock in the afternoon to eight o'clock in the evening Monday through Thursday and one o'clock to five o'clock Friday and Saturday.

Librarian Mary Beth Wallick reminds everyone that the library is selling a lithograph of the City of Charlevoix in the 1880's to raise funds to bind the old Charlevoix Sentinels. The lithographs, 28½ by 23 inches ready for framing, sell for $5.

3-Cent Bargain

If you still have some 10-cent stamps and need some three-centers to add to them to mail your letters, the Charlevoix Post Office has plenty.

The Post Office reports that when the new rates went into effect last month they ran short of three-cent stamps and had to ration them.

The 13-cent stamps are printed in three different varieties, but one, "The Spirit of '76", has already been sold out.

Bankers Anticipate Good Year

Charlevoix County Economy Looks Bright

By TOM DAMMANN

Area bankers and business observers are anticipating an improved business year for Charlevoix County.

In general they are encouraged by the continuation of last summer's tourist boom into the present ski season, as evidenced by the record breaking crowds who are enjoying the ski slopes of Boyne Country and Nubs Nob, the major ski areas in the immediate vicinity.

Since tourism is the region's number one industry, its health is bound to affect the rest of the economy.

To a lesser degree the downstate automotive industry has its impact on a number of small plants in Boyne City and around Charlevoix, which manufacture tools and dies and components and these plants are all busy filling orders, significantly, for 1977 models.

For example, the Boyne Machine Co., on the Boyne City Road between Charlevoix and Horton Bay, has been operating on two shifts for some months now, turning out tools and dies for 1977 model assembly lines.

Louis J. Hollow, President of the First State Bank of Charlevoix, places emphasis on the construction industry as reflecting the general well being.

"We have five new manufacturing facilities already completed or being started accounting for some additional 70,000 square feet of manufacturing space in the immediate area," Hollow told an interviewer. "Motels, restaurants and bars are doing better than ever and housing starts look good. I expect the building business, which ended up strong in 1975 to continue at the same level next spring."

Gordon Wellman, President, Charlevoix County State Bank, is a little more cautious.

"There are a few more encouraging factors than discouraging," he said in a telephone interview. "Small manufacturers are getting orders and reemploying people.

"Construction was the bright spot all last fall. It is in its seasonal lull right now, but we are being bombarded with requests for business loans.

City Council

I'm concerned with the City Council. They are always harping about the cost of taxes. A couple of weeks ago I read where the city is hiring a crew for trimming the trees. It's going to cost the taxpayers so much money. I think they should go to the professional people at the school, the teachers themselves. The city should contact these people and have them give them a hand and tell them how to trim trees and how to take care of the money. We have people at school who are professionals at conservation who have earned minors and majors and biology people. I think we should use our own natural resources here, the community resources in Charlevoix instead of hiring people that will cost us thousands of dollars.

Garbage Collection

I come from a larger city. We've always had garbage collection, put out by the city, and I think it's kind of ridiculous to have a private garbage collector, who charges his own flat rate, and that's kind of silly for two bags of garbage every week. Why doesn't the city have a special tax, maybe five dollars a month from everyone, purchase their own trucks, even work with the local garbage collection people. Then the city could have a salary for these people, instead of the private collector charging their own rates. I've seen a lot of cities that have city garbage and it works out much better that way. It would save the taxpayers money and instead of paying a private firm they could have taxes in the city for the same purposes. It really wouldn't be that much more. In fact, it would be less.

Ski Areas

In regards to the Mt. McSauba ski area. This could be supported by the local skiers. All the taxpayers and the skiers could donate a certain amount of money for this. I don't know why new trails can't be developed through some of the woods area, trees can be cut out and trails developed. Also, some of the local people could

Beards Join Mardi Gras

Charlevoix residents can expect some hairy competition in this year's Mardi Gras, February 27-29.

LaBlance Insurance and the Grey Gables are sponsoring a beard growing contest for the most unusual men and women's beard and mustache.

(Women can make theirs.)

In addition to the beard competitions, trophies will also be given for the best masks.

The competition will be judged Friday, Feb. 27, after the street parade at the Grey Gables.

Ballots to select this year's Mardi Gras King and Queen are now available at many local businesses.

You simply make your selection and leave the ballot at one of the official ballot boxes in the businesses. Each ballot costs 50 cents.

In addition to the ballot, official Mardi pins go on sale this week for 50 cents at the Chamber of Commerce office. Money from the ballots and pins are going towards the completion of the band shell in East Park, as well as to support other chamber-sponsored activities held during the year.

Charlevoix's Mardi Gras gets underway Friday night with the crowning of the Queen and King in the Market at 7:30 p.m.

Following the crowning on Friday night, the new royalty will lead a street parade from Belvedere to Bridge Street and then to Clinton.

Following the parade, many local restaurants, as well as private homes, are expected to hold celebrations.

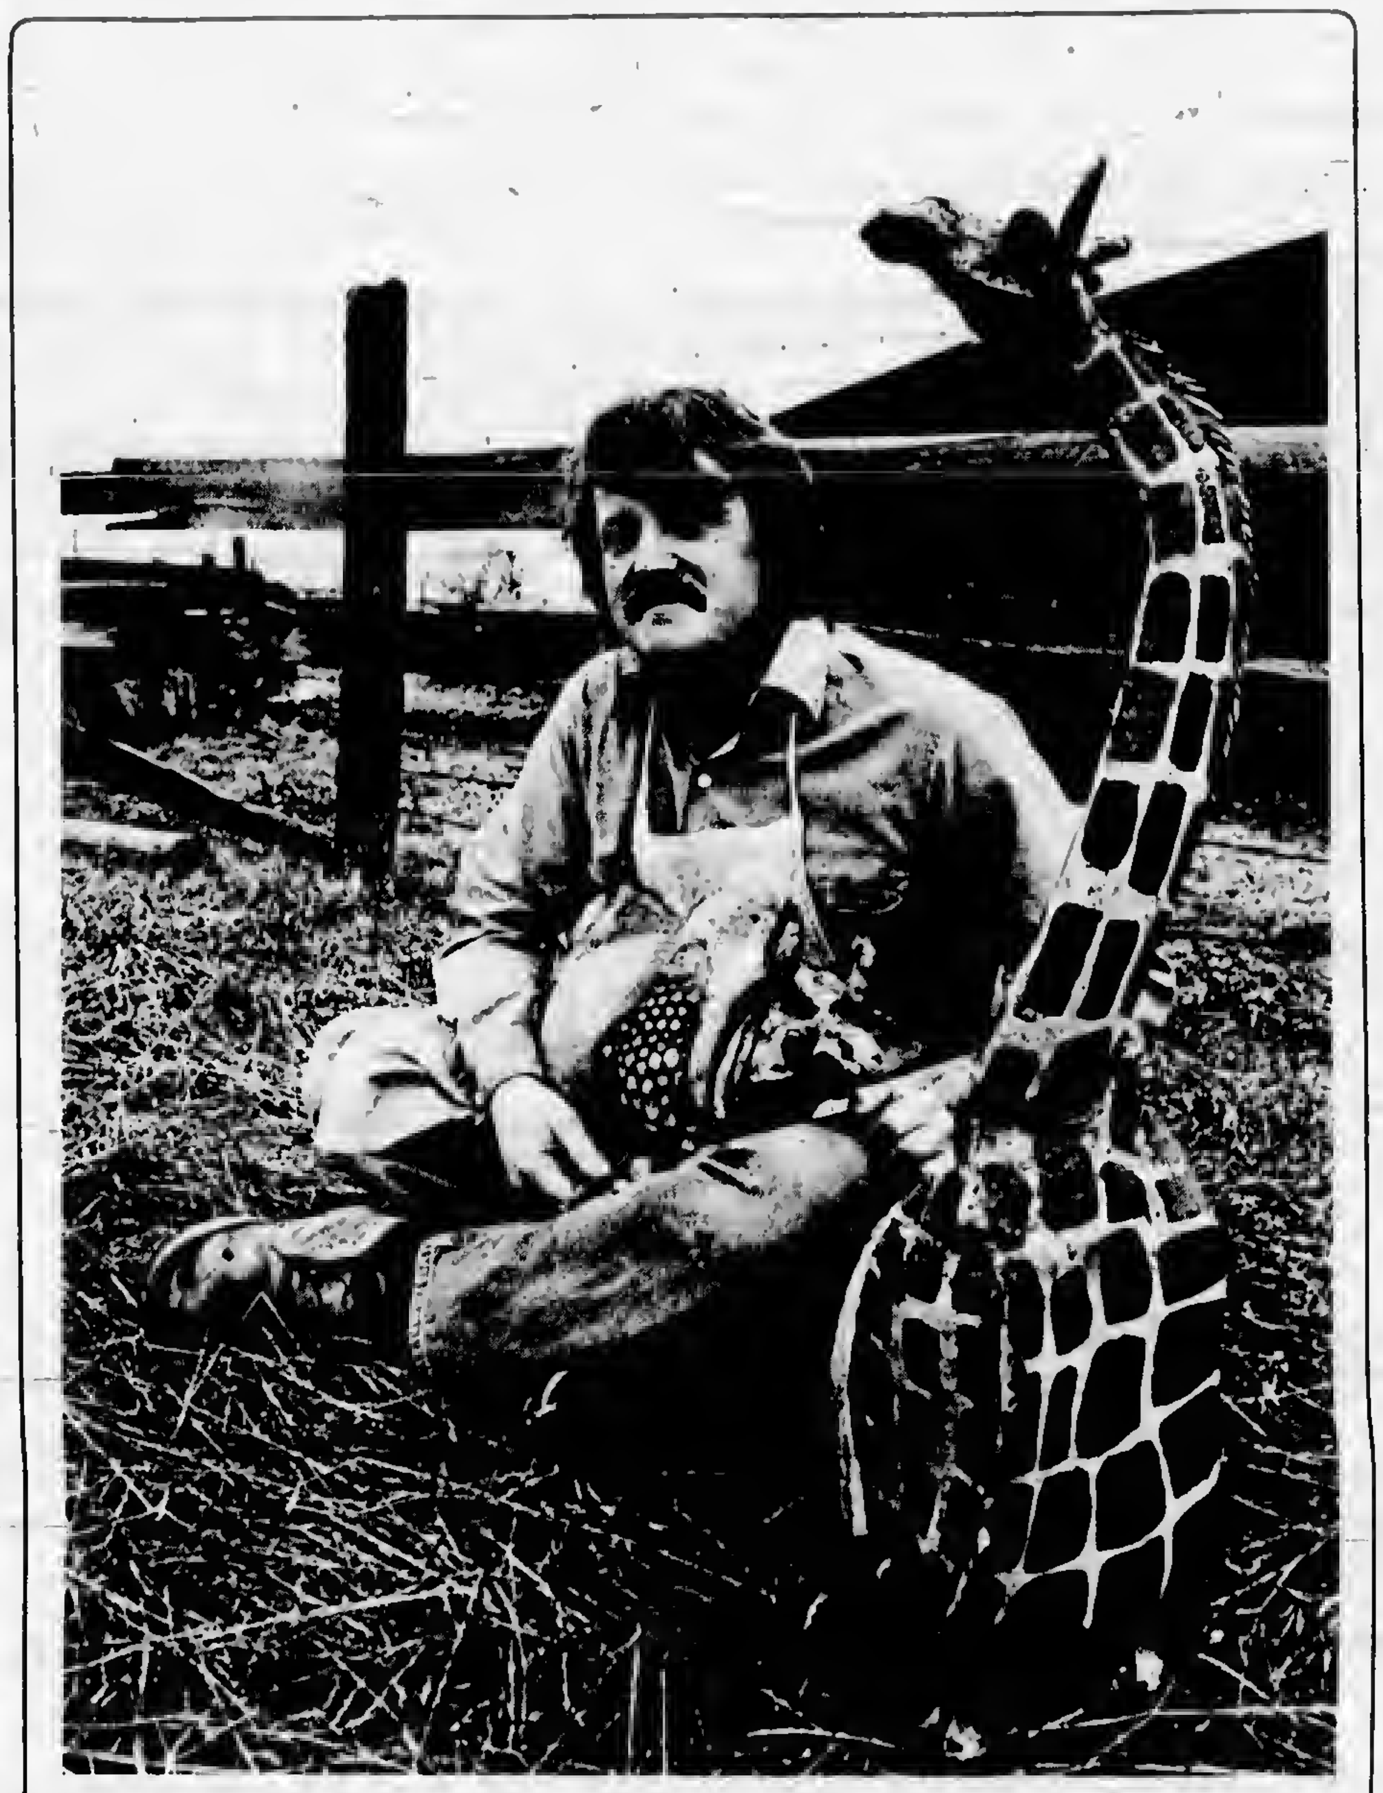
Saturday activities get underway with the judging of the snow sculptures. The Charlevoix Courier and WVOY will be offering a $50 cash prize for the best sculpture.

At 1 p.m. Saturday, ski competition will be held at Mt. McSauba with individual winners receiving awards being given by the Grey Gables.

Activities continue on Sunday with the Lion's Club annual Winter Outing.

The Charlevoix service clubs will sponsor a Sunday afternoon of winter events ranging from snowmobile to sack races.

Students are being asked to make posters featuring the Bicentennial-Mardi Gras theme. Ribbons will be awarded to the top three posters in each building.



TODD WARNER, a Charlevoix artist, is now offering art classes to interested senior citizens from Charlevoix County. The classes are being held in the East Jordan Senior Citizen Center.

Senior Citizens Study Art

Local artist, Todd Warner, in cooperation with other local artists, is instructing art classes every Friday afternoon at the Charlevoix County Senior Center. Classes began January 30 and are open to anyone over the age of 60. A small fee is charged to cover the cost of supplies.

Warner, a ceramic sculptor, who has been a resident of Northern Michigan for two years, is well known for his whimsical stoneware animal caricatures. His work is exhibited in galleries in Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, New Jersey, Missouri, Oklahoma, and Michigan.

"The Senior Center is very fortunate to have someone of Mr. Warner's caliber volunteer their time to help us develop this program," says Dorothy Pelton, Senior Center Director.

Art instruction will begin with sketching, woodcarving and ceramics. For more information in regard to classes, contact Dorothy Pelton, Senior Center Director, 536-7831.

Are Charlevoix Taxpayers Getting Their School Money's Worth?

By KEN WINTER

If our nation's capital is any indication of what's happening with today's education, we're in serious trouble.

The District of Columbia's public school system ranks fourth highest both in spending per pupil and in spending per resident among the school systems of the nation's 20 largest cities.

Even worse, few will contend it is anywhere close to being fourth best among the top 20, though it is much easier to tally a school system's expenditures than to measure its educational results.

While enrollment in the District's public schools has declined by 11 percent since 1965, during the same period the number of the District's employees has increased by 36 percent.

Despite the increased spending, fewer students and more employees, the District's public school system is, with some exceptions, doing only a fair to miserable job educating its students, according to education observers.

Falling Flat

But while our nation's capital seems to be falling flat on its face, Charlevoix school officials don't feel the same about their district.

While they're the first to admit that spending has gone up over the last 10 years, they don't feel the quality has gone down in the Charlevoix school system.

And unlike Washington, D.C. enrollment, Charlevoix has experienced a 43 percent growth over the last 10 years from 1,236 in 1965 to 1,768 students in 1975.

The cost for educating those students has jumped nearly 50 percent in the last 10 years, according to local school sources.

Using equated dollars, a Charlevoix taxpayer now pays $1,176 to educate a student compared to a 1965 cost of $779 per pupil.

"The public generally thinks it is teacher's salaries that have inflated the cost of education," Charlevoix School Supt. James McKimmy said in a recent interview.

But while the cost of education has gone up 50 percent, beginning teacher salaries have only realized a 13 to 15 percent jump in 10 years. Experienced teachers have seen theirs go up 30 percent.

"Granted you are talking about a small rural school district where our per pupil expenditures are lower than the average per pupil expenditures in other parts of the state," he continued.

"We are operating on 24.35 mills at the present time in the school district and the state average this year will be something in excess of 27 mills.

"In other words, we are in the 10 to 12 percent range under state average.

Tremendous Inflation

"I think it's close enough to establish immediately that it's not the teacher's salary picture that has caused the tremendous inflation in the cost of education."

McKimmy blames rising local cost on a variety factors, among those are –Declining support from the state, while increasing state program demands.

–Increased workmen's compensation benefits, as well as teacher retirement.

–Hikes in teaching material costs along with capital outlay hikes. A school bus, for example, now costs 50 percent more than 10 years ago.

Asked if taxpayers were getting as much for their tax dollars as they were 10 years ago, McKimmy claims they are. However, he says the educational opportunities are being passed on to a larger base of people.

Ten years ago, the college-bound student had the broader range of academic opportunities to prepare him for school.

And at that time, there was little or no vocational education, adult education, remedial reading programs, and the types of programs that were geared for a greater segment of Charlevoix's school population. All of these programs are now part of the school's curriculum.

McKimmy also denied that a student from Charlevoix is getting a poorer quality education than those in other districts.

"We have found that in state-wide testing of students in grades four through seven, Charlevoix students have performed very well," he continued.

"Those tests were not designed to be used as comparisons between schools, but the information is such that we can have confidence in the success of our program."

He adds that those taking college enrollment tests were at or above state and national means.

"The school district is energetic in improving its curriculum stance," McKimmy said.

"We do not make wide claims for existing successes."

Decorator Addresses Club

The February meeting of the Charlevoix Woman's Club will feature a talk by local interior decorator Cheryl Georgi.

Mrs. Georgi will speak on the various methods and aspects of good, basic interior design.

The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 in the Community Room of the First State Bank. Hostesses for the evening will be Mrs. Patricia Begrow, Mrs. Joseph G. Morris, Jr., Mrs. Richard Wood and Miss Mary Beth Wallick.

All members are urged to attend and bring a guest for this interesting and informative meeting.

It's Cold Outside Baby

Last week was a cold week. There were six straight days of below zero weather, ranging from a low of zero to a high of 28. However, heavy winds on several days made the wind-chill factor much lower.

The Charlevoix Life Guard Station reports the following high and low temperatures: Sunday, 0 and 24; Monday, 20 and 24; Tuesday, 19 and 27; Wednesday, 18 and 24; Thursday, four and 19; and Friday, four and seven (before noon).

Charlevoix Harbor is filled with ice and the channel froze over Friday for the first time this year.

There was at least a trace of snow every day last week.

Wilderness Comes to Cinema III

"The Adventures of the Wilderness Family", which is showing at Cinema III in Charlevoix this coming Sunday, is based on the true story of a modern American family who are fed up with the hassels of city life.

They move to the Northland, build their own cabin and live off the land. With their affection and respect for nature, the wild animals accept them as friends, and soon their home becomes an animal orphanage.

This is an amazing and beautiful human drama of a family who shares the dream of today's youth and dares to live that dream.

There will be four showings of the film Sunday, at 1, 3, 5, and 7 p.m.

Try Books For Winter

If the winter days are dragging, take a trip to the Charlevoix Public Library.

It is cheerful, warm and full of books, magazines and newspapers to inform and entertain.

When you are through browsing, take a book or two or three home to while away the evening hours. Take a book to a friend who can't get out or to a child with a sniffly nose.

Library hours are one o'clock in the afternoon to eight o'clock in the evening Monday through Thursday and one o'clock to five o'clock Friday and Saturday.

Librarian Mary Beth Wallick reminds everyone that the library is selling a lithograph of the City of Charlevoix in the 1880's to raise funds to bind the old Charlevoix Sentinels. The lithographs, 28½ by 23 inches ready for framing, sell for $5.

3-Cent Bargain

If you still have some 10-cent stamps and need some three-centers to add to them to mail your letters, the Charlevoix Post Office has plenty.

The Post Office reports that when the new rates went into effect last month they ran short of three-cent stamps and had to ration them.

The 13-cent stamps are printed in three different varieties, but one, "The Spirit of '76", has already been sold out.

Bankers Anticipate Good Year

Charlevoix County Economy Looks Bright

By TOM DAMMANN

Area bankers and business observers are anticipating an improved business year for Charlevoix County.

In general they are encouraged by the continuation of last summer's tourist boom into the present ski season, as evidenced by the record breaking crowds who are enjoying the ski slopes of Boyne Country and Nubs Nob, the major ski areas in the immediate vicinity.

Since tourism is the region's number one industry, its health is bound to affect the rest of the economy.

To a lesser degree the downstate automotive industry has its impact on a number of small plants in Boyne City and around Charlevoix, which manufacture tools and dies and components and these plants are all busy filling orders, significantly, for 1977 models.

For example, the Boyne Machine Co., on the Boyne City Road between Charlevoix and Horton Bay, has been operating on two shifts for some months now, turning out tools and dies for 1977 model assembly lines.

Louis J. Hollow, President of the First State Bank of Charlevoix, places emphasis on the construction industry as reflecting the general well being.

"We have five new manufacturing facilities already completed or being started accounting for some additional 70,000 square feet of manufacturing space in the immediate area," Hollow told an interviewer. "Motels, restaurants and bars are doing better than ever and housing starts look good. I expect the building business, which ended up strong in 1975 to continue at the same level next spring."

Gordon Wellman, President, Charlevoix County State Bank, is a little more cautious.

"There are a few more encouraging factors than discouraging," he said in a telephone interview. "Small manufacturers are getting orders and reemploying people.

"Construction was the bright spot all last fall. It is in its seasonal lull right now, but we are being bombarded with requests for business loans.

TODD WARNER, a Charlevoix artist, is now offering art classes to interested senior citizens from Charlevoix County. The classes are being held in the East Jordan Senior Citizen Center.

Senior Citizens Study Art

Local artist, Todd Warner, in cooperation with other local artists, is instructing art classes every Friday afternoon at the Charlevoix County Senior Center. Classes began January 30 and are open to anyone over the age of 60. A small fee is charged to cover the cost of supplies.

Warner, a ceramic sculptor, who has been a resident of Northern Michigan for two years, is well known for his whimsical stoneware animal caricatures. His work is exhibited in galleries in Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, New Jersey, Missouri, Oklahoma, and Michigan.

"The Senior Center is very fortunate to have someone of Mr. Warner's caliber volunteer their time to help us develop this program," says Dorothy Pelton, Senior Center Director.

Art instruction will begin with sketching, woodcarving and ceramics. For more information in regard to classes, contact Dorothy Pelton, Senior Center Director, 536-7831.

City Council

I'm concerned with the City Council. They are always harping about the cost of taxes. A couple of weeks ago I read where the city is hiring a crew for trimming the trees. It's going to cost the taxpayers so much money. I think they should go to the professional people at the school, the teachers themselves. The city should contact these people and have them give them a hand and tell them how to trim trees and how to take care of the money. We have people at school who are professionals at conservation who have earned minors and majors and biology people. I think we should use our own natural resources here, the community resources in Charlevoix instead of hiring people that will cost us thousands of dollars.

Garbage Collection

I come from a larger city. We've always had garbage collection, put out by the city, and I think it's kind of ridiculous to have a private garbage collector, who charges his own flat rate, and that's kind of silly for two bags of garbage every week. Why doesn't the city have a special tax, maybe five dollars a month from everyone, purchase their own trucks, even work with the local garbage collection people. Then the city could have a salary for these people, instead of the private collector charging their own rates. I've seen a lot of cities that have city garbage and it works out much better that way. It would save the taxpayers money and instead of paying a private firm they could have taxes in the city for the same purposes. It really wouldn't be that much more. In fact, it would be less.

Ski Areax

In regards to the Mt. McSauba ski area. This could be supported by the local skiers. All the taxpayers and the skiers could donate a certain amount of money for this. I don't know why new trails can't be developed through some of the woods area, trees can be cut out and trails developed. Also, some of the local people could

Beards Join Mardi Gras

Charlevoix residents can expect some hairy competition in this year's Mardi Gras, February 27-29.

LaBlance Insurance and the Grey Gables are sponsoring a beard growing contest for the most unusual men and women's beard and mustache.

(Women can make theirs.)

In addition to the beard competitions, trophies will also be given for the best masks.

The competition will be judged Friday, Feb. 27, after the street parade at the Grey Gables.

Ballots to select this year's Mardi Gras King and Queen are now available at many local businesses.

You simply make your selection and leave the ballot at one of the official ballot boxes in the businesses. Each ballot costs 50 cents.

In addition to the ballot, official Mardi pins go on sale this week for 50 cents at the Chamber of Commerce office. Money from the ballots and pins are going towards the completion of the band shell in East Park, as well as to support other chamber-sponsored activitiex held during the year.

Charlevoix's Mardi Gras gets underway Friday night with the crowning of the Queen and King in the Market at 7:30 p.m.

Following the crowning on Friday night, the new royalty will lead a street parade from Belvedere to Bridge Street and then to Clinton.

Following the parade, many local restaurants, as well as private homes, are expected to hold celebrations.

Saturday activities get underway with the judging of the snow sculptures. The Charlevoix Courier and WVOY will be offering a $50 cash prize for the best sculpture.

At 1 p.m. Saturday, ski competition will be held at Mt. McSauba with individual winners receiving awards being given by the Grey Gables.

Activities continue on Sunday with the Lion's Club annual Winter Outing.

The Charlevoix service clubs will sponsor a Sunday afternoon of winter events ranging from snowmobile to sack races.

Students are being asked to make posters featuring the Bicentennial-Mardi Gras theme. Ribbons will be awarded to the top three posters in each building.

Are Charlevoix Taxpayers Getting Their School Money's Worth?

By KEN WINTER

If our nation's capital is any indication of what's happening with today's education, we're in serious trouble.

The District of Columbia's public school system ranks fourth highest both in spending per pupil and in spending per resident among the school systems of the nation's 20 largest cities.

Even worse, few will contend it is anywhere close to being fourth best among the top 20, though it is much easier to tally a school system's expenditures than to measure its educational results.

While enrollment in the District's public schools has declined by 11 percent since 1965, during the same period the number of the District's employees has increased by 36 percent.

Despite the increased spending, fewer students and more employees, the District's public school system is, with some exceptions, doing only a fair to miserable job educating its students, according to education observers.

Falling Flat

But while our nation's capital seems to be falling flat on its face, Charlevoix school officials don't feel the same about their district.

While they're the first to admit that spending has gone up over the last 10 years, they don't feel the quality has gone down in the Charlevoix school system.

And unlike Washington, D.C. enrollment, Charlevoix has experienced a 43 percent growth over the last 10 years from 1,236 in 1965 to 1,768 students in 1975.

The cost for educating those students has jumped nearly 50 percent in the last 10 years, according to local school sources.

Using equated dollars, a Charlevoix taxpayer now pays $1,176 to educate a student compared to a 1965 cost of $779 per pupil.

"The public generally thinks it is teacher's salaries that have inflated the cost of education," Charlevoix School Supt. James McKimmy said in a recent interview.

But while the cost of education has gone up 50 percent, beginning teacher salaries have only realized a 13 to 15 percent jump in 10 years. Experienced teachers have seen theirs go up 30 percent.

"Granted you are talking about a small rural school district where our per pupil expenditures are lower than the average per pupil expenditures in other parts of the state," he continued.

"We are operating on 24.35 mills at the present time in the school district and the state average this year will be something in excess of 27 mills.

"In other words, we are in the 10 to 12 percent range under state average.

Tremendous Inflation

"I think it's close enough to establish immediately that it's not the teacher's salary picture that has caused the tremendous inflation in the cost of education."

McKimmy blames rising local cost on a variety factors, among those are –Declining support from the state, while increasing state program demands.

–Increased workmen's compensation benefits, as well as teacher retirement.

–Hikes in teaching material costs along with capital outlay hikes. A school bus, for example, now costs 50 percent more than 10 years ago.

Asked if taxpayers were getting as much for their tax dollars as they were 10 years ago, McKimmy claims they are. However, he says the educational opportunities are being passed on to a larger base of people.

Ten years ago, the college-bound student had the broader range of academic opportunities to prepare him for school.

And at that time, there was little or no vocational education, adult education, remedial reading programs, and the types of programs that were geared for a greater segment of Charlevoix's school population. All of these programs are now part of the school's curriculum.

McKimmy also denied that a student from Charlevoix is getting a poorer quality education than those in other districts.

"We have found that in state-wide testing of students in grades four through seven, Charlevoix students have performed very well," he continued.

"Those tests were not designed to be used as comparisons between schools, but the information is such that we can have confidence in the success of our program."

He adds that those taking college enrollment tests were at or above state and national means.

"The school district is energetic in improving its curriculum stance," McKimmy said.

"We do not make wide claims for existing successes."

THE DIAMOND THAT WAS MADE FOR YOU.

Most diamonds contain internal flaws or imperfections we call inclusions. These inclusions in a stone can have an affect on the appearance and durability of a stone.

Often people pay a premium price for a clean stone that is slightly yellow, instead of buying a slightly flawed white stone. This decision may not be correct. A small natural inclusion in a diamond purchased for wearing is less valuable than a comparable diamond without inclusions -- yet you will also pay less for it.

One of the better points for a flawed stone is that when you have it appraised, the inclusions in it are like a set of finger prints. No two stones are exactly alike.

Visit Reusch Jewelry today and select the diamond that Nature made for you.

McRae Says

Dear Taxpayer:

The 1974-75 City Budget was $1,538,000 and the current 1975-76 budget is $1,865,000, a $327,000 jump, or an increase of 21 percent. But it appears to me the city is being run like it was 20 years ago on a $180,000 budget.

Our electrical department needs re-assessing. It should have complete re-structuring of its rates. Each kind of service should be charged accordingly to it's cost. Almost 150 homes throughout our system use our electricity only three months of the year. Besides their monthly bills they should be charged no less than $72.00 on an annual basis. There are other possibilities that could drastically reduce the rates of all City of Charlevoix users. I would appoint three capable local citizens to undertake a study and an analytical review of the electric system. 45 percent of this year's budget was given to the electrical department. It is a very complex business and should only be directed by the most highly qualified people.

The city needs more new revenues to replace money now being siphoned out of the electrical system. For one thing, the Chicago Club is tremendously under valued and under used and should be much more income. The townships I am sure, if approached properly, would agree to contribute their share of our recreation departments overhead. The county should allocate some of our tax money to assist in our ambulance service and operating costs of the airport. We should not subsidize anyone. The condominiums owe the city thousands of dollars. No wonder it is cheaper to live in the townships.

The city is presently involved in a couple of legal entanglements. It is very possible we will be imbroiled in three or more similar situations. In all these cases, if the recommendations of the council had been followed, much of this would have been avoided. I would like the opportunity to reverse the gradual deterioration of our local government.

We should have a Planning Commission for the sound programming of Charlevoix's future. I do not go along with neglecting or postponing necessary improvements. Like black topping several streets in one year instead of black topping one street every year. We could have saved $30,000.00. Inflation is costly, especially asphalt or oil base products. The May Street sewer could have been built at half its cost.

Give Charlevoix a break in '76. Vote for me as your next mayor, February 16th.

It Could be Your Biorythms

It's Another One of those Days to Forget About

By KEN WINTER

MANCELONA--It's one of those days when nothing seems to go right. You wonder what in the world's the matter, and finally mutter in exasperation: "I should have never gotten out of bed."

If you had happened to ask Arvin 'Pete' Peterson about your blues, he'd say there's a logical explanation. You're in a down period in your biorhythm.

The 49-year-old Mancelona resident is one of the growing number across the nation who believe biorhythms influence an individual's day-to-day life.

At least three books are being promoted on the subject, and computerized biorhythm charts, covering a year, are being offered by several firms. A specific day's biorhythm may be purchased for a quarter from machines in some drug and dime stores.

It's being taken so seriously in the sports world, according to Peterson, that this month's issue of "Pro Quarterback" magazine featured exclusive biorhythm charts of major players in this year's Super Bowl.

Three Rhythms

The Biorhythm theory holds three separate biological rhythms--called "sensitivity," "physical" and Intellectual"--begin at birth and run in steady cycles throughout one's life. Half of each cycle is composed of "positive discharging days," while the other half of "negative recharging days."

The real problem days, however, are those on which one or more of the three rhythms change from positive to negative or vice versa.

Biorhythm believers call these "critical" days, full of potential danger because the person is in a state of flux, unstable and, according to the theory, more prone to errors, accidents and physical setbacks.

Peterson, who used to be an electronics engineer for a large national company, says he first became interested in biorhythms in the early fifties.

"I got involved because I was interested in sports," Peterson recalled while sipping a cup of coffee in a small-town cafe.

The slender, small-framed man said he was at Yankee Stadium watching the Detroit Tigers play the Yanks, when a pitcher threw a bunted ball to first base.

"The pitcher threw the ball way past first base," he continued. "From the job I had, I knew there had to be a logical reason."

In his work as an engineer, Peterson said he had come across several stories in magazines about biorhythms and their effects on how people perform.

Accidents

Peterson, like many biorhythm enthusiasts, produces charts and studies to show that celebrities died, pilots had fatal air crashes and workers had more accidents on their critical days. Peterson uses the theory to predict how athletes will perform on a given day.

"During the baseball season, I look at every baseball player in both leagues every day to see who will have bat trouble or who will be injury prone," he said.

"I have an index of 10,000 names of everyone who is in the public eye ranging from athletes to presidents."

The biorhythm follower claims a batter can vary 85 percentage points in his average depending upon whether or not he is in an up or down cycle.

"With pitchers you can tell 90 percent of the time if they are going to make it that day or if they are not going to make it at all," he said.

The biorhythm theory postulates:

--During the first half of the 23-day physical cycle, a person is more vigorous and his endurance is greater. Athletes supposedly perform better during this half of the cycle. During the second, or negative, half, a person has less energy and tries more quickly.

--During the first half of the 28-day sensitivity cycle, a person is more cheerful and optimistic, while during the second half he is more moody and negative.

--During the first half the 33-day intellectual cycle, a person thinks more clearly, and remembers better. It is the best time for studying and creative work. During the second half, thinking ability is lessened and it is more difficult to learn.

Baseball Injuries

Peterson claims he was able to predict that Bill Freehan was going to have a bad day before he was hit on the jaw with an inside pitch last year and when Mickey Stanley broke his wrist two years ago after being hit.

The Mancelona resident says he can do much the same with football and basketball players, too.

Peterson says one of his biggest followers is the Michigan State basketball coach who has been using biorhythms for several years with his players.

"My theory is that if a coach can see his athletes' mistakes on his chart, the coach will understand their mistakes," he said.

Biorhythms aren't limited to sports. Peterson has been able to predict when President Ford would have difficulties delivering a speech or when CBS News Editor Walter Cronkite would have a tough time with the news.

Peterson claims he was able to tell Houston Control in 1973 that Skylab Space Station Commander Pete Conrad would have a poor emotional day would have to delay his space walk a day.

Biorhythm studies have attracted the attention of numerous safety officials anxious to cut down on industrial accidents. Several airlines have looked at it.

One, United Airlines, has given employees at its maintenance base in San Francisco International Airport and some other stations computerized biorhythm charts on a voluntary basis.

The Mancelona resident says one European airline will not let a pilot and co-pilot fly together if they are both in low periods.

Peterson says his primary interest is with sports because the biorhythm study makes it most interesting.

"It's not so much who wins or loses, but how they do, and if people understand how they feel," he said.

Biorhythms may eventually help people understand each other better, Peterson contends.

Eggs Keep Him Busy

By TOM DAMMANN

"You should have taken the picture the next day. It was sunny and the chicadees were nice and friendly," Jerry Haggerty chided a writer as he examined the photo. "They get pretty wild in stormy weather--like the day your wife took that picture."

Jerry who is 82 has been feeding chicadees in pretty much the same place as long as he can remember.

Sunflower seeds in a corncob pipe serve as an appetizer. The entre is coffee tins of seeds, in addition to perpetually full hanging feeders.

He was born in the house across the Boyne City Road from where he now lives, with his wife of 55 years, the former Hazel Shearer, several hundred yards beyond Susan Lake, almost five miles out of Charlevoix.

His son, Daniel, operates the family egg business on the site, where Jerry and his five sisters and two brothers were born and raised.

There are only three of his generation left; his brother, George D. Haggerty, who lives on Burgess Road and U.S. 31, his sister Mrs. Nora Routley, who lives down near Ellsworth and himself.

Jerry is taciturn.

One spring day he telephoned a writer and without identifying himself said in his gravely voice, "If you want to take some pictures of deer, get up here at 4:30. They've been passin' by, up from the swamp, last few afternoons. Good pictures."

He hung up.

But over the years, between idle comments on the weather, while buying a dozen eggs, an alert person can glean bits and snatches of information.

For example, one of Jerry's childhood playmates was the late Presidential candidate, Governor of Illinois and U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, Adlaie E. Stevenson.

"My sister Agnes used to work for the Stevenson family, when they came up here from Bloomington, Ill. to the Belvedere Club in summer," Jerry explained. "She cooked and watched after the kids. She went out to California with them. Was out there during the big earthquake in 1906.

"I used to play with Adlai. I was five years older. He was a spindly legged kid then.

"I voted for him twice."

Now Jerry's overriding concern is wildlife.

He used to feed hay daily to the deer in winter.

"We had a trailer parked down there." He pointed to a field spreading toward the cedar swamp that edges Lake Charlevoix. "The deer used to eat the hay right off the bumper of the trailer. People found out they were so tame they'd come 'n shoot 'em. So I quit feeding them."

Jerry has had more than one encounter with poachers.

One night several springs ago he saw somebody shining lights down into the field between his place and Lester Umlor's farm. He drove his truck down the road and shined its spot light on them and they quickly dispersed.

"Next day a guy called me on the telephone and said, 'I'll get you before the week is out.'"

"I said, 'Fine, Okay. Come over I'll be waiting for you.'"

Jerry's eyes and mouth danced with amusment.

"They put him in jail for six months, for beating up on his wife. But I think he got that deer down by Umlor's. Remember?"

Jerry says he has forgotten the man's name.

"They're jumpin' on that picture company (CBS TV, "Guns of Autumn") that took all those pictures of slob hunters. But the thing is there's a lot of truth in it," he said, grinning.

"You should have got a picture of the tree five of them slobs shot down last deer hunting season.

"I heard lots of shots out behind the house, down the Camp Charlevoix Road toward the lake," he explained. "I got in my car and drove down there and see these five guys. A couple of them got between me and their car, so's I couldn't see their license number.

I asked 'em what they were shootin' at and they said at a cartridge box. But after they left I saw that it was my 'No Hunting' Sign.

" A couple days later the wind blew the tree down, just like it had been sawed."

"It was a big cedar," Jerry said, making a circle of about eight inches in diameter with his hands. "It took five of them slobs to shoot it down."

Garden Club Attempts to Organize

Plans to form an Organic Gardening Club for the Charlevoix area will be aired at a public meeting scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 10 at the Community Room of the First State Bank.

The nucleus of the club will be members of an Organic Gardening class held earlier through the Adult Education program at the Charlevoix High School and taught by Harold Wilson who has been asked to organize a club.

In announcing the plans, Mr. Wilson said the club would be open to those people who also are interested in bee keeping, homesteading, small animal care, food storage and canning.

Anyone interested may call Mr. Wilson at 547-2182 after 6 p.m. for additional information.

Initial plans for the club were made at a recent dinner.

Supplements Needed

Charlevoix County Commissioners get another chance this month to reconsider their vote on giving additional salary supplements for our three local judges.

We look forward to them voting in support of supplements that have been so justly earned by the judges.

Commissioners learned recently that the last vote in favor of additional supplements was not sufficient because there was not a clear majority of the 15 commissioners voting affirmatively.

Supplements are simply a common practice made by local counties to support base salaries already paid by the state.

Base salaries for judges are $28,500 for circuit judges, $26,000 for probate judges and $21,500 for district judges.

Charlevoix County now only offers $1,200 supplements–one of the state's lowest supplement concept, we have heard that several of the commissioners were against the move because they think judges are earning too much now.

We can't agree with this logic and fear the lack of local support will jeopardize the quality of our local judicial system.

It has taken too long for this county to restore the quality of justice it so righteously deserves, to now watch it again deteriorate because of bad judgement exercised by county governing officials.

As it stands now, Charlevoix County will be the only one out of three who will not be fully supporting the judge at the circuit level, as well as the only one not backing the probate and district courts at the level commensurate with Emmet County.

We feel the present $1,200 supplement for each of the judges is not adequate and urge the county commission to again consider raising the present level at their February meeting.

Ship Sinks

More than 135 years of Great Lakes history will leave Michigan in June when the Lake Survey Center closes its doors.

The Survey Center, through its Detroit-based office, has provided charts and maps to Great Lakes sailors for years.

Government officials said at least 15 positions will be eliminated at a savings of $425,000 annually. But longtime employees of the center, even those who say they will be little affected by the transfer, charge that the switch will hurt the government's effectiveness.

We feel the cost cutting move will deal a serious blow to local marine navigators who have been depending upon the chart accuracy for years.

The center, an operation of National Oceana Survey (NOS) of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, will be closed June 30 with its functions moving to NOS headquarters in Rockville, Virginia or to the Environmental Research Laboratory in Ann Arbor.

Now located in the Federal Building, the Lake Survey Center had 42 employees plus one small ship and field part of 12 assigned to a site in Monroe.

In addition, about 30 temporary positions are filled each summer to aid in field operations.

The center, created in 1841 as an office of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in Buffalo, moved to Detroit four years later. It was transferred from Army to Department of Commerce control in 1970.

Because its scope includes the New York State Barge Canal system, Lake Champlain and the Minnesota-Ontario Border Lakes, the center studies and maps an area extending halfway across the continent.

Its surveys and studies encompass hydrographic, topographic, horizontal and vertical geodetic controls and water level surveys. The center also supplies limited support to the Great Lake Environmental Research Laboratory in Ann Arbor, to which the ship, Shenehon, will be transferred.

The center maintains a chart sales office for boaters and pilots in the Detroit Federal Building, but after June 30, charts will no longer be sold.

We think this "budget cutting move" will seriously hamper the attractiveness of Michigan's economy in several ways.

Besides making it inconvenient for the recreational boater, it will make it more difficult for the commercial traffic.

The Great Lakes are as important economically or more important than coastal waters that surround the United States because of the manufacturing, shipping and recreation done on them.

We think the federal government is placing both Michigan and other neighboring coastal states in a serious predicament.

Letters to the editor

Answers McRae

Dear Editor,

In answer to a letter by Ralph McRae in your Jan. 21 issue, may I ask:

Mr. McRae -

1. How many times have you visited Grandvue Medical Facility, since you lived in Charlevoix County?

2. Are you referring to a bank, or a shopping-center, when you mention "Branch" for Grandvue?

3. Are you aware of the number of members of the Grandvue Auxiliary, throughout our County, who are very sincerely interested in Grandvue – the time the members devote to patients at Grandvue, to help make their lives a bit brighter?

4. Have you any idea of the number of interested people from various organizations throughout our County, who devote their time and effort, for the patients of Grandvue?

5. Have you ever witnessed the regular Sunday p.m. and weekday religious services, which are held at Grandvue, for the benefit of the patients – these services are held by Ministers and Priests from throughout our County?

6. Are you aware of the fact that any one of us can feel lonely and depressed right in our own homes – yes, even in a crowd! The location of Grandvue is not the reason for these feelings.

7. We taxpayers of Charlevoix County – and City of Charlevoix, should be so very grateful for a Facility such as Grandvue, to care for human beings who cannot care for themselves. The care they receive at Grandvue is the best possible. I know this from my own experience with loved ones, and my neighbors.

8. The facilities now at Grandvue are all adequate for the proposed addition, which means the cost would not begin to compare with the building of a "Branch" in the City of Charlevoix - corner of Grant and W. Carpenter Streets.

Mr. McRae, I hope that when, and if you – or any of your loved ones – go to Grandvue for care, it will be there for you, because Grandvue is one of the best Medical Facilities in the State of Michigan.

Sincerely,
Mary M. Geiken

Help Needed

The Charlevoix-Emmet Association for Retarded Citizens thanks all the parents and interested persons for attending the January meeting. Officers were elected and committees formed to make 1976 an interesting, educational, and fun year for our Retarded Citizens. A donation of $100.00 was given towards needed equipment for the Occupational Therapist, Larry Whitehead who works with our children to increase their growth and develop motor skills.

Guest speaker Cecelia Stanaway was tremendous in speaking and answering our question on 'Sex Ed. and Your Handicapped Children'. She was greatly appreciated.

It was decided to print a monthly newsletter of our activities, meeting dates, and local handicapped events for members and others interested. It was also decided to invite High School and College students in the Charlevoix-Emmet Counties to join us in our meetings to help the Retarded. We'll be discussing what we are doing and what more we can do in our Feb. 9th meeting. If you are interested in joining our meetings or wish to receive the newsletter, just write:

And Wayne's Friends:

He was never Mr. Belding. "Call me Wayne." Artists are like that. He loved his little town and sold it every minute he could. Even though brash and stubborn at times, his creative imagination held us spellbound for years. Often his first words were, "I've got an idea."

He came to Florida to be warm; and so he is and so are all those he loved the most. A direct and loving artist is gone. Our thanks for your consideration all these years and for the memorial service and for watching over him since he became so ill.

We are most appreciative, Warren Belding, Paul Belding, Sharon Knutson, Helen Belding.

Clockwise

by Bob Clock

It was one of those days

What do you do when you wake up on Ground Hog's day and find the lights and water off?

Your first natural, normal and sensible impulse is to crawl back between the covers and wait out the emergency in comfort. After all, hadn't we heard on TV Sunday night that Charlevoix schools would be closed because of drifting snow?

But the sensible course is never the course you take, is it?

I had set the alarm for 5:30 a.m., so I could get up, finish my Courier column over a cup of hot coffee, have a nice breakfast and leave for work in Petoskey at 7:30 a.m. as usual.

However, the alarm clock didn't go off at 5:30 like it was supposed to. Finally I poked Judy in the ribs.

"I think the room is getting light, but the alarm clock hasn't gone off," I shivered.

Judy leaped to her feet and rushed to the window to look at her watch by the pale light of early dawn. It was 20 minutes after seven.

I jumped up and tried to turn on the overhead light. Nothing. Then I vaulted across the frozen hardwood floor to reach the little light above the basin. Nothing. I screwed the bulb in tighter. Still nothing.

"I think the power is off," I said dismally.

Together we picked our steps through the darkened hallways to the staircase and stumbled down into the dining room. In a minute I had the oil lamp lit in the middle of the dining room table and Judy found a vanilla candle in a little red glass jar and lit it.

"That will do nicely for shaving," I said and hurried into the bathroom like Florennce Nightengale with her lantern. I put the candle in the tooth-brush rack and proceeded to brush my teeth. Only there was no water. I stumbled back into the kitchen with my candle.

"Would you like a cup of coffee?" Judy asked.

"I'd love a cup of coffee, but there isn't any water."

"What about lunch?"

"It's too cold to bother about lunch. What's the thermometer say?"

Judy checked the thermostat thermometer and reported it was 50 degrees. Of course, the furnace had gone out with the electric power.

"I'm going back to bed," Judy said. "I'll keep the kids in bed until the heat goes on."

I put on all the warm outer clothes I could find and stepped out on the front porch. The thermometer said it was 20 below—but it seemed much colder. Fortunately, the wind had died down during the night and I only had to shovel a ton of snow from the driveway. Then, miraculously, the car started. I picked up Candi McPharlin on Antrim-st., then stopped at Fran Martin's to pick up her news copy.

A half hour later we were at the candlelit offices of the Petoskey News-Review, after one of the coldest drives I have ever made. I had to keep the window open to keep the windshield clear of frost. But even at that my little hand scraper was kept busy continuously.

This Clockwise is being written by the light of a propane lamp, donated to the cause by News-Review women's editor Betty Washburn. The teletypes, the picture machine, the typesetting machines, the computers—all are down. I am drinking instant coffee made with rapidly cooling water from the hot water tank. My fingers are getting stiff, since the furnace has been out for the past four hours on one of the coldest days in northern Michigan.

Power has been promised by noon at the earliest.

Promises, promises.

Erma Bombeck

According to her height and weight on the insurance charts, she should be a guard for the Lakers.

She has iron-starved blood, one shoulder is lower than the other, and she bites her fingernails.

She is the most beautiful woman I have ever seen. She should be. She's worked on that body and face for more than 60 years. The process for that kind of beauty can't be rushed.

The wrinkles in the face have been earned... one at a time. The stubborn one around the lips that has deepened with every "No!" The thin ones on the forehead that mysteriously appeared when the first child was born.

The eyes are protected by glass now, but you can still see the perma-crinkles around them. Young eyes are darting and fleeting. These are mature eyes that reflect a lifetime. Eyes that have glistened with pride, filled with tears of sorrow, snapped in anger, and burned from loss of sleep. They are now direct and penetrating and look at you when you speak.

The bulges are classics. They developed slowly from babies too sleepy to walk who had to be carried home from Grandma's, grocery bags lugged from the car, ashes carried out of the basement while her husband was at war. Now, they are fed by a minimum of activity, a full refrigerator, and TV bends.

The extra chin is custom-grown and takes years to perfect. Sometimes you can only see it from the side but it's there. Pampered women don't have an extra chin. They cream them away or pat the muscles until they become firm. But this chin has always been there, supporting a nodding head that slept in a chair all night...bent over knitting ...praying.

The legs are still shapely, but the step is slower. They ran too often from the bus, stood a little too long when she "clerked" in the department store, got beat up while teaching her daughter how to ride a two-wheeler. They're purple in the back of the knees.

The hands? They're small and veined and have been dunked, dipped, shook, patted, wrung, caught in doors, splintered, dyed, bitten and blistered, but you can't help but be impressed when you see the ring finger that has shrunk from years of wearing the same wedding ring. It takes time – and much more – to diminsh a finger.

I looked at mother long and hard the other day and said, "Mom, I have never seen you so beautiful."

"I work at it," she snapped.

Bible can prove anything

Jesus Christ!

That's how I began a column a few weeks ago. It was a gimmick to catch the attention of the many Christians who ordinarily wouldn't read this nonsense unless they were in a strange town, wearing a plain brown wrapper.

My intention was to mildly rebuke those Christians who can't see over their Bibles and who would slam heaven's gates on everyone who has not seen the light of the Wednesday Evening Prayer Meeting. I had been turned off by a mid-western city which ran a Hindu sect out of town simply because it wasn't Christian. This didn't sound like Jesus Christ to me.

I expected some adverse response to that column, but this is ridiculous. I am up to my fanny in Bible quotations and religious pamphlets. I have been accused of being everything from a Jew to a Jehovah's Witness to a Communist spy.

And I have been told I am so dumb I "do not know Catholics and Protestants are not Christians." Huh?

The letter-writers who amaze me are those who can go on for 12 pages, single-spaced, and not write one sentence that makes sense. They are quoting the Bible. I can tell because every few paragraphs they switch to capital letters and write something like: HEBREWS 9:39, Verse 25. Very impressive.

I studied the Bible for 2 semesters at Mich. State University. This was a Literature course, not Religion, which is probably where I went wrong. Also it was an easy course – there were 3 football players in it. So I certainly don't claim to be a Bible scholar. Let's just say I read the book, many years ago, and enjoyed it. It was a h— of a lot better than the movie.

But the Bible didn't change my life. It didn't save me. And it didn't make me think any more highly of such living legends as Oral Roberts (he was preaching on the Mike Douglas TV show the other day and I thought he was reading my mail).

I think a man who has never read the Bible, or never been inside a church, can be "saved," whether that might mean to him or to you. And I think some of the great Bible-thumping church-goers can be "lost," and good riddance to bad rubbish, as the neighborhood kids used to chant.

The important criteria is how a man lives his life and how he treats EVERYONE he bumps into on his way to church – or on his way to the bowling alley.

It's just the old-fashioned Golden Rule. If a man lives by it and also goes to church, he's got all bets covered and I'm all for him. Some of the nicest people I know go to church and then come home and tell me what I missed. God bless them.

But to each his own. The good man who doesn't go for organized religion, who shrugs off the Bible, is still a good man. Yes, even if he's an atheist. And if he's broad minded enough not to bug the Bible fans, they should return the courtesy.

Most people who send me bushels of quotes from the Bible usually added: "You probably won't read this." Right. I've already read it all and it's no use.

Skillful people can use Bible quotes to prove most anything, and they've done it to me many times. Usually the "prove" its sinful for whites to mix with blacks, or to dance, or to see a movie, or enjoy sex. And so on.

My answer is always the same. If the Bible really says such dumb things, the Bible is wrong. No big deal. A lot of books are wrong. The Bible is printed in ink, not carved in a cloud.

Organized religion, going by the book, can accomplish marvelous things. It can also help put Lebanon and Ireland on the 6 o'clock news, soaked in blood.

Jesus Christ!

Meet Charlevoix

George Baldwin

It wasn't too many years ago that it was difficult to receive television in Charlevoix. The advent of cable of television has brought a whole new picture to the area.

George Baldwin, president and general manager of Lake Charlevoix Cable Television, Inc. talks about his industry and its impact on Northern Michigan.

Baldwin, who lives in Charlevoix, has four children. His cable company serves Charlevoix, Boyne City, East Jordan and Gaylord.

Born and raised in Birmingham, Michigan, Baldwin moved to Northern Michigan after he was in the service and has lived here since then.

COURIER: How long have you worked with cable television?

BALDWIN: I started in the Upper Peninsula in 1959. We built and operated Escanoba and Gladstone. I was a stockholder and general manager of the corporation. The majority interest decided to sell to Jack Kent Cooke, who owns several west coast sports franchises including the Los Angeles Lakers. I stayed on in the upper peninsula as manager until the opportunity came to come to Charlevoix the Beautiful.

COURIER: What made you decide to move to Charlevoix?

BALDWIN: My wife and I are both from lower Northern Michigan and this was available, so we jumped at the chance. So in 1966, we started plans and construction in the city of Charlevoix, by building our tower at Mt. McSouba. Then we ran our cables through town, which we have about 30 miles in the air and through the ground.

COURIER: Can you tell us about your operation?

BALDWIN: The signals originate for the system at Mt. McSauba and then they go through the 30 miles of cable and are amplified five times per mile to guarantee a good signal. As we pass a house, we can tap a small amount of signal because the cable passing has 30 times the signal required to run a television set. The amplifiers must be maintained at 100 percent condition at all times. We receive Northern Michigan stations directly through the air at our tower, while having to bring in distant stations, such as from Detroit, via a common carrier microwave.

COURIER: Can you explain why you had to make the recent changes on the cable dial?

BALDWIN: Because the new educational television station (Channel 6 and 14) had such a strong signal, it could be picked up by the television set directly along with the cable signal. This caused interference to the viewer. The same problem was experienced on cable channel four in some areas at times, especially colored programming. By switching some of the channels around, we no longer have any problems.

COURIER: Charlevoix City Council recently received some type of request from you regarding the educational television station. Can you elaborate?

BALDWIN: The federal and state governments request more and more information and impose more rules on cable television systems. In this case, the Federal Communication Commission (FCC) demanded that we get prior approval from them before we could carry the new public broadcasting station. Another one of their rules says we have to carry them. So attorneys had to be hired both locally, and in Washington, to make the proper filings to the proper parties. Consequently, the red tape delayed us getting Channel 6 on the air when it first came on. The council had to be made aware of our efforts. The superintendent of schools also had to be made aware of our work. All northern television stations had to be made aware of it also. All three then had 30 days to objects and could have delayed it for another year with a public hearing process.

COURIER: What was the outcome with your fight to keep sports on cable television?

BALDWIN: Major sports promoters were trying to keep their ball parks full and making people drive down to Detroit by blocking the broadcast of games on cable television. The move was defeated in the last session of Congress, but the bills have been reintroduced in this session. I personally, along with both state and national cable associations, are fighting these kinds of efforts. We may even have to ask the public to join us. I would encourage everyone to write their congressman and senators, as well as the FCC about it.

COURIER: What do you see as the future for cable television?

BALDWIN: I think the future is great if we can eliminate a lot of the unnecessary rules and don't make any new ones. I know in this area we will do all we can to promote it. We want to bring more and more service to our area, but have to constantly fight the bureaucracy. As an example, for the last seven years, we have been trying to bring in a Windsor station. But the FCC has never scheduled a hearing to allow us to do it. In an effort to improve late night television watching, we have been trying for three years to bring up programming from Chicago, but have run into similar roadblocks.

We, your Equalization Committee, recommend that in compliance with Rule 41 of the State Tax Commission's General Rules requiring each county Equalization Department to make an equalization study each year in each unit in the county and to furnish a copy of the study to the State Tax Commission, Charlevoix County hereby submits its equalization studies.

However, due to past performance by the State Tax Commission in NOT Complying with the Constitution and the laws governing state equalization, thereby allowing counties not to submit studies and further allowing those counties to circumvent the equalization process and the law, thereby creating inequities between school districts and nullifying the intent of the Constitution to guarantee uniformity of taxation, we strongly protest any increase over and above our equalization studies that the State Tax Commission might plan to increase our County Equalized Value.

We submit our studies under compulsion and do not have any assurance in anyway that the State Tax Commission will perform good, fair, and equitable state equalization in 1976, nor do we have any assurance that the legislature will see fit to allow the State Tax Commission to perform the duties required by law by budgeting them an amount of monies to perform the necessary requirements to insure equitable equalization throughout the counties in the State of Michigan.

Copies of this resolution to be sent to: Sen. Robert W. Davis; Rep. Ralph Ostling; Rep. Dan Stevens; Sen. John Bowman, Senate Taxation Committee Chairman; Rep. George Montgomery, House Taxation Committee Chairman; Gov. William C. Milliken, and the State Tax Commissioners.

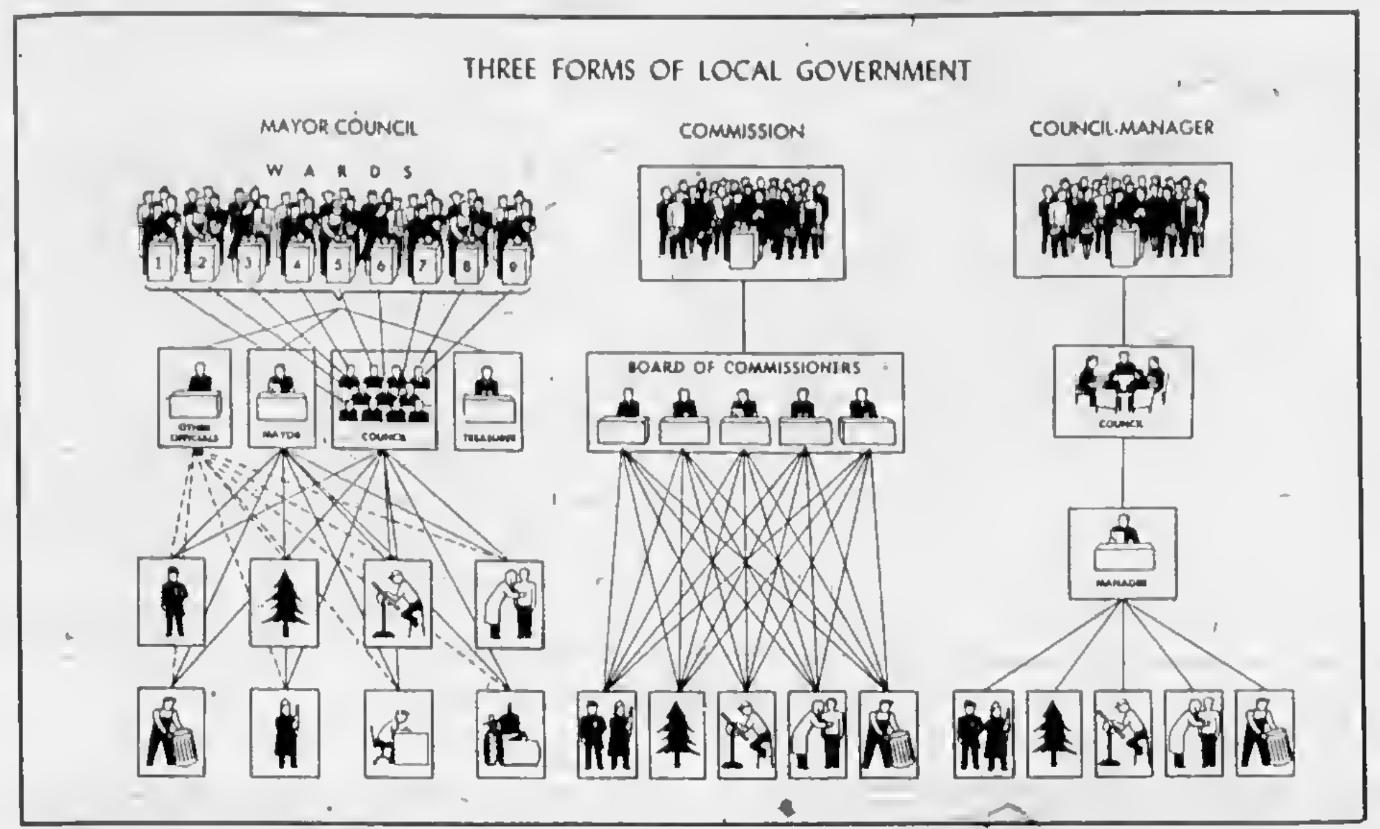
THREE FORMS OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT



Thoughts from Charter Commission

On April 15, 1975 at 8 p.m. in the council chambers of the City Hall, nine elected members of the Charlevoix Charter Commission sat down to ponder the question, "What kind of government do the citizens of this community want"?

There was no question that they wanted a change, for they had voted YES in the majority on the proposal that there "Shall be a general revision of the charter." Charlevoix is presently operating under the Fourth Class Cities Act which is basically a charter granted by the state legislature that establishes for the city a form of government. This form cannot be changed without a complete change of the charter by a vote of the people bringing it under the "Home Rule Act" or by a further act of the legislature.

The next step, aside from organizing the commission itself, was to determine what forms of government were available to us and why we might choose one over the other. The first thing that occurs in every taxpayers' thoughts are, (a) how much are all these elections costing me? (B) how can I get to the guy who raised my taxes? and (c) how can I ensure that my city government is being handled efficiently (economicaly) without continually involving myself in day to day matters of the city?

One possible answer to all of these questions is to choose a King for Charlevoix thereby eliminating politics, election costs, the worry about who to blame and the burden of being subsequently involved. This system apparently works well for the Kingdom of Schuss. On the other hand, one might desire to be absolutely democratic and require that every action on behalf of the community be put to a general vote at a full Town Meeting.

It is not too difficult to eliminate monarchy on the one extreme and anarchy on the other from the list of desirable choices. By reviewing extensive information available from the National Municipal League, surrounding communities and with certain help from the offices of our elected state and national representatives we were able to get down to three types of municipal government. The three that we have seriously considered are:

(a) Commission type; where about five elected commissioners actually run five separate departments of a city.

(b) Strong Mayor type; where the mayor has all the power and is a combination political leader and city manager.

(c) Council-manager type; where the elected council acts as the policy maker and fund controller, but where the actual business of the city is performed by a professional manager.

There was not a great deal of argument in eliminating the Commission type. That form is extremely political and has so many overlapping responsibilities that the opportunity for duplication and skull-dudgery is unacceptable. There are very few of this type governments left.

We were thus faced with the consideration of the Strong Mayor and the Council-manager types. For this purpose the Charter Commission invited both past and present members of the city government to address their comments and observations to the Commission. We also interviewed officials from other communities before the commission and in turn, visited the working organization of selected communities. Every service club and organization in Charlevoix was invited to participate in discussions.

Rayders Score Big, 92-83

The Charlevoix Rayders racked up their fourth victory of the current season Friday when they defeated Rogers City by a score of 92-83.

This week will find the Rayders entertaining Harbor Springs in a non-league game Tuesday and meeting St. Ignace in another home game on Friday. Next Tuesday, the Rayders will travel to Benzie Central.

Friday found the Rayders playing one of their finest games this season. With all five starters scoring in the opening period, they jumped to a 26-14 first period lead; continue to hit for a 46-26 advantage at halftime and a 70-46 lead at the three quarter mark after pouring in 11 field goals and two free throws. They added 22 points in the last eight minutes for a solid 92-83 win.

The victory avenged an earlier 64-58 loss to the Hurons on the Rayders' floor.

The game was also a defensive battle for the Rayders as they held the Hurons to 32 field goals. Rogers City also had 19 of 26 charity shots and collected 23 personal fouls.

Charlevoix, on the other hand, poured in 38 from the floor and 16 of 28 free throws. The team had 21 personal fouls.

Scoring was well scattered with six players in double figures......Bud Klooster and Dave Tollas with 20 points each, Scott Boss, who was not a starter, with 14; Bob Alger and Matt Doan with 13 each and Pat Schaefer with 10 points.

Randy Peltz had 22 points, Ken Gorlewski 20, Dan Zielenski 15 and Mark Belusar 12 points for the Hurons.

The Charlevoix JV's lost by a score of 52-48.

Freshmen Win

The Charlevoix freshmen had a successful night against Rogers City last Tuesday when they came out of the game with a 61-48 victory.

Doug Buday scored 17 points, Pat Schmidt 16 and Barney Way 13 as Charlevoix led Rogers City 14-6; 30-18 and 46-34 by quarters.

Idalski had 22 points for Rogers City.

Charlevoix will be at St. Ignace on Thursday and at Harbor Springs the following Tuesday.

Matmen Defeat St. Ignace

The Charlevoix wrestlers observed a special Parents Night Thursday by defeating St. Ignace by a score of 58-12.

This week will find the grapplers hosting Petoskey in their last home meet of the season at 8:30 p.m. Thursday; traveling to Rogers City to participate in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference meet on Saturday and taking to the road again Monday to wrestle at Rudyard.

In winning Thursday night, the Rayders took 10 of the 12 matches, seven of them by pins. Mike Snizik, in the 138 pound weight class, had the fastest pin of the meet, downing his man in :57 seconds.

Preceding the meet, Coach Norm Probert conducted a clinic on wrestling moves in which he pointed out that wrestling is for everyone. He demonstrated how the sport was for the blind by blindfolding two of his wrestlers in a match. He also pointed out the need for additional space at the school for use by the team presently composed of 38 students. The team now uses the high school study hall for practice sessions.

Girls Win 1 out of 3

The Charlevoix High School Girls Volleyball team had a bad time on the courts at St. Ignace Wednesday night when they dropped two of their three matches for the night.

This week the team will be at Gaylord with St. Ignace and Petoskey.

In last week's outing, Charlevoix defeated Rogers City 15-3; 4-15; 15-12 but lost to St. Ignace 16-14 and 15-10 and to Grayling 15-8; 9-15 and 15-7.

Charlevoix, after three nights of play, now has a 6-3 record.

Russell Shell Moves into Top

Two overtime games and the setting of a new scoring record for the season highlighted action in the Class B Independent Basketball play last week.

On Wednesday Russell Shell moved into the league lead with a record of nine wins and one loss after edging County State Bank by a score of 67-60 in the first overtime game. In other games the same night, LaBlance Insurance, now in second place with an 8-1 record, defeated Village Milkhouse 58-32 and Klooster John Deere squeaked past First State Bank by a 49-47 score.

On Thursday night Credit Union and Freedman's played to a 45-45 tie before Credit Union outscored Freedman's 7-5 in the overtime for the win.

In other action, Wojan Aluminum downed Medusa 85-58 and Bay Shore Steel edged AlRay Cottages 47-44.

On Wednesday night Dave Norton set a new scoring record by dumping in 37 points for Russell Shell. The following night, Beano Archey broke the record with 38 points for Medusa.

Dave Norton with his 37 points paced the game as Russell Shell led County State Bank 13-10 at the first quarter and 34-28 at halftime only to have the Bankers fight back to take a 44-40 lead going into the final eight minutes. Russell's battled back to knot the score 57-all after outscoring the Bankers 17-13 in the final period. They continued to outscore County State Bank 10-3 in the overtime for the victory that moved the team into the league lead.

Also scoring for the victors were Mike Crain with 14 points and Leroy Buchanan with 12. Larry Skippergosh had 22 points and Steve Martinus and Dennis Rickertson 14 points each for County State.

LaBlance Insurance coasted to a 58-32 win over Village Milkhouse after heading the Villagers 18-4; 34-21 and 42-27 by quarters. Sam Supernaw with 19 points was top scorer for the game followed by Joe Beaudoin with 17 and Jim Gels with 12. Bill Gengle had 13 and Paul Parrish 10 points for Village Milkhouse.

Klooster John Deere had to come from behind, after trailing 11-2 at the quarter and 23-21 at halftime, to knot the score 35-all at the third period before pulling the game out by a 49-47 margin at the final horn. Connie Klooster with 20 points and Butch Wagner with 18 were top scorers for the victors. Gary Stutzman had 17 and Larry Roth 14 points for the Bankers.

Credit Union also had a tough row before knotting the score in the final minutes and then defeating Freedman's by a 52-50 score in an overtime. Credit Union had trailed 13-9; tied Freedman's 23-all at halftime and then went ahead 35-32 at the three-quarter mark. Freedman's however, came back in the final eight minutes to tie the score 45-all and throw the game into overtime. Gary Novotny with 22 points led the scoring with Frank Hackett adding 11 for Credit Union. Bernie DeVries had 21 and Terry Blissett 14 for Freedman's.

Though Beano Archey set a scoring record for the season with 38 points, his efforts were not enough to save the game for Medusa from Wojan Aluminum as the latter led all the way, 12-10; 33-26 and 60-40 by quarters. Stan Martin had 27 points, Larry Martin 16, Don Blalock and Don Smith 13 each for Wojan's. Mike Reinhart had 14 for Medusa.

In another game that saw the score change many times, Bay Shore Steel managed a three-point win over AlRay Cottages. The Cottagers jumped to a 14-13 lead which they lost to the Steelers by margins of 27-17 and 33-28 at the quarters before closing the gap to three points as time ran out. Rich Wojan had 14 points and Charlie Borths and Bob Borths 12 points each for Bay Shore Steel. Bob Carson dumped in 29 for the Cottagers.

Happy Birthday

Mrs. Clarence B. Meggison observed her 80th birthday anniversary recently. In honor of the occasion, Mrs. Marcia Alger hosted a birthday party.

After the party it was discovered that the total ages of the honoree, the hostess and the six guests added up to a total of 660 or an average of 82½ years.

The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Gerold Bedell of Bellaire, brother and sister-in-law of Mrs. Meggison who are 92 and 80 years old, respectively, who drove from Bellaire for the occasion, Mrs. Amos Towsley who is 91, Mrs. Jessie Knutson (84), Mrs. Elizabeth Reinhart (79), Mrs. Evva Smith (78) and the hostess, Mrs. Alger, who, at 76, was the youngest of the group.

Getting the guests to the party resulted in a cooperative effort by Mrs. Meggison's son, Don and her daughter, Mrs. James Alger and family who plowed drives and shoveled walks so Mrs. Alger could pick up and bring some of the guests to the party in the near-zero weather.

Economy

We're looking for a real building boom in the spring, largely residential."

Alvin W. Pals, Chairman of the Board of the Northwestern Bank, East Jordan and Boyne City, says the holiday season was unusually good and predicts a general upturn in the economy this spring.

The feeling of optimism is shared in Petoskey.

Conrad Walling, President of the Petoskey State Bank and Trust Company, points out that tourism, no longer just a summer business, is a 10 months business upon which the area economy is based.

"A record season is being experienced," he says. "It looks excellent. Business is improving generally, partly as a result. There is 10 percent unemployment over the state, but the other 90 percent have money and they are beginning to spend it. That means peoples' confidence in the economy is recovering."

Wallin said he would be more confident if he felt inflation were licked.

Raymond T. Conley, President of First National Bank of Petoskey, the area's largest, agrees.

"All in all, I think we're going to have a reasonably good year," Conley says. "People have the money and seem to be willing to spend it. The building construction people are busy and seem to be encouraged. There's lots of remodeling and additions being built."

The Petoskey area Chamber of Commerce reports that real estate deeds and land contracts in December almost doubled those of December 1974, with 156 in 1975 as opposed to 97 in 1974.

"We have a good firm start for 1976," says Merle C. Lutz, Chamber Director. "We have an excellent winter ski season and already inquiries for summer residence are keeping pace. We have a proven yardstick. If Florida does well in winter, we do well here in summer. Florida is booming this year. Retailers are doing well. Industrially we are steady, and there are a hopeful number of building starts."

Once the weather made up its mind to be winter, skiing began with a bang, as reflected not only in lodges and eateries but in the broken bones treated at Little Traverse Hospital emergency room.

Mrs. Doris Sarns, owner-manager of Nub's Nob Ski Area, outside Harbor Springs, says the Christmas-New Year Season was the best she has experienced and that bookings on weekends through mid-March are solid. Like many other slope operators, she is trying to increase her middle of the week business, exploiting her major asset, the informal family atmosphere of her resort and the intimacy of the ski classes.

Business at Boyne Country, comprising the four areas – Boyne Mt., at Boyne Falls, Boyne Highlands at Harbor Springs and Walloon Hills and Thunder Mt., in between – is 20 percent ahead of last year, its best since opening in 1947. Attendance records were broken on Dec. 29., with 5,000 skiers at Boyne Highlands, 4,000 at Boyne Mt., and a balance of 2,000 at Walloon and Thunder Mt., according to Mrs. Jamie Bauman, Director of Public Relations.

Ninety-seven thousand four hundred skiers bought ski lift tickets on Boyne Country slopes between December 24 and January 4, Mrs. Bauman said.

To understand what that figure means to the area economy, alone, Bankers say you must multiply the 97,400 ticket purchases by $50.00, a conservative figure representing the ticket cost, lodging, food, beverages, gift purchases, and gasoline. The result means that a minimum of five million dollars was injected into the economy of the area surrounding Boyne Country during that almost two week period.

Up and down the line motel and restaurant proprietors and managers are enthusiastic about the prosperity that has rubbed off on their business.

George Richardson, one of the owners of the Weathervane Inn Restaurant, in Charlevoix, says that business there has been much better this year than last even though Charlevoix is some 25 miles from Boyne Mt., the nearest slope. Bookings at the Weathervane Terrace Motel are up 20 to 25 percent through March, he says, and that is reflected in the restaurant.

Jim Johnson, manager of the Petoskey Holiday Inn, reports 100 percent occupancy of its 147 rooms during the holiday period. He says this season is already running 8 percent ahead of last year, with weekends booked solid by skiers until April and commercial business during weekdays well ahead of any previous year.

"It is the best ever," Johnson said.

An unique barometer of business is the Charlevoix Chemical Co., which sells chemicals, basically petroleum based solvents and mineral acids to industry, swimming pool chemicals and chemical products for dry cleaning and laundry maintenance in an area limited by Manistee, Cadillac, Gaylord, Grayling, Alpena, Cheboygan and St. Ignace.

"Our sales in December were the best in seven years and January looks like it will continue," says George Nipson, President. "Sixty percent of this was made to light industry, manufacturers of paper products, archery equipment, plastics machinery, for fabricating concrete blocks, and some automotive affiliated concerns."

Nipson attaches special significance to this sales increase for two reasons: one, because 1975 had been a year when he had had to write off a large number of bad debts because of client failures, and bankruptcies; and two, because they have occurred in December when business men normally don't buy because they don't want to build inventories because of taxes or seasonal slowdowns.

IT'S ABOUT TIME — FOR FAITH TO MAKE YOUR LIFE COUNT

How soon the days and years will pass
We know beyond a doubt;
Like sand within the hourglass,
The time is running out
Of course we can't reduce its speed,
But to a great extent,
By doing any kindly deed
It can be wisely spent.
In Church, your faith will show you how
To make each moment last
Enough to do some good right now,
Before it joins the past.
You'll learn you have so much to give,
As time alone will tell;
And so, it's not how LONG you live:
What matters is, how WELL!

Mardi Gras Candidates Named

Twelve Charlevoix men and women are competing for the title of King and Queen of the Bicentennial Year Mardi Gras.

Nominated to reign over the festivities are Robert and Mercle Muma, sponsored by the American Legion; Bill Cooper, sponsored by the Charlevoix Restaurant Association; Patricia Begrow, sponsored by the Charlevoix Women's Club; Al Breeze and Shirley Sanborn, sponsored by Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, Lynn and Carlo D-Angelo, sponsored by the Charlevoix Lion's Club; JoAnn Krovutske and Hal Evans sponsored by the Charlevoix County Humane Society; and David Couture and Patti Warner sponsored by the Market Association.

Ballots are now being deposited in official boxes in places of business throughout Charlevoix. It costs fifty cents to cast a vote, and after the vote is tallied, money paid for it will be set aside in a fund for completion of the band shell in East Park.

Mardi Gras festivities will begin Friday evening, February 27, with the crowning of the King and Queen in the Market.

After being crowned, the King and Queen will lead a street parade from Belvedere Avenue to Bridge Street and up to Clinton Street.

Following the parade judging will take place in the beard-growing contest sponsored by LaBlance Insurance and the Grey Gables. Prizes will be given for the most unusual beards and mustaches on men and women. (Women will be permitted to manufacture their facial adornments).

There will also be prizes for the best masks.

On Saturday, the best snow sculpture will be judged in the contest sponsored by the Courier and Radio Station WVOY. A $50 cash prize will be awarded for the best sculpture. An entry blank for the contest appears elsewhere in this week's Courier.

Beginning at one o'clock Saturday afternoon, ski competition will take place at Mt. McSauba. Individual winners will receive awards provided by Grey Gables.

Mardi Gras activities will conclude Sunday with the Lion's Club Winter Outing. It will be on afternoon of winter sports activities ranging from suck races to snowmobile races.

To promote this year's Mardi Gras, students in Charlevoix schools are making posters featuring the Bicentennial theme. Creators of the three best posters in each school will receive ribbons.

School Prepares for Election

A formal resolution calling for a School Election in the Charlevoix School District on March 22 was approved at the regular meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Education Monday night.

The proposal on the ballot at that time will be a $2.8 million bond issue to underwrite the cost to construct rennovate and equip the Middle and High Schools.

Prior to adopting this resolution, the board voted to amend the election proposition consolidating the two proposals into one. The original proposition called for the construction, rennovation and equipping of each of the two schools.

In a third move relating to the forthcoming school election, the Elementary School was made an election site. In the past voters have gone to the polls at the city hall or at the High School gymnasium lobby.

Supt. McKimmy also advised the board that schools may now compensate taxing units for levying 50 percent of school taxes during the summer. He added that if 50 percent of the school district's tax monies could be collected in the summer, the schools would not have to borrow against anticipated taxes and would save up to $40,000 in interest and savings.

In other action, the Charlevoix Properties, Inc., of two realtors which responded to the school's request for bids on the sale of the Building Trades house was named to handle the sale of the building trades house.

Supt. McKimmy, Vincent Olach, Judy Potter and Lillian Carr were appointed deputies to the Secretary of the Board of Education for the purpose of conducting school elections during 1976.

Recommended that the president of the Board of Education appoint a member of the board of education to the committee to review the Char-Em Intermediate School District budget. The budget hearing is scheduled for Feb. 23.

Approved a request for a leave of absence for medical reasons requested by Raymond Corr, Middle School teacher, until June 10.

Denied a request by Dr. William Ratigan to continue in employment beyond the date of retirement as established by the board of education policy. Dr. Ratigan has been associated with the school since 1959 as a counselor. Board policy calls for retirement the June after the person reaches his sixty-fifth birthday.

Denied a request submitted by the Charlevoix Culinary Employees Association to represent employees who work in the food service program in regard to wages, hours and terms of employment. Denying the request does not deny the group the right to negotiate but does set the stage for the next step in organizing as a group Supt. McKimmey explained.

Accepted the resignation of Larry Roth as English and Social Studies teacher effective Feb. 6. Mrs. Kathleen Hunter will be engaged on a substitute basis to fill the position.

Charlevoix Township Offers Emergency Water

The Charlevoix Township Board has voted to offer emergency water service to the city of Charlevoix to assure there will be water available in case of fire and for service at the hospital.

The action was taken by the board following the early morning electrical outage on Monday, Feb. 2, and the failure of the emergency pump at the city pumping station during the four-hour interim.

The resolution adopted by the township unit further stated that the safety and welfare of all citizens in this area should be a prime concern and, since there is a possibility of a shortage of water supply in the city due to the forces of nature or to a mechanical or power failure, moved to take this action.

The township officials have offered the water supply without charge for the first 24 hours and, should the duration be longer, a charge would be made based on the current rates to township residents.

In addition, the township has offered assistance or mutual aid in any fire emergency to the city at no cost other than the replacement of materials used in access.

This move followed the emergency that resulted when Charlevoix and Petoskey were without a power source after a guy line on a power pole carrying high voltage lines snapped, causing the pole to break and cutting of the power supply, in temperatures that dipped to as much as 38 degrees below zero. Charlevoix's valley and south side areas were without power for approximately 3½ hours and its north side for four hours. Petoskey was 'off the line' for approximately seven hours.

The emergency switch on Consumer Power Co. lines at the south of the city failed to operate as the result of the unusually cold weather and had to be activated manually by Consumer crewmen who were called here from elsewhere in the north.

The resolution make this offer to the city was presented to City officials at the City Hall on Monday.

KIM KENNY was crowned Charlevoix High School's winter homecoming queen last Friday by John Green, homecoming king. Charles Bentley (back to camera) presented the newly elected queen with roses. Also named to the court were Debby Klooster, Barb White, Denise Boss, Ed Russell, Bob Alger, Eric Sloan and Casey Culbertson.

Hansen and McRae Make Parting Political Shots

Mayor Ed Hansen and Councilman Ralph McRae made parting shots at each other Monday—only a week before the city's primary election.

The two elected officials are running for mayor in Monday's Charlevoix primary election.

Councilman McRae complained about the city's outstanding electrical bills only to be asked by Mayor Hansen what specific bad debts he wanted to discuss.

McRae claimed that nearly $17,500 is still owed the city by some condominiums and commercial accounts.

"Some of these we will lose because they have moved out of town," McRae said.

The city councilman wanted to know why the city was so quick to turn off customers who were only behind $25, but at the same time ignoring the larger debts.

"I just don't like people threatened if they owe only $25," McRae said.

Mayor Hansen said he doesn't think people are being threatened nor does he think the city is going to lose any money from local condominiums which still owe on back bills.

The mayor asked McRae for specific examples because he said nothing can be done until the city knows.

McRae said he wouldn't publicly release his list because some of his information had been given to him in confidence.

In other business, council:

—Decided to check with the Charlevoix County Planning Commission regarding the city's updating of a community recreation plan.

—Denied a offer to purchase generating capacity from Consumers Power for $6 million.

Average Income

I've been reading your average income priced to $10,000 on the front page of this week's paper and I'd sure like to know where they got figure. I cash paychecks here in town and I would say that 95 percent make a lot less than that. It would mean that people would have to make $5.00 per hour on a 40 hour week. There are very few people in Charlevoix making $5.00 per hour. I would just like to know where they got those figures. Paychecks average about $100 clear and this is for the head of the family and I consider this very low. I wish you would look into this a little more. Thank you.

Unoccupied Condos

I am experiencing a rather growing concern for the efforts of the city fathers to anticipate a need that is apparently not there. The condominiums that have been built recently have a very high percentage of open space unoccupied which I am afraid is a threat to the economy of Charlevoix in the future. Therefore, I would feel that it is to be hoped that the city council and all commissioners will take a very slow look at any suggested new development of such a nature rather than put the future of Charlevoix in jeopardy.

No Choice

In reply to the individual who complained in a recent issue of the Courier, because there is no choice between the candidates in the city's primary election, may we challenge that individual: why don't you run? Especially if morally worthy.

It is not too late to offer a choice, by write-in. But the penchant for lament and the reluctance to serve one's country is actually at the root of today's problems. Until good people are willing to get out of their comfortable little rocking chairs and get into the never ending battle to maintain the integrity proclaimed by our Founding Fathers we can expect no miracles in government, federal, state or city.

Many are aware that there is a segment of our society who hold no admiration for the kind of integrity. Probably because it does not benefit that segment who have been offering little but disservice to their community for the past half century.

On the other hand, many believe we do have a choice in the current situation. Many believe our present city governmnet does have the kind of integrity guaranteed by our founding fathers who fasted and prayed as they formed our 200 year old constitution.

Name Withheld

Many people call in and say to the hotline they have help to offer and expertise in local problems or services, then they should state their name and come forward and not just call in and complain and hide behind "name withheld on request" or I think it was better where I came from. George Baldwin

Watchman

When the Charlevoix Public Schools hired the night watchman they really did themselves some good, because he has done a really great job so far and should deserve some praise.

Fluoride Treatments Being Offered Again

Topical fluoride treatments for area children who do not drink from Charlevoix's water supply will be held again this summer.

Treatments will also be available for certain children who have recently moved into Charlevoix.

Three and four-year-old pre-schoolers, second graders, fifth graders and eighth graders who drink from private wells or from non-fluoridated public water systems are eligible for the program, as are eighth graders who have lived in Charlevoix less than seven years, fifth graders who have lived here less than five years and second graders and pre-schoolers with less than three years' residence.

Parents of eligible children have until March 1 to enroll them in the program. Cards will be sent home from schools on February 18.

Those interested in having their children receive the topical fluoride treatments but who do not have the necessary registration cards should contact Cheri Hoffman at 547-4578.

Bill Carey Heads Local Colwell Office

W. R. "Bill" Carey is the new manager of the Charlevoix office of Colwell & Co., Realtors.

The announcement was made last week by Edward T. Colwell, president of the real estate company.

Carey assumes his new duties after having been associated with the company's East Jordan office for six years.

A native of Charlevoix, Carey graduated from Charlevoix High School and Michigan State University. He later served two years in the United States Army, and, prior to his association with Colwell, was a Charlevoix businessman for 12 years.

City Suit Delayed

A pre-trial conference relating to the case of the City of Charlevoix and Welke Aviation operating out of Beaver Island has been re-set for March 18, according to Circuit Judge Martin Breighner who met in his chambers last week with the principals in the case.

He said the initial pre-trial conference Monday was to define the issues at stake and ta evaluate them before returning to court on March 18.

In November the city had brought suit against the island-based company operated by Paul Welke and his father, William Welke, contending that Welke Aviation was not abiding by the city ordinance which regulates landing fees and certain safety requirements. In December, the city sought an injunction against the company which was denied by Judge Breighner.

The March 18 hearing was set after Judge Breighner met with Moyor Edward P. Hansen, Robert Wexstuff, acting city administrator, five members of the City Council, Ivan Whitley, Robert Timms, Ray Wood, Ralph McRae and George Plumm, City Attorney Donald Berlage, Joseph McPhillips, present airport manager who operates McPhillips Flying Service out of the Charlevoix airport, Mrs. Phillips and their attorney, John Michael, Paul Welke, William Welke and their attorney, Arthur Reibel.

Robert DeRoek representing the F.A.A. and Frank Sicklesmith of the Michigan Aeronautics Commission were on hand as resource persons but did not attend the conference.

The difficulties between the city and the Welkes began when the latter sought an agreement with the city when they initiated the freight and passenger service between their own CAA-approved airport on the island and airports on the mainland. However, no agreement was ever reached and they continued to use the facilities at the local airport. The injunction was sought when the city officials decided the Welkes were not fulfilling the requirements of the ordinance. Wexstaff said in December.

Following Monday's pre-trial conference, Wexstaff said the city would "go back and evaluate the situation". Reibel, counsel for the Welkes, said he felt a reasonable solution to the problem would be found.

Election: Charlevoix Candidates Discuss Local Issues

Charlevoix residents will vote to nominate three city council members at primary elections next Monday.

In the first ward, J. Susan Erber is unopposed for the position now being held by Ralph A. McRae, candidate for mayor.

In the second ward, former councilwoman Jeannine Wallace is seeking nomination for the seat being vacated by Robert N. Timms who is not seeking re-election.

There is a contest in the third ward between Joseph G. Morris, Jr. and F. Earl Muma. They are vying for the seat being vacated by Gerald Selph.

So that voters may know how these candidates stand on several problems facing the city, the Courier sent them questionnaires asking for comments. Their replies follow.

First Ward

J. Susan Erber, who is a housewife and mother, says she would like to examine a new city charter and discuss it with other city managements who have similar charters.

Mrs. Erber does not say whether or not she likes the new "yellow lights" downtown but she does not believe the entire city needs them. About planning for the future, Mrs. Erber "would like to see a long range development plan adopted for the future growth of Charlevoix. This would make it possible for the zoning laws to be adhered to."

Replying to the question as to whether or not Charlevoix harbor should be expanded to accommodate more boats, Mrs. Erber says "We should organize and improve the boat docks we have now."

"I'd like to see the downtown parking expanded," Mrs. Erber says about city improvements.

Second Ward

Jeannine Wallace is owner of the Shop of the Gulls and has previously served two years on the city council.

About a new city charter, Mrs. Wallace says, "I am eager to see the first draft of the proposed new charter. I feel many needed improvements in our government can be made by having a charter designed to specifically fit Charlevoix needs."

The sodium "yellow" lights "have been reported to be less costly than other types. However, until I've seen facts and figures I hesitate to propose using them in all residential areas," Mrs. Wallace says. "I also would be interested in knowing if they are available in a less harsh and garnish color. They wouldn't be objectionable if they were not quite so bright."

To the question, "Are you satisfied with the present city administration?", Mrs. Wallace replied, "If I were satisfied I wouldn't be running for office."

Planning for the future is a concern of Mrs. Wallace. "I feel it is imperative that we move now for planning how long range goals in all of the areas (extension of sewers and electric power, industrial parks, housing). Citizens' commissions would be the most effective method of studying the problems and council should act on their recommendations."

"Definitely" is Mrs. Wallace's reply to the question about expanding Charlevoix harbor.

"Our harbor has been one of the most neglected resources. Most harbors in our area are providing far superior accommodations yet our harbor is really a more beautiful and better harbor. Would also like local boaters to have more docks."

Mrs. Wallace lists her priorities for city improvements as follows: (1) Better public relations and more communications between city hall and citizens. (2) Parking—would like to see Parking Authority recommendations acted upon. (3) The proposed zoning ordinance (1973, I think) looked into and acted on. R-1 zoning needs protection. (4) Recreation - would like everyone using our recreational facilities to pay their fair share.

Besides her previous council experience, Mrs. Wallace lists her qualifications for the council seat as two years on the Chamber of Commerce board, 14 years as owner of a downtown business, member of the shade tree commission, and homemaker and mother.

Third Ward

F. Earl Muma is co-owner of Muma Sunoco Station, a veteran of 15 years in the U.S. Air Force and presently a member of the Air Force Reserves.

Joseph G. Morris, Jr. is a self-employed distribution consultant. He has been a year-around resident of Charlevoix for the past two and a half years and a summer resident since 1922.

Their replies to the various questions follow.

On a new city charter:

MUMA: I haven't seen the new city charter. However, I do feel that we need a change. The present system where we have a strong mayor is good, but if we retain this type of government the mayor must be paid so that he can devote full time to this position. The strong administrator is also a good system. What I am saying is that the man who is going to run our city should be a full-time employee who is qualified.

MORRIS: The majority of the citizens of Charlevoix voted to study the possibilities of a charter for Charlevoix and if one were considered suitable, a charter should be drafted. I agree with this approach. The charter that will be presented should be analyzed without bias or prejudice. We should also realize that possibly the most ardent backer of a charter may not agree with all details of the first draft.

On sodium lights:

MUMA: My business is in the area that is presently lit by the sodium lights and I feel that they light the area better and has resulted in less vandalism to my business. However, I feel that the residential area should be left up to a vote of the people.

MORRIS: The downtown yellow sodium lights are a bit different but most people agree that they become used to them. The real interest is "I have been trying to get more lights, the sodium are o.k., and if they are a material energy saver, let us try to improve our lighting for safety and economy." I believe we should get on with a program for improving our residential lighting.

On the present city administration:

MUMA: I feel that the city could be better organized. In the present system, the mayor, a part time position, can overrule the city administrator, a full time position. I feel that the full time employee should only be over-ruled by the city council.

MORRIS: There can always be improvements in any city operation. We are in the black, but let us all do our current and long-term work in the most efficient manner we can advise. We should never sit back and relax and just be satisfied. There is always room for improvement.

On planning for future growth:

MUMA: I do not feel that sewers, electric power or water should be extended outside the city limits until all of the city has been supplied with these utilities. There should be a different plan developed for the city which could be submitted to the voters and, after approval by the voters, adhered to.

MORRIS: Every year we hear that some major planning decisions must be made. Let us not plan for the sake of planning but look at our existing and future needs. Remember that some of the little problems are the most troublesome. In many cases, it would be well to remove from our vocabulary the words "put it in committee." We should be ever mindful that we are a small community some months and then of far greater size next months. We are also a combination industrial and vacation area with a large portion of mixed-income households, many with only one or two members.

On the Charlevoix harbor extension:

MUMA: No. Let's use the space that's already there and use it right.

MORRIS: The harbor of Charlevoix is a real asset from an economic viewpoint. It is picturesque and a source of recreation. I am not in favor of expansion of Round Lake's

Citizens Invited to Special Dinner

The Charlevoix Board of Education has invited a group of Charlevoix School District citizens to a dinner to discuss school issues and to see students in action on Thursday, Feb. 12.

Denise Boss, a member of the high school debate team and leader in forensics, will act as mistress of ceremonies for the event. Entertainment will be presented by performing groups of vocal and instrumental music students from the elementary, middle and high schools.

The dinner is being prepared and served by the vocational home economics food service class under the direction of Mrs. Mary Lou Smith, vocational home economics teacher. Private contributions are underwriting the expenses of the dinner.

Art objects from each of the three schools will be on display with the exhibit being coordinated by William Murray, Mrs. Roxanna Loding and Ms. Mercedes Mathers, art instructors.

The Board of Education has invited each past president of the Board of Education to be recognized for their part in developing the present school program.

Supt. James A. McKimmy stated that this group was being brought together to view the results of the school program and react to and discuss current issues surrounding the school scene.

It is hoped that the citizens will see positive proof of the successes that exist in the schools rather than being constantly confronted with negative viewpoints.

In a small way, the school board is saying thank you to the entire community by asking representatives from the community to attend and react to the program to see the positive results of the program the community supports, McKimmy said.

13 Students Take High Music Honors

Thirteen of the 34 Charlevoix High School entries in the District II Solo and Ensemble Festival at Cheboygan Saturday returned with First Division ratings according to Gary Stutzman who heads the Music Department.

There were also 15 Second Division rating; five Third Division and one Fourth Division.

First Division winners will advance to regional competition at Sault Ste. Marie later in the school year.

Mr. Stutzman commended the students for their efforts in the festival, noting that this is an individual accomplishment that results from hard work and long hours of practice on the part of the student. "It is something the student wants to do. I encourage all my students to participate but I do not push them" Stutzman said. He also said that 31 of the nearly 50 students involved were freshmen who will likely compete in the Junior High Solo and Ensemble Festival next month.

Festival results follow:

First place winners in the various catagories were: piano; Mark Gallagher; Flute: Lisa Fiedler; Clarinet; Mark Gollagher; Oboe: Darlene Smalley; Alto Sax: Kathy Cook; Trumpet: Kay Currey; Flute and clarinet duet: Lisa Fiedler and Mark Gallagher; Cornet duet: Carol Bergmann and Jean Lenhart.

Humane Society Elects New Officers

New officers of the Charlevoix County Humane Society were elected last month.

They are Keith Annear, president; D'Ann Rothenberger, vice president: Carol Leonard, secretory; and Donna Wojan, treasurer.

The following board members were also elected: Martha Mathews, William Miller, Carol Leonard, Lucile McKown, D'Ann Rothenberger, Donna Wojan, Robert McKown, Linda Snyder, Patricia Sturm, Angela Mnipass, Shirley Wooley, Michael Gibbons, Jeannine Keeney, Keith Annear and Selma Price.

Committee heads are Robert McKown, publicity; D'Ann Rothenberger, fund raising; Donna Wojan, membership; shelter operation supervision and purchasing Robert McKown; shelter operation volunteer coordinator and poyroll, Lucile McKown; and Michael Gibbons, legal counsel and government liaison.

Since the Humane Society is a county-wide community service regular monthly meetings are held in Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan in rotation. The next meeting is scheduled for February 25, at 7:30 in the Community Room of the First State Bank.

The public is cordially invited to attend all meetings and share in discussions about the various activities of the humane Society.

St. Mary's Observes School Week

St. Mary's School here will observe Catholic Schools Week with an open house scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday Sister Josine Schafer, school principal, has announced.

Parents and friends of the school are invited to attend the open house scheduled from 9:30 and 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 and 3 p.m. on both Wednesday and Thursday. Visitors may walk through the school or spend time in the classrooms, Sister Josine said.

"It is our aim to make the public conscious of what is being done at St. Mary's School and to show how the program is being presented for the benefit of the students" Sister Josine said in inviting the public to the open house.

School Drivers Rate A Pat on the Back

What's the toughest job in Charlevoix?

Running a machine at Freedman Artcraft or American Mold?

Plowing city streets during a full-blown blizzard?

Repairing automobiles? Taking out gall bladders? Chasing speeders? Preaching the gospel?

Or maybe driving a school bus?

We'll vote for Charlevoix's 14 regular school bus drivers — a group of dedicated men and women who drive a total of 24,000 miles a month transporting more than 800 Charlevoix area youngsters to and from school every weekday.

Their jobs require the dexterity of a machine operator, and guts of a snow plow jockey, and know-how of a mechanic, the skill of a surgeon, and no-nonsense demeanor of a traffic cop and the patience of Job.

For some of them the day begins as early as 6:30 a.m. when they crank up their buses for long runs through the snow-swept countryside to collect their first consignment of high school students. Many of them repeat the same runs an hour later for Middle and Elementary school youngsters.

Most of them cover the same ground again at the close of the day.

The longest single run is 34 miles, from Charlevoix, through the Norwood area and home again. However, the Ironton bus covers the longest distance, making four trips a day for a total of 98 miles.

The Charlevoix School District can be justifiably proud of its school bus safety record: No fatalities and very few injuries. In fact, there have been no injuries at all in the past two years, according to school business agent Vince Olach.

In order to maintain their safety record, drivers attend three safety seminars a year sponsored by the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District. And they do it without pay.

It goes without saying that winter – when roads are likely to be icy or drifted over – is the real test for the school bus driver's skill. Yet most drivers make their runs on time, with their precious cargoes intact.

In addition to their regular duties, school bus drivers also must be street disciplinarians, psychiatrists and entertainers. Some have installed radios on their buses at their own expense to provide music for their passengers.

Donald Luedke rewards his charges for good behavior every Friday with a hatful of suckers.

Angel Bearss treats her riders with a visit to the Dairy Queen on the last run every spring.

The next time you see Pat Smalley, Angel Bearss, Harold DeYoung, Lawrence Hull, Peggy Thorpe, Larry Sorensen, Don Luedke, Al Thorpe, Don Kile, Gordon Wolgamott, Beverly Sladek, Bill Gengle, Ray Browe or Bud Heeres, why not give them a pat on the back for a job well done.

After all, the safety of your children and grandchildren is in their hands. (B.C.)

Vote Monday! You'll Be Glad You Did

If you haven't already done so, mark Monday, Feb. 16, on your kitchen calendar as the date of Charlevoix's primary election.

Although little city primaries probably aren't as much fun as big state and national elections, they are just as important because they determine to a large extent who we are going to have seated at the council table at city hall for the coming year.

Monday is your chance to decide whether you want a fellow or gal who just keeps his chair warm, or one who is willing to work for the city of Charlevoix.

On the ballot you'll find Mayor Edward P. Hansen and First Ward Alderman Ralph McRae vying for the position of mayor.

In the First and Second Wards, Sue Erber and Jeannine Wallace respectively are running unopposed on the Republican ticket.

In the Third Ward, Earl Muma and Joe Morris will square off for the council seat presently held by Gerald Selph.

City Clerk Lyle King and City Treasurer Annabelle Cunningham are running unopposed on the Republican ticket.

See you at the polls. (B.C.)

Letters to the editor

Unfair Editorial

Dear Mr. Winter:

I understand your concern in your recent editorial on the Single Business Tax question - I share it.

But, you have not presented the issue accurately. Also, I was very suprised that you would poke fun at the fact that I've maintained an excellent attendance record.

Your presentation of my sensitivity on the Single Business Tax issue is erroneous. It attempts to portray me as insensitive to warnings from my constituent-businessmen that this total restructuring of Michigan taxes would be harmful to them.

In truth I took their warnings very seriously. I agreed with them that the original Single Business Tax bill, as it came from the House, was plainly harmful to many smaller businesses. Based on their comments and suggestions I sponsored a series of amendments designed to make the bill fair to these businessmen, including a $34,000 exemption clause.

Certainly, it is difficult to fully understand the legislative process. The Single Business Tax was going to pass. The legislators who were really looking out for their constituents were the ones who recognized that, and did their best to change the bill so it would be fairer– this we attempted to do.

Having achieved the amendments I believed would help small businessmen, I voted for the bill. It's a legislative fact that if you fight for amendments, and win, you'd better vote for the bill or those amendments may well be taken off.

Would the Courier suggest it would have been better for me to sit on my hands and not try to amend the bill? You apparently have given little thought to what the bill...which would have passed in any case...would have been like without my amendments.

Even so, I admit my amendments didn't do enough. And I've made further changes to eliminate any unfair burden on small business my number one priority in 1976. And I will make every effort to get those changes.

I don't pretend the actions we took on this bill helped those businesses as much as I thought it would, but it seems to me you should be supporting my efforts now to make the appropriate changes in the law instead of in effect saying "I told you so".

It's difficult to precisely predict the impact of any bill. On an issue this monumental, with a thousand conflicting predictions, it's practically impossible.

So fault me, if you will, for not being able to foretell the effect of the bill. Fault me for the candor in admitting when a program doesn't work right, and trying to correct it. But never fault me for being insensitive to the concerns of my constituents, or fighting for the best legislation I can get for them. It's just not true. And it certainly isn't true on the Single Business Tax.

Sincerely,
ROBERT W. DAVIS
Senator

McRae Replies

In response to Mrs. Geiken's letter on the Grandvue branch in Charlevoix. I appreciate the comments..I would prefer to be criticized rather than ignored. It certainly was not my intention in anyway to down-grade the facility on Peninsula Road. I have been there several times. It is all you say it is and much more. It would be impossible to numerate all it's virtues in as short a letter as you wrote. It's wonderful, it's fine and many people are involved in making it better. All the volunteers working there should receive permanent passes to heaven.

The Fire Chief of East Jordan called me to say that many people took exception to my mentioning the Fire Department. It was simply a reference to distance. If a fire broke out it would take ¼ the time to go ½ mile than to go 2 miles, which is the distance out of the Grandvue site. On one night I was caught in a blizzard directly in front of Grandvue location. And I can say it took me more than a terrifying half hour to reach East Jordan.

Emmet County has three crowded Medical Care Facilities. Two within sight of large hospitals. The third, for political reasons, was located in Harbor Springs. All privately owned facilities are always built among people and not away from every convenience. Building a division of the County Medical Facility in Charlevoix would also be a political decision. There could be a hundred good reasons for having it here and ten reasons for not having it here, but all logical judgements would be overlooked and the decision made strictly on a political standpoint.

Planning Commission Stacks Deck

You read all about the marvelous deliberations by members of the Charlevoix Planning Commission and you wonder if you have missed a few chapters – or if they have.

Take this business of building more super-duper, smelly, noisy, four-lane highways into our pristine north woods. I thought we had all decided several months ago that enough is enough. I was sure that because of the energy crisis and the growing costs of automobile transportation that state Highway Department would call off its dogs.

Furthermore, the environmentalists had prepared an excellent case against the propagation of more highways of the I-75 variety. They chew up vast quantities of wilderness that never can be replaced and they funnel more human beings into the area than the delicate balance of nature can tolerate.

I thought the issue was all settled. The new U.S. 31 would end at a duck blind on the Muskegon River and there would be no more talk of merging it with U.S. 131 near Traverse City of Kalkaska.

The threat of a four-lane highway spanning Lake Charlevoix at Ironton was over. Or so I thought.

I wouldn't have to stay awake nights worrying about the deer in the Jordan River Watershed dying of carbon monoxide poisoning. Or so I thought.

However, the Charlevoix County Planning Commission, which has to have several irons in the fire just to justify its existence, is not willing to let sleeping dogs lie. And it's members aren't going to rest until they get that big four-laner zooming right through the heart of Charlevoix County, no matter who likes it.

At its meeting last week in Charlevoix, the Commission decided to tell the environmentalists to go to hell.

Individually and collectively, members of the commission were peeved that the nature freaks had presented their case so well at recent public hearings on the proposed highway throughout the area.

Unfortunately, members of the commission came to the conclusion that environmentalists had "stacked" the meeting with anti-highway voices. Which is just not true. The environmentalists aren't well enough organized to stack anything, particularly a public meeting.

But they are driven by heart and conscience to do what they can to protect our fragile ecology wherever and whenever it is endangered.

That is why they showed up en masse at the public hearing on U.S. 31-U.S. 131 in Petoskey — a meeting, which, incidentally, was boycotted by the Planning Commission.

At their meeting last week, the planners agreed that the folks who spoke at the hearing just don't have it all together. They decided that it is now up to them to let the state Highway Department know how residents of this area really feel about highways.

I have never heard of a more high-handed stand by any body of public officials.

Everyone who has an interest in the extension of more expressways into the north had an opportunity to speak at the public hearing and environmentalists showed up in sufficient numbers to make their position clear.

Now the planners are attempting to diminish the efforts of the anti-expressway faction on grounds that business interests haven't been heard by the state Highway Department.

Nonsense. What will it take to convince the planners that business interests and environmental interests are identical, particularly when it comes to the tourist industry?

$6 Million Man

The Six Million Dollar Man now has a six million dollar counterpart with more uses than a magic kitchen slicer with eight interchangeable discs. She is called the Bionic Woman.

As my husband watched her the other night, he was absolutely mesmerized. "When was the last time you opened a can of tuna with your thumbnail?"

I looked up from the paper. "A year ago last August when we went camping in Michigan."

What really intrigued me about the show was the profession they gave this super human being. Suppose you were behind the desk of the unemployment office and a woman came in who could tear the door off a car with her bare hands, serve a tennis ball that would burn a hole in the court, and tear an Ohi, California phone book in half (?) – a woman with an ear that could pick up a whisper from a mile and a half away. Where would you place her?

With the Ace Wrecking Company? The CIA? Guarding Rona Barrett's tongue? Of course not. In a classroom teaching the sixth grade.

That is the most realistic thing I've seen on television in years. I had a bionic woman teacher when I was in the first grade. Her name was Miss Reist. She was positively superhuman.

Miss Reist knew when we had to go to the bathroom 15 minutes before we knew. She could unscrew the lid of a thermos that was permanently sealed without any effort whatsoever. She could make ovals until we fainted. She could smell paste on your breath five rows away and gum all the way from the hallway.

She knew who got out of their seat when her back was turned. She could hold four people on her bionic lap at one time and have an arm for each of them.

She could open up the top window without calling a janitor. She could kiss a scraped knee and effect an instant cure. She knew a thing or two about children's strength – like one child could move a desk, but it took four kids to carry a Valentine to the principal's office.

Her bionic ear heard birds on the first day of spring before anyone else heard them, and the arrival of Santa Claus as early as Dec. 10.

Miss Reist, because she was so unique, was bought not at six million dollars - but at $22.50 a week.

That's inflation for you.

Terrible Jean Wants Reverse

A note from Terrible Jean calls me all sorts of vile names and also says: "I am trying desperately to think of some way to insult you in a Sears ad.".

Which provides an answer to some readers who have wondered if my 4 sisters, particularly Terrible Jean, ever get angry at me for writing the truth about them. As when I revealed, many years ago, that Terrible Jean married a man with the same last name as hers only so she could still wear her football shoes with "Fitz" welded on both heels in iron script.

Yes, they do get angry.

For instance, I recently hinted that baby sister Linda had not yet regained her sexy figure since giving birth to a daughter, after 4 sons. (If I am ever attacked by a mob of thousands, they will all be nieces and nephews following orders from home.) Linda was so peeved she confronted me unexpectedly in a public restaurant while I was in her town entertaining the only 2 people I don't dare insult, Mother and Aunt Madeline (I'm in both wills). Linda demanded an apology and she got it. It was either that or a plate of whitefish in my hair.

Terrible Jean is a commercial artist for Sears' advertising dept in the Detroit area. You may well have seen her work in newspapers or other media. She draws lots of people in their underwear, which is what worries me somewhat.

Terrible Jean is jealous that I have this public forum through which I can justify my sometimes strange behavior as an adult by explaining how she abused me physically and mentally when we were children. I was 9 years old before I learned from a kind nun it wasn't god's plan that little brothers were created solely so their big sisters would have something soft to punch.

Now that I have escaped her domination, Terrible Jean resents that I sometimes revel in my freedom by exposing her past sins to public view. She is angry and she wants revenge.

And I am nervous as I remember the national flap caused by a picture in the Sears catalog a few months ago. It showed a man modeling underwear which was several sizes too small for him, or he was several sizes too big. Whatever, the model was chagrined by the titters caused at his expense. The last I heard he had switched to Fruit of the Loom and was suing Sears for a bundle.

Would Terrible Jean do anything that Terrible? You can bet on it....

All of which nonsense probably explains why I am repulsed by those TV talk shows where the guest and host try to out-compliment each other. Sammy Davis says Dinah Shore is a great human being and she says Sammy is even greater. Jerry Lewis slobbers praise all over Danny Thomas who says Jerry is the finest humanitarian since Albert Schweitzer.

I cringe and cry tears that turn to sugar as Liberace nominates Mike Douglas for God and a golden halo appears over the TV set. Yuck.

Give me a good insult anytime. And people I love enough to insult, such as Terrible Jean and her terrible sisters.

Meet Charlevoix

Marlene Caszatt

Marlene Caszett is the new Extension Home Economist for Charlevoix County. Here she tells the Courier about her job and plans for the future.

COURIER: How long have you been serving the area as a Home Economist?

CASZETT: I've been in Antrim and Kalkaska Counties for four years with the Cooperative Extension Service.

COURIER: And the Cooperative Extension Service is a division of Michigan State University?

CASZETT: Yes, it is a part of Michigan State University and a part of every county. Michigan State, as the land grant university in the state, is the central resource.

COURIER: Could you tell us a little bit about your role as an Extension Home Economist?

CASZETT: Well, my responsibilities as an Extension Home Economist are to bring the resources of Michigan State to the counties in several areas, especially in family living education. In the Extension Service there are five program areas. There's the agricultural area, the marketing area, resource development, 4-H youth work and the family living program. My major responsibility is to develop the family living program. The way I do that is by using resources from the university; resources in the form of pamphlets, specialists who will work with me or who will come out into the counties and work with the people, and I also help to facilitate 4-H youth work programs.

COURIER: What particular types of programs will we have in Charlevoix in the future?

CASZETT: Well, I hope we can do more with the 4-H program in leader training, in helping develop leadership. I hope we can do more with limited resource families.

COURIER: What do you mean by limited resource families?

CASZETT: Well, families with low incomes, to help them cope better with the limited resources that they have. That can be in areas of energy use, money management, parent education, child development, foods and nutrition. We will also be working with the Extension Homemaker's clubs that have been organized throughout the county. I act as kind of a resource person for them. We hope we get more clubs formed.

COURIER: How do you differ from the Extension Agent? Do you work with him at all?

CASZETT: He is the Agricultural Agent, but I'm on the same staff with him. He's responsible for the whole Extension Program but I'm responsible for developing the family living program and helping with the 4-H program.

COURIER: If someone wanted to take advantage of some of the services you offer, such as family budgeting, would it cost them anything?

CASZETT: No. The only cost there might be would be for a bulletin that had a price on it, and that would be nominal. Actually, Extension is funded by federal and state funds and local funds, so, in essence, it is tax dollars.

COURIER: Where could a person get hold of you to find out a little bit more about the services you offer?

CASZETT: They can call me at the Boyne City office of the Extension Service, phone 582-6232.

COURIER: How did you get into this type of work?

CASZETT: Well, I was a home economics teacher for ten years and had gone about as far as I could as a teacher and thought there must be something else I could do professionally. I started looking around for other jobs in the home economics area and found there was an Extension Service job open in my home area, Antrim County. I applied for the job and got it. I was teaching in St. Joseph, Michigan at the time. My husband is a writer and needs time to be on his own, to get away from the hustle and bustle, so we moved up here and it's been a good thing.

COURIER: Tell us a little bit about your family.

CASZETT: We have two children, a boy who is going to be nine in February and a girl who is going to be 14 in April. They both go to the Bellaire school. We also have one dog and two goldfish.

Look once and you will be enchanted with the view of Lake Michigan which you see from this delightful house.

A recent political ad stated that the present city budget is 21 percent over the prior year. However, the recorded budgets show that the actual money to be spent is only a 10 percent increase.

This year, we put $75,000 of Revenue Sharing in the budget to make it more evident in accounting. In past years it was left out of the General Budget. The $75,000 spent out of the General Fund to the Street Funds, then shown to be spent out of the Street Funds makes a $150,000 amount in the 75-76 total. General Revenue Sharing was not included in the 1974-75 budget, also there was shown $14,700 paid from the Water Fund that must be deducted from the $1,859,530 '75-76 budget.

Actual increase in budget --a trifle over 10 percent	156,100

Through the month of November, the Electrical revenues amounted to $637,433. The expenditures amounted to $620,244, with the November excess being $17,189. When this excess appeared, Mayor Hansen asked the council to lower the cost adjustment by 4 mills. This should bring the electrical fund close to even by the end of February.

With the economic climate what it is, Mayor Hansen will ask for the lowest budget possible and yet MAINTAIN services. No big promises. For Prudent, Honest, Capable, Experienced Leadership--VOTE FOR EDWARD HANSEN, MAYOR OF CHARLEVOIX FEBRUARY 16

Election: Hansen vs. McRae

Hansen

When the Courier sent questionnaires to the two candidates for mayor in next week's primary election, we knew the space provided on the questionnaires for answers to questions was probably not enough.

It wasn't. Both incumbent Ed Hansen and challenger Ralph McRae replied with several pages of answers and explanations. Space does not permit verbatim reproduction but we are printing their replies as fully as we can.

City Charter

The first question asked was "What is your position on a new city charter?" The candidates replied:

HANSEN: I have attended two (charter) meetings and review the minutes of the meetings. The commission has and is working diligently on developing something different from what we have. At this time they lean toward a ward caucus system for nominating candidates for general election. The caucus worked good forty years ago in Charlevoix Township when practically all the voters got to the meeting. Today in Charlevoix with around three hundred people voting absentee, people ill, out of town, shift workers, elderly and handicapped would, for all practical purposes, be disenfranchised from their present participation in candidate selection. The charter commission has a very important assignment...I am confident that we will get an acceptable charter from the efforts of the commission and citizen input.

MCRAE: In regards to the charter, my position should be well known to most everyone in Charlevoix. It has been my personal project to see that our city has the opportunity to have the best government form possible. I am sure if our citizens could talk individually to members of our charter commission they would immediately understand the enthusiasm they have for the possibilities available. The nine charter commissioners are all receiving a profound education in municipal structures and have already become experts in matters concerning city governments. What we need now is a civic group to see to it that every voter understands the advantages of a new charter. Last year, some uninformed people gave out misinformation on the cost of producing a new charter. So far the cost has been considerably under $400. If I am elected I will go out of my way to help in every way possible the new charter's acceptance by the voters.

Yellow lights

The next question concerned Charlevoix's downtown sodium lights (yellow lights). We asked "What is your position on them? Should the entire city have these 'energy saving lights' "?

HANSEN: The sodium lights are consuming just under half the electric energy the old mercury lights did. This means half the operating cost. With things looking that bright, how can anyone complain? Someone belittled the money savings. Think how bright everything would look if all government operating costs were cut in half and taxes lowered accordingly.

McRAE: At this time I do not have a fixed position on the yellow lights. However, I have been checking with other cities. Harbor Springs and Petoskey are not considering changing their present type of lighting. Grand Rapids and Detroit are beginning to use them on high traffic thoroughfares only...To get the most efficiency out of sodium lamps they must be mounted on extremely high poles. The city administrators are considering using them through the city. They do not know how many years it will take to recover the cost of the changeover. Before going any further they should study this deeper and most of all they should consult with residents of our town.

Satisfied with Administration?

The third question dealt with the present operational condition of the city – "Are you satisfied with the present city administration?"

HANSEN: The City of Charlevoix operation is making more progress than ever before. In 1975, there was more city street completed than any other year in memory. There was completed more electrical improvement by the city than in any year of memory. The above accomplishments have been realized without any raise in tax rate.

McRAE: In many ways I am very disturbed with the way things are being handled at the top. The City of Charlevoix is very fortunate in having a dedicated group of city employees. Every one of them seems to go out of their way to give courteous service. However, our two top administrators seem to be consistently inconsistent-...Many of the problems, difficulties and situations are dumped in the laps of council members. It is my feeling that had they been handled adroitly in the first place they would never have developed into problems that are hard to overcome. No set policies are in force and it seems one person gets one deal and the next person gets another deal...Presently we are faced with two possible legal entanglements. I see the possibility of three or four more confrontations.... A moratorium should be called an all condominium construction. The present condominiums certainly do not need any more competition. The city has lost money, the investors have lost money and many contractors have suffered losses..As a council member I receive less than $450 a year, the acting administrator, $15,000. I would much rather pay a qualified and experienced city manager $20,000. Our city budget of $1,865,000 is being managed the same way it was when the budget was $180,000. City governments have become very complex and complicated. As stockholders of a corporation, the people of Charlevoix should insist on competent managing.

Planning for Future

The next question concerned planning for the future, especially the extension of sewers and electric power, industrial parks and housing. The candidates replied:

HANSEN: The major decision that you bring up have mostly been made and are being acted upon -- planning: hearings on the final draft of the Zoning Ordinance and map are scheduled for March. After public review and input the plan will be put to the council for action. Sewers: The area facilities plan is being made in order to qualify the City for federal grants for sewer work. The electrical system is rapidly being brought up to condition needed far into the next century. On housing: application for low rent housing has been made. Pending public acceptance and federal funding, the project could get under way this year.

Up to now we have enjoyed a diversified stable economic base. We must be careful not to encourage an industrial sprawl in Charlevoix. I feel that the case-by-case method that has been used in the past is the best way to handle any industrial additions.

McRAE: I would like to see some changes in the electric department...It upsets me considerably that even in large purchases bidding is not required....in a purchase of $36,000 of wire, no bidding was requested....Within half an hour on the telephone I could have purchased the same material for $1,800 less. As a taxpayer I resent the fact that carelessness with my money. Several weeks ago I asked that the council be furnished a planning program on electric system improvement...to date this has not been given....45 percent of our $1,865,000 current budget goes to the electric department...It should be managed by only the most highly qualified personnel...A top priority of the city is a separation of the storm water from sanitary sewers...I think we should try to keep our young people in Charlevoix. We have many industrial sites available for small work shops, but no effort is being made to get new employers to come here....The

February Birthstone-AMETHYST

This February stone derives its name from a Greek word meaning "not to intoxicate". The ancients believed that wine drunk from an Amethystine cup would prevent the drinker from losing his wits at banquets or drinking bouts.,

This probably came from the fact that the drinker could disguise water or some other liquid in a purple cup to maintain his sobriety.

"MC RAE SAYS"

Dear Taxpayer:

When I ran for Council two years ago, I had a platform. I completed many of the promises I made. I would like the opportunity to continue my efforts. The following are a few of my accomplishments. (With the help of the other councilmen.)

1. Gave Charlevoix a chance to vote on the Charter question.
2. Initiated the Housing Commission to bring bonafide Senior Housing to Charlevoix.
3. In the future, newly hired employees must be residents of, and reside in, Charlevoix. I found that 30 percent of the city employees lived in three cities and five townships.
4. I proposed that all Utility Services must be paid in advance or the money placed in escrow. I had revealed that various condominiums owed the city a total of $106,000.00, (Really owed the taxpayers of Charlevoix). I am not satisfied that the present situation is what it should be. Thousands of dollars are uncollectable.

One cannot be a councilman long without realizing that there are problems and better ways to solve them. I hope the voters have enough confidence in me. If elected Mayor, I would want to do the following:

1) I would work for the adoption of a new charter. (2) I would assist and fully support the Housing Commission. (3) Appoint a six member Planning Commission to control the growth and plan long range capital improvements for the city. (4) Encourage more local employment. We have 3 areas where light industrial sites are available. (5) Declare a moratorium on all condominium construction. (6) Resolve the Alice Street situation in favor of the city. (7) Press for the erection of a branch of the Grandview Medical Care Facility in Charlevoix–close to our expanding hospital services. Charlevoix city and township together pay almost 25 percent of the County taxes. (8) The Chicago Club's 46 acres are grossly under assessed and its property values should be reviewed. Many potential home sites should be producing tax revenues. (9) I would ask the adjoining school district townships to aid financially our city's recreation programs. (10) I would request the County Commissioners to allocate funds for our Ambulance Service, and allocate money for some of the operating cost of our airport. (11) Set up a city agency to deal with some of the problems of our Senior Citizens, and provide a permanent meeting place for their various activities. (12) Select a group of citizens to promote plans for celebrating and honoring our country's 200th birthday. (13) I would appoint three capable persons to study and analyze the Electrical Department. It spends 45 percent of our $1,868,000.00 annual budget.

I would consider the following immediately:

(a) The approximately 150 residents using our electrical service only three months of the year would pay an annual service charge of $72. Depreciation, maintenance and investment costs go on 12 months of the year. (b) Out of city users would pay a service charge of $3.00 monthly. Line losses and less customers per mile makes this type of service more costly. (c) Households of persons over 64 years of age, with a total income of less than $4800 would receive a reduction of $3 per month on their electric bills. (d) Purchases of over $1200.00 by the Electrical Department would require bids. No dollar limits or bidding are now required. (e) Council approval for all new extensions beyond city limits. (f) I would ask the council to set a profit limit for the Electric Department.

I am not convinced that we are spending all of the Electrical money wisely. The purpose of my recommendations is to ultimately bring a reduction of electric bills to all users. My proposals are intended to place the charges where they belong.

There are things in our city government that need a different approach, but in the end the object is to reduce the costs. I would reduce the budget by 10 percent. By reducing the budget the demand for a profit from the electrical system would also be reduced. I positively cannot see why we should every year have to increase our expenditures. No attempt in recent years has been made to cut cost. We could do better in '76.

Charlevoix Rayders Upset Favored St. Ignace Saints

The Charlevoix Rayders, playing one of their most consistent scoring games of the season, posted an 84-72 win Friday night over the St. Ignace Saints who were favored to win.

For the second week, the Rayders took the initiative and forged to a 20-15 first period lead and increased it to a solid 40-23 margin at halftime.

As the second half got underway, they continued to outscore the visitors 22-16 to go ahead 62-39 going into the final eight minutes. The Saints put on a scoring spree, dumping in 33 points to 22 for the Rayders but their efforts came too late.

Charlevoix had 32 field goals and an outstanding 20 of 23 from the line. St. Ignace had 29 from the field and 20 of 28 from the free throw line. The Rayders had 19 personal fouls and the Saints 17.

Bob Alger with 20 points was the Rayders' top scorer. He was followed by Bud Klooster with 18; Scott Boss, 17; Matt Doan, 14; Pat Schaefer, seven; Neil Dziedzic, up from JV ranks, four; Dave Tollas and Tom Fowler, two each.

Mark Olsen paced the game with 30 points. Brian Winston had 12 points.

Jim Bishop, the Saints' top scorer as well as top scorer in the league, was injured late in the half when he suffered a laceration of the eyelid and left the game.

Rayder Matmen Capture 3rd Place

The Charlevoix Rayder matmen, participating in the Michigan Huron Shores Conference Wrestling meet at Rogers City Saturday, captured a third place with a total of 104½ points according to Coach Norm Probert.

Only 10½ points separated the top three places in the tournament with Rogers City, with 115 points taking the League title and favored Petoskey coming in second with 107½ points. Finishing behind Charlevoix were Grayling with 101½ points; Gaylord, 43½; Boyne City, 42 and St. Ignace, 26.

Charlevoix's single champion was Rob Hilton in the 126 pound class who reached the top by winning by a 9-2 decision over Al Kruskie of Petoskey.

In addition to the first place winner, the Rayders captured two seconds, six thirds and one fourth from their 10 entries.

Second place winners and their weight class were: Ron Hilton (105); Chris Wimmer (145); third place winners were: Mike Byard (98); Don Trost (119); Craig Golovich (132); Mike Snizik (138); Dane Whitley (185); Kirk Lieberman (heavyweight); fourth place; Mike Kitely (112). Other Rayders who did not place were freshmen Ande Keller (155) and Dennis Whitley (167).

Charlevoix, it will be noted, was without the services of tri-captains, Terry Drew, Tim DeYoung, and Gary Probert as well as Greg Loper and Tom Jones, all of whom have been lost as the result of injuries. Coach Probert had only praise for his grapplers who came through with a third place despite these serious losses in personnel.

Charlevoix will be at Boyne City Thursday in a make-up match and at the District tournament at Grayling Saturday.

Junior Varsity Loses to St. Ignace

The Charlevoix JV's got off to a slow start against St. Ignace Friday night and were never able to overcome the early deficit as they lost 70-60.

Playing without their top scorer, Niel Dziedzic who was elevated to Varsity status, the young Rayders trailed 15-8 at the quarter but outscored the Saints 18-13 in the second period to cut the margin to 28-26 at halftime. The Saints, however, came back to a 47-35 third period lead and coasted to a 10-point victory.

John Cinnamon with 12 points and Joe Left with 10 paced the Rayders who had a total of 22 field goals and 16 of 26 free throws compared to 25 from the floor and 25 of 28 from the charity line for the visitors. The Rayders had 23 and St. Ignace 21 personal fouls.

Steve Schuch and Pat Schmidt had eight points each, Jim Alger and Kevin Kratt, seven points each, Jim Elzinga and Chuck Towsley, three each and Tom Left two for Charlevoix.

Floyd Paquin had 32 points, Bill Campbell 11 and Ron Belonga, 10 for St. Ignace.

Independent Basketball Nears Final Class B Games

With only two weeks of scheduled play remaining in the Independent Basketball League, teams are jockeying for better positions in the final standings.

February 18 and 19 will mark the final nights of play before the teams go into their double elimination tournament that will conclude the season according to Dwight Boss, City Recreation Director.

Last week saw LaBlance Insurance take over the league lead with a 68-52 over First State Bank; Russell Shell took over second place with a 9-2 record after being dumped by Kenney Excavating 49-47. Kenney's is now in third place with an 8-2 record following their win.

In other action, County State Bank defeated Medusa 61-30; Credit Union ousted Klooster John Deere 58-47; Wojan Aluminum won over AlRay Cottages 51-43 and Freedman's won over Bay Shore Steel by forfeit when the latter failed to floor a full team.

First State Bank took an early lead and remained ahead 10-8 in the same with LaBlance Insurance. The Underwriters, however, snapped back 26-23 at halftime and 44-34 going into the final period before coasting to a 16 point win. Sam Supernaw and Joe Beaudoin set the pace for the team with 16 points each. Dave Novotny added 12 and Jim Geis 10 for the victors. Glen Taylor had 19 and Gary Stutzman 11 points for the Bankers.

It was a nip and tuck battle all the way between Kenney Excavating before the Diggers were able to down Russell Shell 48-47.

After leading 12-11 at the quarter, Kenney's found themselves facing a 27-27 tie at halftime. After a rugged third period Kenney's managed a three-point 39-36 lead going into the final eight minutes and hung on for the win. Joel Donaldson was top scorer with 19 points for the victors. Dave Norton had 17 points, Leroy Buchanan 17 and Mike Crain 11 points for Russell's.

Paced by Steve Martinus with 22 points, County State Bank led Medusa 9-4; 27-16 and 37-24 by quarters to win by a 31 point margin. He was assisted by Denny LaCrois with 15 points and Mike Russell with 12. Beano Archey and Pat Kerr had 10 points each for Medusa.

It was an easy victory for Credit Union as the Savers led Klooster John Deere all the way 12-9; 30-23 and 48-35 by quarters. Gary Novotny poured in 22 points, Mike Hamilton 14 and Dean Ginther 10 for Credit Union. Connie Klooster had 27 points for Big John.

Wrestlers Lose Last Home Meet

The Charlevoix Rayder matmen, in their last home meet of the season, lost to the Petoskey Northmen by a score of 39-17 on Thursday.

On the same night, the Charlevoix JV's lost to the young Northmen by a 22-9 margin.

The senior members of the team were honored at the meet as Coach Nurm Probert called attention to their contributions to the Rayders' successes during their tenure in the sport. Those so honored were Terry Drew and Tim DeYoung, tri-captains of the team with Gary Probert, a junior, Chris Wimmer, John Cinnamon, Ron Shapton, Dane Whitley, Rob Hilton, Kirk Lieberman and Hideki Yamazaki.

The Charlevoix grapplers are expected to travel to Boyne City for a make-up match with the Ramblers that had been cancelled earlier because of the weather. A formerly scheduled match with Gaylord for that date has been scratched. The following Saturday, Feb. 14, Charlevoix will participate in the Class C District meet at Grayling.

In Thursday's meet, the results were as follows:

98 pound class, Mark Byard won by a pin in 3:43 over Mark Kruskle, 105: Ron Hilton won by a 16-0 decision over Bob Brummeter.

112: Mike Kiteley lost by a 9-3 decision to Gordon Goldsmith.

119: Don Trost lost by a 6-1 decision to John Kruskle.

126: Ron Hilton lost by a 10-7 decision to Al Kruskle.

132: Craig Golovich lost by a 5-4 decision to Larry Lane.

167: Dennis Whitley lost by a pin in 4:35 to Tom Ball.

185: Dane Whitley lost by a pin in 1:33 to Mike Vorpagel.

Heavyweight: Kirk Lieberman won by a pin in 5:09 over Dave Jepson.

Townhouse Captures Class A

After trailing the major part of the current Independent Basketball season, the Townhouse toppled Doug Way Oil Monday night to capture the Class A title. The Townhouse won by a score of 70-63 after overcoming a deficit to beat Way Oil until late in the game.

In the second game of the night, the B League All Stars won their second game of the season, defeating Swanson K & D 85-70.

The A league will close out its regular schedule Monday when the All Stars play Townhouse at 7 p.m. and Way Oil and Swansons tangle at 8 p.m. The Class A tournament will follow.

The Townhouse took the league title with an 6-3 record after defeating Way Oil 70-63 in a game that saw Townhouse trailing until late in the game. Way Oil had headed the Townhouse quintet 20-12; 36-32 and 46-44 by quarters before the victors caught fire and poured in a torrid 26 points for the title.

Stewart Coleman led the attack with 22 points assisted by Steve Smith with 17 and Dave Strawbridge with 13 points. Larry Potter came through with 19 points, Dale Boss and Roger Crain with 13 each and Butch Klooster with 12 points for Way Oil.

Swanson K & D opened the season with a bang, posting eight straight wins before hitting the skids and losing five in a row. In the meeting Monday with the "B" League All-Stars, the K & D gang seemed to have lost their vigor plus two regulars who are on vacation, Bruce Meggison and David Swanson, and trailed the lowly All-Stars all the way, 18-16; 43-21 and 59-43.

At the present time, Way Oil and Swansons are tied for second place with records of 8-5 and the All-Stars are in the league cellar with two wins and nine losses.

GOVERNOR MILLIKEN was greeted by more than 200 Northern Michigan Republicans at a reception in Anthony's Inn, Boyne City, last Thursday evening. Over 400 persons attended a dinner later in the evening at the Boyne City High School gym, where the governor talked about the many problems facing the State at this time. (Photo by Dave Pitt)

J.V. Loses to Harbor Springs

The Charlevoix JV team held the high flying Harbor Springs JV's to a four point victory here Tuesday night. The final score was 59-55.

The visiting Rams edged to a 12-10 first period lead only to have Charlevoix go ahead 26-24 after outscoring Harbor Springs 16-12 in the second period. The young Rams, however, came back to take a 43-42 advantage at the three quarter before extending the winning margin to four points, 59-54.

Harbor Springs went to the free throw line where they connected on 17 of 24 attempts after scoring only 21 field goals to Charlevoix's 23 to defeat Charlevoix. The latter had nine of 16 successful charity shots. The Rams had 17 personal fouls and the young Rayders 22.

Jeff Morse had 22 points and Dave Dickinson 21 for the victors.

John Cinnamon scored 13 points, Bob Alger, Jim Elzinga and Niel Dziedzic 10 points each, Kevin Kratt five, Joe Left, Pat Schmidt and Chuck Towsley, two points each and Steve Schuch one for Charlevoix.

St. Ignace Downs Freshmen

The Charlevoix freshmen cage squad dropped a close one to St. Ignace Thursday night in an overtime game that ended in a 59-57 score.

It was a seesaw game all the way with St. Ignace taking a 12-10 lead only to lose it to Charlevoix 37-33 at halftime and 47-43 at the three-quarter mark. The young Saints, however, came back with 14 points to 10 for the young Rayders to knot the score 57-all at the final horn. A bucket in the overtime gave them the win.

Doug Buday was top scorer for Charlevoix with 16 points. Barney Way had 13 points and Gilbert Noirot 12.

LeCount had 21 and Simmons 20 for St. Ignace.

The local freshmen are now without the services of Pat Schmidt and Kevin Kratt, both regulars, who were advanced to the JV squad which lost Neil Dziedzic to the Varsity.

Varsity Loses To Harbor

For the second time this season, the Charlevoix Rayders fell victim to the Harbor Springs Rams as Coach Charlie Paige's cagemen continue to conquer all opponents. The final score was 101-76 and marked the 13th victory of the season for the highly-touted Ram machine.

Matt Doan came through with 16 points, Bob Alger and Bud Klooster, 15 points each, Scott Boss, 10, Pat Schaefer, seven, Dave Tollas, six, Wally Drenth, Tom Fowler and Steve Berlage, two each and Steve Michael, one for the Rayders.

CHARLES ELZINGA, local Farm Bureau Insurance Group representative, presents essay contest awards to Charlevoix Middle School students. Left to right are third place winner Dori Ann Olach, second place winner Kristy Mathews and first place winner Karen McKimmy. "The Freedoms Foundation American and Me" essay contest is sponsored by Farm Bureau Insurance. As the school's first place winner, Karen's essay has been entered in the statewide competition from which ten state winners will be selected. Prizes for the top ten in the state are savings bonds ranging from $500 to $50.

McKimmy Takes Essay Honors

Editor's note: Following is the essay which earned Charlevoix Middle School student Karen McKimmy first place in the Freedoms Foundation America and Me essay contest, sponsored by Farm Bureau Insurance Group.

AMERICA AND ME

America is my home, my life! America is beautiful and ugly. It is beautiful because of the land, the trees, the lakes and sky, but mostly because of its people. These are people who preserve its resources, people who love the land and animals, and people who keep alive its spirit of patriotism.

America is also ugly becuuse of its people. There are people who waste its resources, who kill the land and animals and people who do not love and respect their country.

America is, in a sense, a divided nation, a nation with two forces working side by side but for separate purposes. Everyone must decide which force he is going to join.

America needs people who are honest with themselves and others, and brave enough to admit that they were wrong, but courageous enough to try and make a fresh beginning. America needs people who are patriotic, not a conceited patriotism, but a true spirit of patriotism that comes from a deep love for our country. America also needs people who are bold, who have the courage to speak out for what they believe, to fight for what is right, and to despise what is wrong. All these people must have one thing in common and that is a love for their country and a desire for what is good.

Generations before us have fought for the freedom we now possess. Many people died for those freedoms we have inherited. We must treat these freedoms well, with pride and love. If we neglect these freedoms and take them for granted we will surely lose them, but if we nuture them, they will prosper and grow for us. We must teach our children about these freedoms, and make them proud.

It is time for all of us to choose which path we are going to follow and which force we are going to join.

Why should we preserve America? Why should we preserve its freedom and love? Because my generation, my classmates and friends are the future politicians and presidents. We are America! Let's not only look at the past and what has been done, but also to the future and what can be done. Let's make America a really united nation, the truly beautiful place it can be? From sea to shining sea!

Election

housing commission is having its problems. I would hope to help in solving its frustrating progress.

Harbor

Another question dealt with Charlevoix's harbor–should it be extended to accommodate more boats?

HANSEN: (Did not respond to this question.)

McRAE: The recently built water front directly north of Clinton Street needs new docks. I suggested a few months ago we should be planning for their installation before summer arrives. The city has no policy on private docks. I think we should limit their length....I think the city should seek to build a public marina on city property on Lake Charlevoix. We need dockage for the average local resident – many cannot afford the docks available now. Federal and state funds should be sought for this improvement in the next few years.

City Improvements

The question of what they would like to see improved in the city was asked each candidate with the request they list improvements in order of priority.

HANSEN: The top need today is an improvement in attitude toward government by the people it serves. All too often we hear people downgrading government, many times not aware of facts they are talking about. Charlevoix is blessed with natural attributes, clean water, clean air, a reasonable freedom from natural disasters. We should strive for excellence in our people that we find in the natural beauty of Charlevoix. I would like to see the City of Charlevoix merged with the Township of Charlevoix. The sooner this is accomplished the better for all concerned. The activities of the people in the area are so interdependent that only through a cooperative effort can the needs of the people be served to the best of all.

McRAE: In general I would like to see anything done that would add to the beauty of the city. We have some shabby parts in our town and so we need the enforcement of some of our neglected ordinances. In particular, I would like to see a Planning Commission formed to recommend future civic projects and capital improvements. In the last few days I have been made aware of the council's failure to be particularly interested in the problems of our older citizens. I would like to see a special committee of the council set up to respond to the needs of senior citizens beyond housing. The older people of our community are still contributing tax money for the recreation programs of the young people. I am sure more can be done to give our retired people a sense of being actively involved in our community affairs.

State Qualifications

The last question dealt with experience and qualifications of each candidate.

HANSEN: Having served the City of Charlevoix for six years as a member of the council and nearly four years as mayor, I feel that my policy of low taxes, performance and progress without idle promises, considerate but firm decisions, should qualify me to hold office. If elected I will continue to build Charlevoix and make the best even better.

McRAE: After sitting in over a hundred council and committee meetings I feel qualified for the office of mayor. I became personally involved in the charter question and also greatly responsible for the forming of the housing commission for senior housing in Charlevoix. I brought out the fact that the condominiums owed the city thousands of dollars. I insisted on a policy of hiring only local citizens. 30 percent of our city employees do not live in the city limits. I recommended that all future utilities service be paid in advance....I think I am greatly concerned and disappointed, too, in how much of our money is often misused. I would like the opportunity to give Charlevoix taxpayers more for their money...As a member of the city council I tried to represent not only my ward but I also felt responsible to all the people in the City of Charlevoix....If I am elected mayor, I have a list of 36 items I would present to the new council for their consideration.

dockage for transients at this time with our tax dollars unless it can be proven that it is self supporting. We should not restrict private expansion if it is in accord with our community interest, zoning, state and federal regulations. We should be certain that our transient dockage fees and regulations are current and properly enforced. Expansion of dockage in Lake Charlevoix is basically the same situation as Round Lake.

On improvements in the city:

MUMA: I would like to see better parking in the downtown area. Clamp down on the violations that are handled out in the summer. Some people just throw them away or collect them. I would also like to see a plan for the development of the remaining shore line.

MORRIS: I would like to see responsiveness to the needs of the entire community improvement. Secondly, a city that could be judged as one of the best governed municipalities in the state. This includes the best services (current and future) for the dollar paid in. This goal is high but possibly better than any goal we may now have. Why can't we aim in this direction.

On experience and qualifications for the job:

MUMA: I have been a business man here for five years and have lived here most of my life. I feel that being a business owner as well as a homeowner qualifies me to see both sides of a question.

MORRIS: My experience and qualifications include a door-to-door call on 73 percent so far on the third ward. I have a good understanding of their desires and what a city government should do. I feel that I have a basic communication in my ward. My previous business, government and community experiences provide a good base for council government.

Obituary

MRS. HARRY W. HAMMOND

Funeral services for Mrs. Harry W. (Sylvia I.) Hammond, 82, who died Saturday at the Charlevoix Area Hospital where she had been a patient for four days, were held at the Winchester Funeral Home Tuesday. Pastor Jerry Johns of the Seventh Day Adventist Church of Petoskey officiated. Interment was in Brookside cemetery.

The former Sylvia I. Sutton was born in Charlevoix Feb. 4, 1893, and was married to Mr. Hammond at Traverse City in 1921. They had always lived here except for 21 years spent in Muskegon.

She had been employed as a nurse's aide in the first Charlevoix Hospital and in the office of the late Dr. R.R. Armstrong prior to leaving Charlevoix.

They returned here in 1946 to make their home. Mr. Hammong preceded her in death in February 1971. She was a member of the Seventh Day Adventist Church of Petoskey and Charlevoix Senior Citizens.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Carl A. (Helen) Johnson of Charlevoix; three grandsons and five great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Frances Novak

Funeral services for Mrs. C. Max (Frances J.) Novak, 63, who died Friday at Little Traverse Hospital where she had been a patient for two weeks, were held Monday at the First Congregational Church. The Rev. Raymond Giffin officiated. Interment was in Brookside cemetery.

The former Frances J. Boer was born Aug. 7, 1912, at Jenison and was graduated from Western Michigan University. In 1940 she was married to Mr. Novak at Veeland. She taught at the Remus Consolidated School prior to coming to Charlevoix in 1942 to live. She did not return to the classroom until 1962 when she became a substitute teacher and librarian at the Charlevoix High School. Two years later she joined the faculty as a Math and Latin teacher, positions she held until her retirement in June 1975.

She was a member of the First Congregational Church and its Mary Burns Circle, Michigan State Math Association, State Association of Math Teachers and Engineers, American Classical League, Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club Auxiliary and was active in the Red Cross Swimming program.

Surviving are her husband; twin sons, Charles M. of Grand Rapids and Carl M. of St. Louis; three daughters, Marilyn J. of Lansing, Mrs. Cordell (Jeanette) Fowler of Washington, D.C., and Mrs. Frank (Nancy) Letherby of East Grand Rapids and two brothers, Harvey Boer of Jenison and Lawrence Boer of Wyoming.

The family suggests that anyone wishing to honor her memory contribute in her name to the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Lee Sneathen

Funeral services for Lee E. Sneathen, Sr., who died early last week at Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey where he had been a patient for two weeks, were held at the Winchester Funeral Home at 2 p.m. Wednesday. The Rev. Austin Regier officiated. Interment was in Greenwood cemetery at Petoskey.

A lifelong resident of Hayes township where he was born Apr. 7, 1892, Mr. Sneathen was married to the former Ilo Tousch at Petoskey 1913. They resided in Whiting, Ind., for 18 months before returning to Hayes township where he operated a farm until his retirement. He was active in political, civic and fraternal circles and was a former chairman of the Charlevoix County Democratic Committee, former Hayes township officer, former Master of the Maple Grove Grange, former Chairman of the Charlevoix County Agricultural Association, former secretary of the Northern Michigan Potato Growers and a life member of the I.O.O.F. Lodge, first with the Hortons Bay lodge and later of the Round Lake Lodge No. 293 at Charlevoix when the two groups were combined.

Besides his wife, he is survived by three sons, George E., of Charleston, W. Va., Lee E., Jr. and Frank, both of Charlevoix; two daughters, Mrs. Kenneth (Evelyn) Bare of Petoskey and Mrs. Donald (Marjorie) Bare of Royal Oak; 13 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Diane Boss Participating In Exchange

Diane Boss of Charlevoix, is participating in an international student teaching project in Brussels, Belgium, sponsored by Michigan State University.

Miss Boss, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Boss, is a 1972 graduate of Charlevoix High School. She is a senior majoring in elementary education.

The intercultural student teaching program began several years ago as an alternative to fulfilling the student teaching requirement in the Michigan school system.

According to Henry Kennedy, director of student teaching at MSU, the student teachers are expected to perform the same activities they normally would while student teaching in Michigan. This would include classroom teaching and observation, work with special programs in the school, counseling and participation in student activities.

Hansen Wins Nomination for Mayor

Morris Defeats Muma in City Primary

Edward P. Hansen was assured of another term as mayor of Charlevoix Monday when he polled a total of 584 votes to win the Republican nomination over his challenger, Ralph A. McRae, first ward alderman in Monday's Primary election.

In the only other contest in the city, Joseph G. Morris, Jr., a newcomer to the political scene, defeated F. Earl Muma by a margin of 30 votes or 192 to 162 for third ward alderman to succeed Gerald Selph who was not a candidate for re-election.

Other candidates were unopposed for their respective offices. Annabelle Cunningham tallied a total of 866 votes for city treasurer; Lyle S. King, seeking his first term as city clerk after being appointed in August to fill vacancy, received 782 votes.

In the first ward, Susan J. Erber received 196 votes for first ward council woman to succeed incumbent Ralph McRae. This is her first venture into the political arena.

In the second ward, Jeannine Wallace, who sought the nomination for the seat being vacated by Robert N. Timmis who was not a candidate for re-election, received 244 votes. This is Mrs. Wallace's second venture into the political field. She had served as council woman in her ward from 1973-75.

While a record number of absentee ballots were out, the AV ballots, as they are called, did not have the impact on this year's election as it did in 1975.

Of the 584 votes received by Hansen, 160 were absentee ballot while 112 of McRae's total of 447 were paper ballots.

In winning the nomination, Hansen carried the second ward by a margin of 150 to McRae's 94 and the third ward by 164 to 110 for McRae. McRae carried his own ward, the first, by a vote of 130 to 109.

In the third ward, absentee ballots gave the winning nominee, Morris, a greater margin than he would have had without them. Morris, a business consultant who has made Charlevoix his permanent home for the past 2½ years though he has summered here since childhood, received a total of 192 votes including 53 AV's while his opponent, Muma, of Muma's Sunoco Service, received 162 including 34 paper ballots. Without the AV ballots, Morris' winning margin would be trimmed to 11 votes.

King received 236 absentee votes; Cunningham, 244; Erber, 76 and Wallace, 70.

The names of the successful nominees in Monday's primary election which brought out approximately 47 percent of the city's 2,413 registered voters will appear on the ballot in the General Election scheduled for April 5.

Postmaster Rex Davis

Charlevoix's Mr. Zip Code Retires from Post Office

By KEN WINTER

Charlevoix's Rex Davis is about to lose 9,500 friends.

Well, maybe not the whole 9,500, but a good number.

And actually, not all of the 9,500 have always been his friends all the time.

Rex is Charlevoix's postmaster and is about to step down after more than 22 years with the Charlevoix post office.

The 9,500 people represent the number of those who have been getting service from the Charlevoix Post Office.

Like many of those who end up in a top spot, Rex started at the bottom of the pecking order as rual route carrier in 1953.

He covered the territory south of Charlevoix for nearly seven years. He says it was probably one of the most enjoyable times with the Post Office.

Back in those days, Rex says he used to get a lot of requests to pick up medicine and occasionally some groceries for those who were shut in.

"It always paid off at Christmas time," Rex recalled.

"There was always something in the mail box for me."

Although there was one problem – he received mostly candy and cigars. He appreciated the kindness, but he didn't smoke and was a diabetic.

"I think I had a few years supply of shaving lotion, too."

No matter what the gift, Rex said he appreciated the thoughtfulness.

But, while he enjoyed the friendliness, the weather finally got to him.

"The main reason I got off the route was because of the winter of 1958," he continued.

"It was the worse winter ever.

"You could climb up on a snow bank and touch the cross poles of utility lines."

So, when an office spot opened up, he moved in as a mail clerk until he became the officer in charge on Janury 9, 1970. A year later, he was officially named postmaster.

"I've enjoyed working for the postal department," he said.

"I meet a lot of people.

"You also have your daily problems with complaints, but you also get a few commendations."

Looking back on his career, Rex says the post office hasn't changed too much.

However, he says that switching from rails to trucks to deliver the mail from other cities has slowed down the delivery of mail.

"Trucks get stuck in the winter and often break down," he said.

The only other major change in the postal service that has seemed to have a negative effect, has been the switch to zip codes.

"People call and want to know what town the letter is from," Rex said about the elimination of town names on post marks.

Rex first came to Charlevoix when he was elected the county register of deeds in 1946. He was born and raised in Boyne City.

He has been involved in no less than a dozen activities ranging from the American Legion and V.F.W. to the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club and National Association of Postmasters.

His main hobbies are fishing, gardening and golf.

After retiring on February 27, Rex says he and his wife, Lucille, plan to travel to Florida in their new travel home.

He has two children, Rick, who lives in Charlevoix, and a daughter, Key Webster, living at Walloon Lake. He has three grandchildren.

Ralls Organizes New Rail Group

TRAVERSE CITY–A new drive to save Michigan railroads got on track here last week.

Michigan Public Service Commission William Ralls announced intentions to form the Michigan Rail Action Association, a new citizen's "watchdog" group.

According to Ralls, the group will promote improvements of rail facilities, focus public attention on the vital role of railroads in Michigan's economy and serve as an information clearing-house for rail users.

Michigan stands to lose nearly 1,000 miles of trackage, primarily in Northwest Michigan, under federal legislation eliminating bankrupt railroads in a 17-state region.

"We think rails should play a significant role in this part of the state," Ralls told some 30 rail users and government officials in a meeting held at the Holiday Inn.

Ralls said Northern Michigan rails are needed to retain business, encourage new business and enlarge this area's economy.

"The loss of railroads in this part of the state provides unattractive alternatives," he continued.

Besides creating safety hazards, he said the road traffic congestion created by the absence of railroads and reliance on trucks might make the area unattractive for tourism.

Ralls said the railroad network has been deteriorating for years and must be improved for better rail service.

He called for a bi-partisan effort in Lansing to reconstruct the railroad network in Michigan and establish a broad base economy.

"We unfortunately have an unusual history of warring against each other," he said about bi-partisan efforts.

The Public Service Commissioner said business is always fighting against labor, while urban areas are competing against rural areas.

Under this new association, Ralls says he hopes the group can look at rate and route changes, as well as quality.

"I think we have some tough economic times ahead in Michigan, probably the toughest in a quarter of a century," he said.

1976 Winter Mardi Gras Only Several Weeks Away

Plans for the Bicentennial Year Mardi Gras, to be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday, February 27, 28 and 29 are progressing well, according to Jacquie Merta, manager of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

There are six candidates for Mardi Gras King and six for Mardi Gras Queen. Voting for candidates is now taking place in business establishments throughout Charlevoix. It costs fifty cents to cast a vote, with the money collected going toward completion of the band shell in East Park.

The elected King and Queen will lead a parade down Bridge Street Friday evening, at which time prizes will be awarded for the most unusual beards and mustaches and best masks.

Judging in the snow sculpture contest will take place Saturday. Prior entries are required in this contest and a $50 prize will be awarded. An entry blank appears elsewhere in this issue of the Courier.

There will be ski competition at Mt. McSauba Saturday afternoon, with individual winners receiving awards.

On Sunday the Lion's Club will sponsor its Winter Outing, an afternoon of sports activities and refreshments.

Mardi Gras supporters' buttons are on sale in several places in Charlevoix, including Edward's IGA, Lieberman's, the Grey Gables and LaBlance Insurance. Proceeds from the sale of these buttons will also go toward completion of the band shell.

Thanks

A special THANKS to the city recreational director, interested parents, adults, and students who helped construct and put together the hockey rink at Ferry Ave. skating rink. A fine job done and our hockey players will enjoy all the effort and time given for them to enjoy an excellent winter sport. An appreciative parent.

Political Blurb

After reading the political blurb sent out by the mayoralty challenger to Charlevoix voters, any right-minded citizen would be scared out of their wits.

Since when can a mayor promise special favors to special groups to get votes? No mayor has that power under our present city charter and we must be doubly fearful of a new charter granting such privilege.

Of course, senior citizens could use a $3.00 rebate on their electric bills, but the same power of the mayor under the new charter could grant the privilege of restoring the assessment or even adding an extra $3.00 to the bill if needed to grease a palm or pay a legitimate city cost, all without consent of the voters. It is unbelievable that Charlevoix citizens want that kind of city government.

Signs

At Oleson's Shopping Center there are two signs that say "Do Not Enter" and "No Left Turn" at Bridge St. I see people ignoring these signs all the time. The management at Oleson's told me these signs are for customers protection because the entrance and exit to Bridge is considered dangerous. Let's hope that an accident doesn't happen because these signs have been ignored.

High handed

Quote "highhanded" unquote is right. To agreed with Bob Clock's editorial. We certainly do not need a four lane highway between Charlevoix and Petoskey. Not only would it annihilate the few remaining specimens and wildlife, but lakeshore property owners would be forced to abandon their homes. The hippie speedsters that now toss their beer cans onto our frontlawn would be smashing them through our front windows. What we could use is a blacktop lane for bicyclists. This would help both the cyclists and to mitigate the fuel shortage. Why couldn't we put this on the ballot next November and vote on it.

Bicentennial Spirit Lingers On

By SARA DAMMANN

Despite rampant Bicentennial commercialization, Charlevoix Middle School students and teachers are daily taking a thoughtful look at the American Revolution.

For a few quiet minutes after lunch, the public address system carries one student's voice throughout the building, reading "Bicentennial Minutes."

The researching and reading of the "minutes" is one of the Bicentennial projects the eighth grade has taken on under the guidance of teacher Barry Pearce.

Bicentennialism, particularly the commercial variety is so over done, a lot of people have been disgusted to the point of tuning it out, one teacher observed.

Pearce's eighth graders' efforts and school Librarian Lucy Martin's attempts to bring thought provoking information to the attention of both teachers and students reaches some individuals despite their defenses erected against the barrage of commercial exploitation.

One day last week as eighth grader Anita Hendrickson presented her reading about George Washington's domestic financial squeeze—he had to cut back on entertaining at Mt. Vernon in order to wage war—many students and teachers were observed listening with interest. There were, of course, the expected number gazing vacantly out the window.

Pearce said his students had made an attempt to find offbeat and humorous anecdotes for the "minutes." He said he'd had to exercise a bit of control on the range of humor.

Research History

Pearce assigned the period of twenty years surrounding 1776 (1760-1780) to the class. Each student has responsibility for a week's period within the 20 years. For instance, if assigned December 23 to 30, a student would look at that week in any or all of the twenty years.

For maximum exposure, a student researched on week in history, but when he volunteers to read, he is given a different week.

Librarian Lucy Martin provides a special study carrel for the student researchers and has assembled a quantity of resources from which they draw their anecdotes.

In addition they have written to Columbia Broadcasting System for copies of Shell Oil Company's TV Bicentennial Minutes.

Pearce says he's been inundated with material, from all sorts of agencies and groups. One of the more fascinating has come from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, focusing the culture of the early colonies.

Eight students from 6th, 7th and 8th grade classes are participating in an experimental independent reading course, also tied to the Bicentennial, under Mrs. Martin's direction.

In the reading program, now in its third week, the students have a wide choice of approaches to probing the national heritage.

One student is comparing the problems of modern and revolutionary period youth through novels. Another, garnering inspiration from the American Issues Forum's reading list, has taken the theme "One Nation" and is focusing on the Civil War.

Folklore heroes as they reveal history, from Pocahontas to John Henry and Paul Bunyan, is another approach Mrs. Martin has made available to students.

"We've worked out five alternate plans," she said.

"Regardless of what they choose, I'd like to get them to thinking about our heritage and how to preserve it," she continued.

"The spirit of development of the country," is something Mrs. Martin hopes to communicate.

The Elementary School also has Bicentennial Projects in the works, which the Courier will be covering next. High School History teacher Don Carey reports he has no Bicentennial plans in mind.

Middle School Principal Vincent Chew pointed out that

Ann Arbor Rail and Car Ferry Expected to Get State Priority

By KEN WINTER

TRAVERSE CITY—State transportation officials are expected to approve Michigan's master plan for federal rail subsidies despite rail user opposition here.

Edgerton Bailey, a state rail freight program administrator, told some 30 Northern Michigan rail users that he expected the Michigan Highway and Transportation Commission to establish priority lines within the next two weeks.

Although refusing to identify which specific lines Michigan intends to maintain under federal subsidy, Bailey said the state hopes to give high priority to maintaining the Ann Arbor line and ferry service between Toledo and Kewaunee, Wisc.

The state official said Michigan also hopes to maintain Penn Central trackage from Grand Rapids to the Straits, including branch line trackage from Walton Junction to Traverse City.

In addition, Bailey said he expects the state transportation agency to ask the Interstate Commerce Commission to delay abandonment proceedings of C&O (Chessie System) trackage between Manistee and Petoskey until July 1, 1977.

Under the Rail Reorganization Act of 1973, Michigan can receive federal subsidies for nearly 1,100 miles of bankrupt lines that would not be picked up by the newly created Conrail system that will operate seven eastern lines beginning April 1.

Michigan stands to gain $4.7 million out of the $33 million 17-state subsidy being given out for the first year. Bailey said the Michigan legislature has authorized another $1.9 million in operating subsidies.

Under the five-year program, Michigan is expected to get about 15 percent of the $90 million subsidies being made available for the first two years for the 17 states. Some $360 million has been authorized for all states the third, fourth and fifth years.

Initially, Bailey said Michigan would offer service continuation contracts to existing carriers to maintain service on Michigan lines.

"We will strive to retain all service in Michigan for at least one more year," Bailey said.

Richard Beagle, assistant director for the Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission, challenged the state's efforts.

"We need to know the criteria Michigan is using to save specific rail lines over others," Beagle said.

"I can't believe that Congress is going to spend taxpayers' dollars to maintain all lines in Michigan."

The United States Railroad Administration rejected Michigan's Railroad Plan for federal subsidy last December until it could come up with specific priorities as to what lines it wanted to maintain.

Michigan was then given until February 17 to establish these lines.

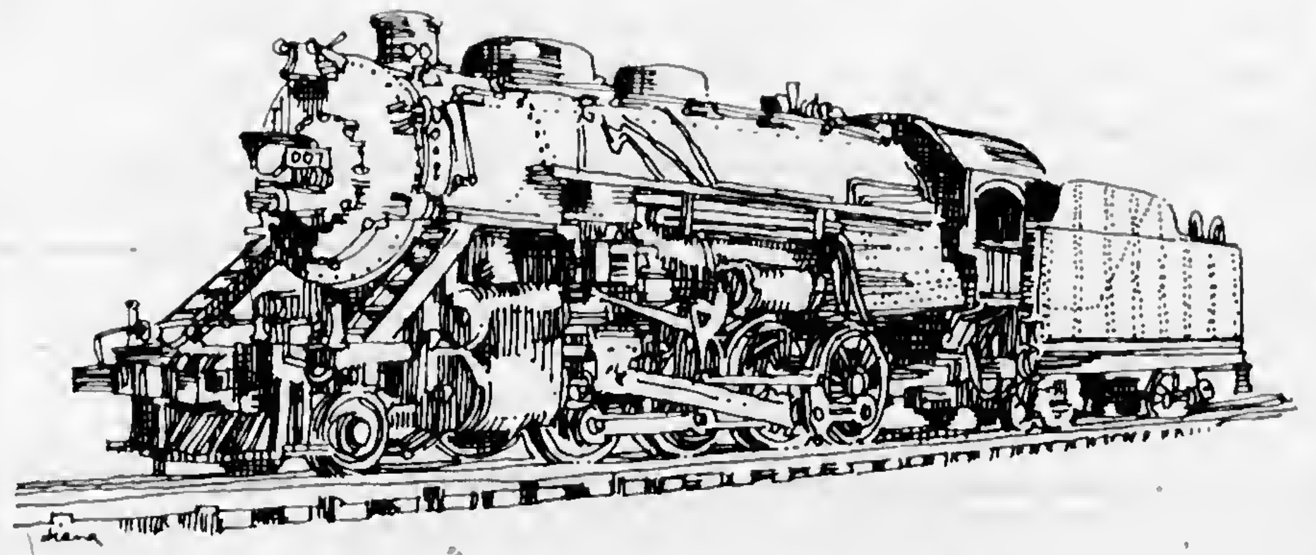
Beagle said he resented the Highway Commission meeting to establish these priorities without any public input.

"I think this region will be stymied with a long term subsidy," he continued.

"I'm frankly not all that excited about subsidizing conrail in this region for another year."

Beagle said his 10-county Northwest Michigan regional agency wants specific decisions, rather than another delay.

William H. Ohle of Horton Bay, a vice president of Northern Michigan Rail Users, said he thinks it's time for the state to develop a strategy showing what it intends to do for the next five years.



Farmers Participate in Space Act

Owners of 280 acres of farmland in Charlevoix County and 430 acres in Antrim County have asked that their property be placed under the Farmland and Open Space Preservation Act.

Approval of the applications would guarantee the farmers certain tax credits while permitting them to keep their land in agricultural production for a minimum of ten years to help preserve open space.

The act specifies that the landowner's tax be based on an appraisal of property for its agricultural potential rather than its worth for development.

The State Office of Land Use reports that the act signifies a recognition of the changing values that Michigan citizens have placed on their land.

"Only until recent years, our national farm policy was one that encouraged farmers to keep their lands out of production and popular opinion supported the notion that our essential land supply was inexhaustible. Farm and open space lands are not in surplus, and they are irreplaceable.

"About six million acres of farmland have been lost to development in Michigan since 1945. Between six and seven million acres are currently in agricultural production, with projected needs by the year 2,000 set at eight million acres," the state agency reports.

Statewide, applications covering nearly 100,000 acres of farmland under the act have been received by the state.

Persons wishing to apply for consideration under the Farmland and Open Space Act may do so by writing the Department of Natural Resources, Office of Land Use, Room A, Lansing, Michigan, 48926.

Ruppe Questions U.S. Coast Guard

Congressman Philip E. Ruppe's charges that the U.S. Coast Guard is ill-equipped to handle Great Lakes search and rescue operations causes us great alarm.

In a recent hearing before the Coast Guard Subcommittee of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, the Northern Michigan congressman said he was under the impression that the Coast Guard had competent Search and Rescue efforts on the Great Lakes.

But after recent Congressional hearing testimony offered by Admiral Owen W. Siler, Coast Guard Commandant, Ruppe says he has second thoughts.

Ruppe cited the sinking of the Edmund Fitzgerald last November near Sault Ste. Marie as one stinging example of the Coast Guard's ability.

Ruppe said it took two and half hours to get a helicopter airborne. The nearest Coast Guard cutters were both down for repairs, and after the helicopter was airborne, it did not arrive at the scene, after a refueling stop, for another hour and a half after the original call for help was made.

"If any crewmen had managed to escape from the sinking vessel, he would have died from exposure before the Coast Guard even had a helicopter on the scene," Ruppe said.

Ruppe pointed out that the helicopter dispatched to the sinking site was of an older variety with limited range potential. Before proceeding to the scene from the Traverse City Coast Guard Station, it stopped for refueling at Kincheloe Air Force Base near Sault Ste. Marie.

"When it came to getting a boat on the scene, the nearest Coast Guard vessel not under repair was dispatched from Duluth, Minnesota–nearly 400 miles away," Ruppe continued.

Surrounded by the Great Lakes as we are, we feel immediate attention should be given to the problem identified by Ruppe.

In private conversations, Ruppe has indicated that some of the search and rescue stations closed several years ago in an economy move should be reopened.

Understandably, he was interested in opening several stations in the Upper Peninsula because the closest service available by helicopter is from Traverse City.

We suggest that the Coast Guard reevaluate their position and place the burden upon Mr. Ruppe's shoulders.

Presently there are two World War II vintage cutters, serving the Great Lakes that desperately need to be replaced. Similarly, some of the helicopters serving our area should also be replaced with longer range capability equipment.

We encourage the Coast Guard to become more aggressive with their financial requests to adequately cover our Great Lakes.

If, after that evaluation and financial requests are made and nothing is done, then the appropriate pressure can be placed on our Congress.

We think highly of the Coast Guard and the dedicated service they provide us with, but their ability to perform is only as good as the equipment and training they can get.

College Chiefs Desert Milliken

Michigan's college presidents deserve a good talking to in the cloak room–perhaps even a sharp rap on the knuckles with a hickory stick–-for their ridiculous assault on Gov. William Milliken's proposed allocations for for higher education during the next fiscal year.

If anyone understands Michigan's financial plight it should be her better educated citizens, including Robben Fleming, president of the University of Michigan; Clifton R. Wharton Jr., president of the University of Michigan; and George E. Gullen Jr., president of Wayne State University.

Yet Fleming, Wharton and Gullen have come out four-square against the rather modest increases Gov Milliken has proposed for Michigan's three largest state-supported universities next year.

The governor's proposed increases will amount to $10 million dollars, which, the university presidents say, will not be sufficient to keep them abreast of inflation and rising utility costs.

And they are probably right. Every segment of the Michigan economy is going to be in for some stringent economizing if we are going to emerge from our present financial dilemma without state institutions in tact.

It would not only be unwise but downright immoral for the governor, or the state Legislature to come up with a whopping tax increase on individuals and businesses already struggling to survive in an economy just now emerging from the worst depression in 40 years.

The governor's tight budget also falls far short of what local school district's across the state say they will need to maintain their present programs for another year. School officials and the Michigan Education Association are expected to join the attack on the governor's spending program as the budget debate grows.

No where in the entire education community do we hear murmurs of sympathy for the governor's position or pledges of restraint in the spending of state dollars.

It is ironic that the clamor for ever increasing state appropriations comes loudest from the ranks of the educated–the very people who should understand the economic facts of life if anyone does.

These are the same people who should be working closely with the governor in finding solutions to Michigan's financial problems. They do little credit to themselves, their universities or their students with their incessant demands for more, more, more when they should be looking for ways to spend less, less, less. (B.C.)

Letters to the editor

Leisure or Work?

The most prominent conservative Republican chadenger complains that industry could provide jobs for the unemployed but it costs industry $30,000 to provide a job in industry and government borrowing prevents industry from obtaining the needed capital from the private money markets to eliminate unemployment.

While this concept appears logical it demonstrotes a fundamental misunderstanding of the economic problem that we face. Industry that is price competitive is not in business to provide jobs, it is in business to provide goods as efficiently as it can. If a $30,000,000 industry that employed 1000 people received $3,000,00 from profits, or by borrowing, it is unlikely that they would automatically hire 100 more people. It is far more likely that they would increase productivity through technological improvements, lay off 100 employees, and then claim that it costs them $36,667 to provide a job. In a country that is not industrialized a majority of the people labor on farms just to produce enough food.

Mechanization of agriculture in the United States increased the productivity of the farm worker of today tenfold over the farm worker of a century ago, resulting in the mass migration from rural to urban areas. Labor saving devices for the home were the most significant contributors to Women's Lib freeing millions of women to pursue non-domestic careers if they prefer.

This process has continued, and accelerated, since the industrial revolution began, resulting in a shrinking work force required to produce necessary goods, and an increasingly large pool of labor to produce unnecessary goods, supply services, and where no demand for labor exists, welfare.

The fastest growing suppliers of services in the country are government agencies, and productivity is not a high priority in government, or the professions. Votes have the high priority in politics. A government worker is a more reliable vote than a person on welfare. The trend has been to provide increasing numbers of government jobs to those who are displaced from the private sector, regardless of the party affiliation, or the alleged political philosophy, of the incumbents.

There is a real possibdity that a majority of the nations employees, and as a result, voters, will become government dependent unless the private sector recognizes what is happening and takes effective measures to counteract these trends.

Do we ready want high productivity in industry, in the professions, in services, and government?

How are the benefits of high productivity to be distributed in work, pay, and leisure?

Sincerely,
Ray E. Peltz

Dr. Harry Custer glanced around the table.

"Would you like me to give you my three-minute talk on what's new in the field of cancer research?"

All heads nodded enthusiastically, including mine, although I am not a board member of the Charlevoix County Unit of the American Cancer Society. They group met last Wednesday at Grey Gables to map its forthcoming April Crusade.

Dr. Custer, as you know, is a real spellbinder when it comes to public speaking. When the topic has anything to do with medicine he is in his element. And when it has to do with cancer research and treatment, he is tops.

Dr. Custer's "three-minute talk" always lasts an hour or more, but it's always one of the most exciting hours of the year. So much progress in the fight against cancer is being made on so many fronts that you get the impression that major breakthroughs are just around the corner.

Indeed, so much progress has been made against cancer in the past year that its control and/or cure seems almost inevitable.

Did you know, for example, that one of the new chemotherapy medications can arrest the march of liver cancer and hold it in abeyance year after year? One local victim has been on medication for three years and is still working every day and bowling a couple of times a week. Very few of his friends know that he even has cancer, since he hasn't told them. His cancer has been controlled by chemotherapy, much as diabetes is controlled by regular dosages of insulin.

Dr. Custer says the two most important contributions to the campaign against cancer during the past 12 months have been the astounding results demonstrated by prolonged chemotherapy and growing awareness of the importance of immunological resistance in avoiding cancer in the first place.

In breast cancer, the five-year survival rate is three times the expected rate when patients are kept on chemotherapy for a full year after their mastectomies.

Many doctors today have accepted the philosophy that it is virtually impossible to contain cancer cells. They look upon cancer as a "systemic" disease, rather than a local disease. Chemotherapy tracks down cancer cells wherever they have wandered in the body and destroys them.

Studies into immunological resistance are fascinating. There is still a whale of a lot of work to do, but it seems that certain individuals have an immunity to cancer, just as others are immune to other diseases.

Dr. Custer says if you are afflicted with allergies such as hay fever, asthma, etc., your chances of coming down with cancer are very slim since your body has demonstrated a capacity to create the antibodies it needs to fight disease.

Dr. Custer believes that some day vaccines may be developed to protect patients against certain types of cancer. (Certain types, because cancers are like infections. There are many different types and they respond to treatment differently, just as infections respond differently to different drugs.) The drug used in tuberculin testing, BCG, already shows promise of providing some degree of protection against certain types of cancer.

Dr. Custer says that every living thing–-plants and animals–-carries within it the potential for cancer. In fact, he believes every human body may develop 20 or 25 cancers in its lifetime. Fortunately, most cancers are destroyed as soon as they form by the body's defense mechanisms.

It is only when resistance is low that the body allows cancers to grow. That is why science has turned to immunology as a means of preventing cancer before it gains a foothold.

The immunology theory also would explain why the same cancer will progress at different speeds in different patients.

It was a very exciting "three minutes."

Erma Bombeck

Hey, got a bicentennial minute?

It's only the first week of February and already I've had my first bicentennial spit-up. I've seen the first bicentennial birth, the bicentennial toilet seat (with stripes and an eagle), the Minutemen vitamins, the Uncle Samwich, the bicentennial flea collar, a fire hydrant dressed up like George Washington, and just last week the voice of the manager of the supermarket that shook the world with, "Attention shoppers! Save now on your bicentennial bread."

I love this country. I ready do.

I love it in prosperity, in recessions, in wars, in peace, in triumphs, failures, victory and despair. I even love it as it struggles now to observe its birthday in a way that thinks a birthday should be observed. Maybe we just don't know how.

Unlike England, we've never thrown a coronation before. Unlike Russia, we've never hosted a show of military power in Red Square on the first day of May. Unlike China, we've never had the gang in for a display of national gymnastics.

We've staged a few small things like Peter Pan flying over the castle at Disney World, a VFW parade in Tyler, Texas, or a Parade of Roses hosted by Ed McMahon, but a birthday party for more than a couple of hundred million people?

An editor for whom I worked back in Ohio said to me once, "Anyone can criticize. But people who write can't get off that easy. They have an obligation to offer some kind of suggestion or solution to tell people what they want."

Okay, do you know what I'd like to see people in this country do to celebrate the bicentennial?

Beginning now and continuing through 1976-forever, I'd like to observe an entire year where everyone in this country refers to one another as Americans. Not as the Jew who owns the shoestore, the kid with the Irish accent, the German girl who goes to night school, the Japanese couple on the corner, the Catholics with all the kids, the black man who works on the second shift, the Mexican who talks funny, the Czechoslovakian-born student, the Krishna with the bald head, the Christian Scientist lady... just Americans.

All of us are proud of our heritage (I get choked up about all 26 of my blood lines), but we all came to this point 200 years ago to become the most unique country in the world.

We put together a whole new human race...and made it work.

For that, I don't need a bicentennial water pik.

Bad guys get respectable

Spencer Tracy said there was no such thing as a bad boy. But that was long ago, before Mickey Rooney grew up and got married 8 times.

Today everyone admits there are bad boys and also bad girls. They all grow up to be lousy adults and proud of it.

There is no longer any shame in being bad, so there is no longer any need for Spencer Tracy to put on Father Flanigan's round collar and tell square lies.

Years ago, when the town banker was caught embezzling, he would leave town to make a new start somewhere else, under a new name.

Today the crooks and sinners proudly admit their guilt, and cash in on it. If they don't gain wealth from public confession they at least gain fame, sympathy and dinner invitations. They go on lecture tours and write books and tell Johnny Carson how they became millionaires through shoplifting.

They also start clubs. The only qualification for membership is you must have been bad. At meetings, the members take turns telling each other how bad. The press is often invited to sit in and take notes. The baddies love to flagellate themselves in the Family Living sections of daily newspapers, preferably on the same page as Ann Landers.

A national convention of child beaters was held in Detroit recently. Members sat around Howard Johnson's and compared photos of black-and-blue children.

There are also organizations for wife beaters, dog kickers, dope fiends, incestuous orphans and gregarious hermits. You name it and they're meeting once a week. The guest speaker is usually a psychiatrist, or at least a turnkey.

It was all started by the drunks. Alcoholics Anonymous proved the best way for a boozer to stop boozing was to phone an ex-boozer and ask him to hurry over with his ex. They began what is now called group therapy – meeting regularly to tell how drunk they'd been, and how long they'd been sober.

As a group, the AA has clung to its anonymity. But individual members more and more frequently are making their sordid pasts public, especially if they have already attained a degree of fame while sober. Politicians and their wives and newspaper columnists are particularly guilty of this reverse bragging. Also movie stars (someone should get that drunk Dana Andrews off the freeway before he is killed).

The reason for this dancing nude on the court house steps is 2-fold, and both folds are admirable.

An ex-bank robber, for instance, figures if he tells the whole world he has given up robbing banks for Lent, he will be to ashamed to break his word with so many people watching. He'll also have trouble dating tellers after Easter. So public confession helps him keep straight.

The 2nd fold is that other bank robbers may follow his example and join his club. If enough robbers join, the only stealing in banks will be by the officers collecting interest on mortgages. The world will be a safer place for bank guards.

All of which is a grand thing. Bad guys gain a Rotarian respectability by meeting regularly to confess their badness. Good guys shouldn't knock it just because they've never had to try it.

Except today, Spencer Tracy would say there is no such thing as a good guy.

Meet Charlevoix

Edward Shanahan

Edward K. Shanahan is a native of Charlevoix, a graduate of Charlevoix High School and the United States Naval Academy. After serving 27 years with the Navy in various parts of the world he returned to Charlevoix in 1950. He and his wife, the former Phila Armonstrong who is also a native of Charlevoix, have lived here since that time. One of Shanahan's interests in the past several years has been the Charlevoix Development Corporation, of which he is treasurer. This week the Courier talks with him about the history, purposes and some of the accomplishments of this organization.

COURIER: When and why was the Charlevoix Development Corporation started?

SHANAHAN: It was started about 20 years ago with the idea of developing business in the local area, not just within the Charlevoix City limits, but within the general area. We wanted businesses which were interested in locating in the area to know that they were welcome.

COURIER: What was the first business you helped locate in Charlevoix?

SHANAHAN: American Mold. We found out they were interested and sold stock in the amount of $13,000 to local persons and businesses to loan to them. It was loaned with the idea it would be paid back, and it was.

COURIER: Who was next?

SHANAHAN: Hoskins Manufacturing Company. It was much the same situation. They wanted assurance there was local interest in having them here.

COURIER: Is this the way you have brought most businesses to Charlevoix?

SHANAHAN: No, the LexaLite Corporation was a different situation. It was a new company being formed. The Charlevoix Development Corporation requested help from the Small Business Administration and the Charlevoix State Savings Bank (now the First State Bank) to build a building on a lease-purchase arrangement. Since then the Development Corporation has assisted with two additions to LexaLite and are now in the process of getting a third loan for them.

COURIER: What other local business have you helped in this way?

SHANAHAN: We assisted Freedman Artcraft in building an addition to their factory.

COURIER: How does the Charlevoix Development Corporation operate internally?

SHANAHAN: The officers and directors of the corporation work without pay as a public-spirited contribution to the community. We feel that what is good for the area is good for us and other people doing business here, so it is not entirely charity on our part. Our stock is widely held. Many people have one, two, five or ten shares at a par value of $10. There are 1,500 outstanding shares, held by about 200 stockholders. Among them are the local banks and the people in them.

COURIER: How do business people who think they might like to move into the area hear about you?

SHANAHAN: Often they go to the Chamber of Commerce or to a local lending institution and are referred to us.

COURIER: Do you help with obtaining land as well as financial assistance?

SHANAHAN: Yes, we help with whatever is needed. We are also fortunate in having an excellent reputation with the Small Business Administration office in Detroit. We have been fortunate in the quality of companies we have assisted – they have not been fly-by-night, get-rich-quick outfits.

COURIER: Have you compiled facts and figures on the Charlevoix area?

SHANAHAN: No. Members of the Board of Directors have a good general knowledge of the area which is freely exchanged. We have no operating budget or income except the interest on invested capital.

COURIER: What specific advantages do you see for a business coming to Charlevoix?

SHANAHAN: Just the general one that it is a good place to live and work.

COURIER: Are you getting as many inquiries as you have in the past despite poorer economic conditions?

SHANAHAN: Yes, our activity is pretty much the same.

COURIER: What is your answer to people who want to keep things as they are?

SHANAHAN: Their ideas don't jibe with the history of the world. Things have changed and will continue to change.

COURIER: Who are the other officers of the Charlevoix Development Corporation?

SHANAHAN: Ted Browe of Browe Electric is president; Max Novak, retired teacher and principal, is vice-president and Fred Wilbs, retired manager of the Charlevoix Co-op is secretary.

We are elected by the Board of Directors each January but usually we serve more than one term. I have been treasurer for ten or 12 years.

School Holds Apreciation Dinner

The Charlevoix Board of Education hosted an Appreciation Dinner at the high school cafeteria recently to express appreciation to those who have helped mold the Charlevoix School System.

Honored were past presidents of the Board of Education who were presented with plaques naming their years as members of the board and their tenures as president. Among those honored were E. Darrell Dinwiddie, 1960-68 Jack Rader, 1965-71; Richard Donaldson, 1969-73, whose son, Robert, accepted the plaque in his absence; Robert Lieberman, 1956-62, and Mrs. June Lieberman, 1970-74, the only husband and wife combination and John L. Boss, 1957-60, whose son, Kenneth, presently a member of the board, accepted in his father's behalf. This was the only father-son combination. These people served at least one term as president of the board. Others were unable to attend.

Charles Elzinga, vice president of the Board of Education, welcomed the guests and made the presentation of plaques.

Supt. James A. McKimmy, in addressing the gathering, said the dinner was held to express the appreciation of the board and the administration to the people of the Charlevoix school District for their continued support of the school.

"It has been this positive approach to education which has made the schools the fine institutions they are today."

He then spoke briefly of plans for future expansion brought on by the growing enrollment and the dramatic need for additional space.

"While other schools are dropping in enrollments and schools are being closed, the Charlevoix school district is showing a gradual but definite growth. Thus the need for an expansion of existing facilities to keep abreast of educational needs".

The proposed $2.8 million expansion program for existing facilities will be brought to a vote on March 22.

Dale Boss, one of the guests at the meeting, proposed instead a proposed new high school at the site of the present football field instead of the rennovating and expansion of the present Middle School which he classed as a "rat trap."

A brief program was provided by a group of third grade students who sang and presented a dance under the direction of Mrs. Marina LaBlance; an instrumental group from the music department directed by Gary Stutzman and a vocal group directed and accompanied by Steven Stargardt who also provided dinner music on the piano.

The meal was prepared and served by the Vocational Food Service students under the guidance of Mrs. Mary Lou Smith.

Student art by the Elementary, Middle and High School was displayed under the instructors, William Murray, Mrs. Roxonna Loding and Ms. Mercedes Mathers.

Wrestlers Capture Class C

The Charlevoix Rayder wrestling team, coached by Norm Probert, topped a field of 15 entries to capture the Class C District Wrestling tournament held at Grayling Saturday.

In winning, the Rayders qualified seven grapplers for competition in the Class C regionals at Shelby on Saturday. Competition will begin at 12 noon Saturday with the finals scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

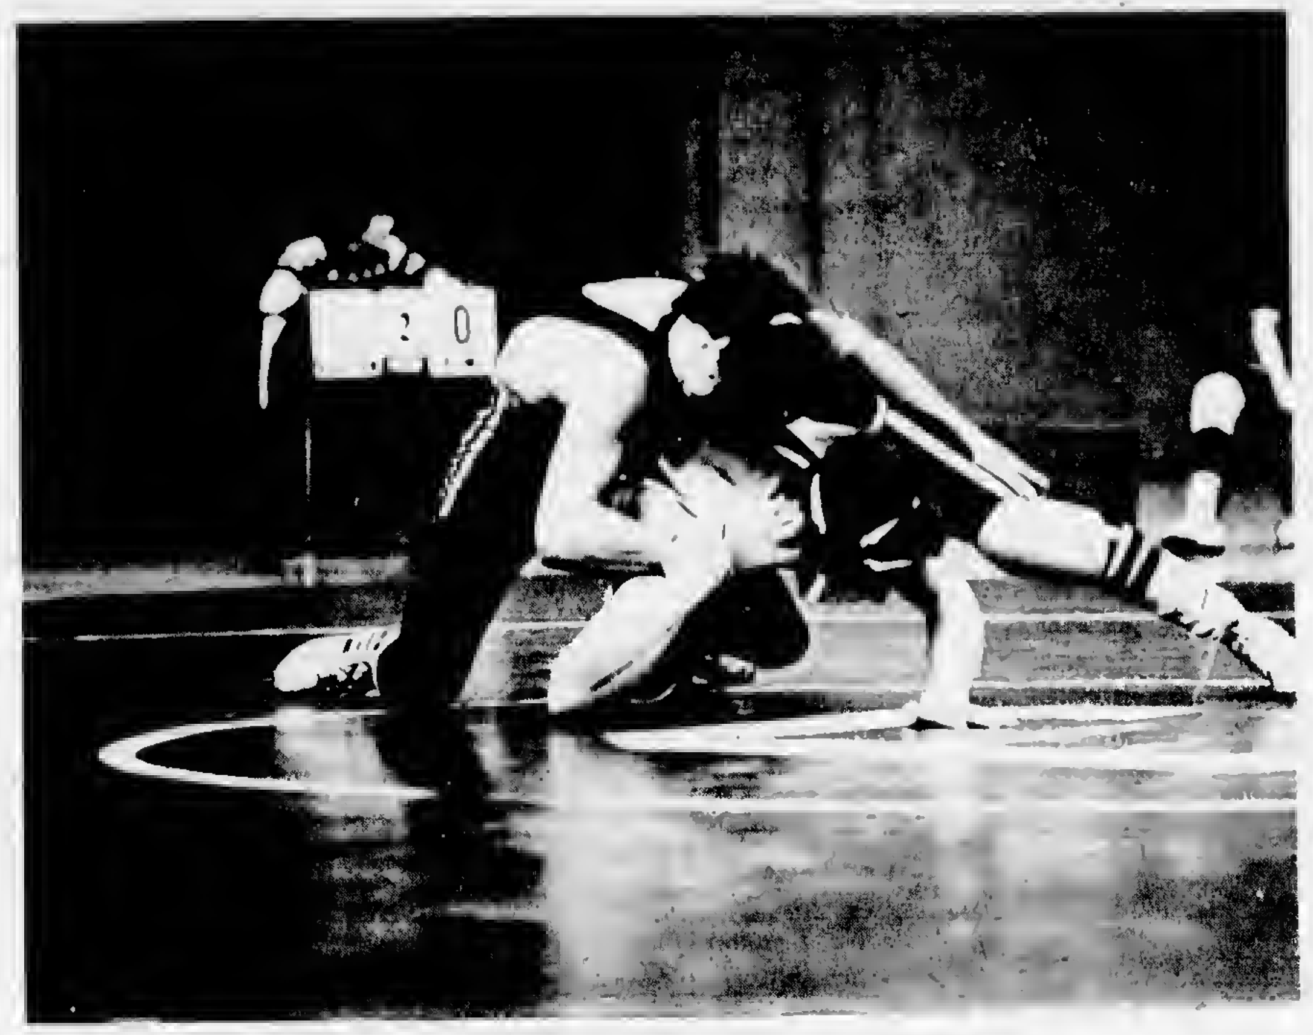
Qualifying for Charlevoix and their weight classes are Mark Byard (98), Ron Hilton (105), Rob Hilton (126), Craig Golovich (132), Chris Wimmer (145), Dane Whitley (167) and Kirk Lieberman (heavyweight). Byard, Ron Hilton and Golovich are sophomores; the others are seniors.

In winning the district title, the Charlevoix Rayders with 51 points edged favored Pine River who came in second with 50 points and the Michigan Huron Shores champions, Rogers City, who placed third with 46 points. Pine River qualified six wrestlers and Rogers City five. Other entries and their total points and qualifiers follow: Grayling (8), 42½ points; Kalkaska (5), 36; Roscommon, (4), 34; Clare (3), 29; Boyne City (3), 24½; Benzie Central (2), 22; Onaway (3), 19; Elk Rapids (2), 13; Stanford Meridian (1) 12; Whittimore Prescott (1), 10; Farwell (0), 8; Coleman (0), 0.

In winning, Charlevoix had to come from behind to win in the final matches. It was a pin by Lieberman in the heavyweight class with an assist from Kalkaska's Don Doherty over Pine River's Roy McConnell in the last match of the evening that gave the Rayders the winning margin. Lieberman pinned Kevin Shaler of Boyne City with an Olympic pinning combination in 1:02 to cop the title.

Coach Probert had special praise for his entire squad commenting that it was a real team effort that brought Charlevoix the District Title. He had special praise for Byard, a sophomore who was seeded fifth, who pinned favored Dan Peterman of Onaway and then downed fourth seeded Mike Kramer of Benzie Central with a double pinning combination in 2:53. Wimmer and Whitley also had double pins. Three others came through with early round wins for advancement points. They were juniors Don Trost (119) and Mike Snizik (138) and freshman Ande Keller (155), a freshman. Others who participated but did not place were Mike Kiteley (112) and Dennis Whitley (185).

Charlevoix went into district competition without five regulars, tri-captains, Terry Drew, Tim DeYoung and Gary Probert, Tom Jones and Greg Loper, all benched as the result of injuries.



CHARLEVOIX GRAPPLERS pulled through last week with a District Title.

Ski Team Takes Double Victory

The Charlevoix Ski Team skied to another double victory at Gaylord Wednesday with the Charlevoix girls coming through with a 27-28 win and the boys a 34-29 margin.

Camille Malpeli headed the girls' victory with wins in both the slalom and double slalom.

In the slalom, Malpeli had a time of 53.51 with Kathy Bowers of Gaylord placing second with a 53.98 and Charlevoix's Lisa Weimer third with a 59.42. The same trio was tops in the giant slalom with Malpeli posting a time of 48.27; Bowers, 48.31 and Weimer, 51.84.

Gaylord dominated the boys slalom with Jeff Todd placing first with a time of 51.44; Eric Lundeteigen, Cheboygan, second with a 52.51 and Keith Pollock, Gaylord, third with a time of 52.65.

Lee Begrow, Charlevoix, took top honors in the giant slalom with a 43.59; Gary Thompson, Gaylord, second with a 43.94 and Marc Malpeli, Charlevoix, third with a 44.71.

Cheboygan will go into the regional meet at Walloon Hills Wednesday, one of 18 area teams entered. The girls will be taking a 5-0 record into regional competition while the boys will take a 4-1 record into the meet.

3-Way Tie for Independent Title

With time running out on the Independent basketball season, Russell Shell, LaBlance Insurance and Kenney Excavating are tied for first place with records of 9 wins and 2 losses, according to Dwight Boss, city recreation director.

Boss went on to say that it may be necessary to have a series of play-off games if the three-way tie for first place continues through the remaining two weeks of play.

LaBlance Insurance was leading the pack until Credit Union upset the leader by a score of 52-48 to throw the lead into the three-way tie. In other games during the week, Kenney Excavating plowed under Medusa by a score of 86-49; Village Milkhouse won over First State Bank 62-54; Freedman's defeated Wojan Aluminum 69-58; Klooster John Deere downed Bay Shore Steel 52-41 and County State Bank dumped AlRay Cottages 65-33.

The LaBlance Insurance defeat at the hands of Credit Union was no fluke. The two teams battled it out all the way with Credit Union leading 14-13 and then LaBlance Insurance taking a 27-25 halftime advantage before Credit Union came back with a 38-35 margin going into the final eight. Mike Hamilton and Gary Novotny with 14 points and Dean Ginther with 10 sparked with win for Credit Union. Sam Supernaw and Joe Beaudoin with 15 each and Jim Gels with 10 were top scorers for LaBlance's.

Jack Danbert with 27 points led Kenney Excavating to 14-10; 40-21 and 62-35 quarter leads over Medusa. He was backed up by Joel Donaldson with 21; Rick VanStedum with 19 and Max Bolser with 10 for the victors. Beano Archey had 25 and Stan Johnson 12 for Medusa.

Village Milkhouse and First State Bank played to a 12-12 first period tie but from then on Milkhouse took over, leading the Bankers 33-23 at halftime and 45-34 going into the final period for the win.

Bill Gengle with 23 points headed the scoring for Milkhouse followed by Dick Putman with 16, Roger Putman with 12 and Don Potter with 10 points. Rob Casteline had 24 points, John Wins, 14 and Glen Taylor, 10, for the Bankers.

Girls Lose Two

The Charlevoix girls volleyball team came out of a meet at Petoskey Saturday with a record of one win and two losses. The meet had been postponed from Wednesday.

This week the team will travel to Cheboygan where they will clash with the host team, the league-leading St. Ignace Saints and Boyne City.

In Saturday's games, Charlevoix downed Petoskey 15-10 and 15-10 for their only match of the day while losing to Cheboygan 15-13 and 15-11 and to Grayling by scores of 15-1 and 15-8 after winning the first of three games 15-12.

Charlevoix now has a 12-6 record for the season.

In other games played at Petoskey Saturday, Grayling defeated Cheboygan 15-0 and 15-11 and Petoskey 13-15; 15-2 and 15-3. Cheboygan then defeated Petoskey 14-8 and 15-9.

Judy Ann Mathews Marries Michael Warren Wheat

Arrangements of white gladioli and white daisy pompoms and candelabra graced the altar of the First Baptist church for the early evening wedding of Judy Ann Matthews and Michael Warren Wheat on Saturday.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Matthews and Mr. and Mrs. Warren L. Wheat.

The Rev. Hugh Cowan officiated at the double ring service in the presence of more than a hundred guests. Julei Westrate of Kingsley, at the organ, played a program of traditional music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Donald Westrate, also of Kingsloy. C.H. Folmsbee played the wedding march.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a traditional wedding gown of polyester organza trimmed with Venise lace.

Fashioned with a wedding band collar and a camisole bodice with a cape effect aver the long, fitted sleeves, the skirt of the gown had a demi-bell silhouette which fell into soft, graceful tiers of organza ruffles trimmed with Venise lace that also encircled the chapel length train. Her floor length mantilla style veil fell from a Camelot cap trimmed with Venise lace. She carried a bouquet of pink roses, white carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Peggy Scott of Walled Lake served as maid of honor and Julie Michael and Donna Sutton were bridesmaids. They wore identical floor length gowns of wine and pink double knit polyester styled with high collars, bib effect self-ruffles and long fitted sleeves edged with ruffles. They wore matching picture hats with contrasting ribbons. Their bouquets were of miniature red roses, pink carnations and baby's breath.

Peter LaFavour assisted the bridegroom as best man. Gerald Wheat of Grand Rapids, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman and, with James Klooster, seated the guests.

Mrs. Matthews chose a floor length gown of pink polyester chiffon styled with long sleeves for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Wheat, mother of the bridegroom, wore a floor length blue double knit gown with long sleeves. Their corsages were of miniature ivory carnations.

A reception, hosted by the bride's parents, followed at Stafford's Bay View Inn.

After a wedding trip through Michigan and Canada, the couple will return here to make their home.

Wedding guests were present from Illinois and several Michigan cities.

The bridegroom is a member of the Boyne City Police Department and a farrier.

Local Boy Scouts Honored

Boy Scout Troop 11 celebrated Boy Scout week recently at the annual Boy Scout banquet held at the Charlevoix High School cafeteria in cooperation with the troop's sponsoring organization, the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club.

More than 20 Scouts, their Scoutmaster Louis Edwards, Assistant Scoutmaster John Houting, members of the Scout committee Val Avery, Gunnar Lundteigen, David Novotny, Charles Bergmann, Frank Schuch and James McCallum, parents of the Scouts and Kiwanians gathered for the event.

At the program that followed, Steve Schuch Senior Patrol leader, served as master of ceremonies.

Scoutmaster Edwards and his assistant, Mr. Houting presented Scout rank awards to Paul Stangis, David Buday, Willie Ranger, Pat Avery, Joe Smith, Bill Horton, Jim Landon, Allen Muma, Mike Paul, Rex Young and George Smith.

Avery presented second class rank to Donald Avery, Mitchell Martin and Kevin Whitley.

Vane Smith, Mr. Schuch and Mr. McCallum presented the following merit badges: Danald Avery, basketry, swimming and First Aid; Scott Barrett, geology; Mitchell Martin, lifesaving, pioneering, Citizenship in the Nation and the World; Jeff Mays, Environmental Science and pioneering; Kevin Whitley, Citizenship in the Community, Soil and Water Conservation; Steve Schuch, 50 mile hiking award; Greg Wojan, Citizenship in the World and in the Nation, reading and the 50 mile hiking award.

Perfect attendance awards were presented to Kevin Whitley and Steve Schuch, one year, and Greg Wojan, three years.

Greg Wajan received the highest award at the program, Star rank, which moved him one rank closer to reaching the top rank in Scouting, that of Eagle Scout. His next advancement will be Life Scout. Ralph Doan made the presentation.

Greg Wojan reported on the Isle Royale hiking trip taken last summer.

Avery presented Camp Greilick awards; Edward Buday, Den Chief cords, and Mr. Houting, year pin awards.

A Color Guard of Scouts presented the colors at the opening of the event.

Schuch, vice president of the Kiwanis Club, presided at the brief Kiwanis meeting.

The Kiwanis Club, Oleson's Food Store and the Village Milkhouse provided the banquet for the Scouts and their guests.

Charlevoix Circuit Court Gives Probation Report

Charlevoix Circuit Court referred 17 cases to the Probation Department for Pre-sentence Investigation last year, according to the department's annual report.

The Court is required by statute to order a Pre-sentence Investigation in any offense where the maximum is a prison sentence.

The investigations are made by the Probation Agent, who gathers all pertinent information about the offense and the individual. This includes such specifics as prior record of the offender, statement of the offender, his personal history, marital history, military record, education, work history, financial situation, health, religion, and habits and recreation.

Following completion of the 17 investigations, 13 individuals were placed on probation, two were sentenced to prison, with a delayed sentence in one case, and one individual was sentenced to jail.

Ten of the 11 felonies and six of the seven misdemeanors investigated were in the category of offenses against property. There were two offenses against people, one for Resisting Arrest and one for Intentionally Aiming a Firearm Without Malice.

Of the two persons sentenced to prison, one was wanted as a probation violator on two charges and the other had been convicted for the first time but had other charges pending in nearby counties and was also wanted outstate.

In making the report, David Bailey, Probation Parole Agent said "Probation is a proven method of supervising problem individuals and helping them cope with their problems. The success rate for probationers has been high, and with proper supervision, should remain high."

"We're talking about one year of a nation's history, when we are so affected by everything that's happened since."

But, Chew gives enthusiastic support to his teachers' and students' work.

As she finished her reading, Anita Hendrickson said her researching has made her think about our history.

"After all these years of freedom, it's a great big celebration—we've been free for 200 years!"

Ironton

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Knudson, Mrs. Edna Anderson and Mrs. Jessie Knudson drove to Grand Rapids recently, and attended the funeral services of the latters brother-in-law Mr. Clare Haff, a former resident now living in Lakeland, Florida. Burial was in the Grandville cemetery. They were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Plum in Grand Rapids. All of the Knudson family attended the services.

The church dining room has been cleaned and painted and new curtains also. We are thanking Rhea Parsons and Joanne Zinn for their services.

Russell Snyder and son of Saginaw spent the weekend installing a window and other improvements on their home on Washington Street.

We have been having a few days of thawing weather a bit late for the usual January thaw but whenever it comes we are losing some of the snow and perhaps making room for some more.

Mrs. Robert Miller has purchased the home of Mrs. Harold Hunt on M66 and will make it her home.

Brian Carson is our new paper delivery boy for the Petoskey News-Review.

In 1881 five hundred and sixty thousand immigrants arrived in the United States and there is no doubt some of them settled in Ironton as the population of our community was five hundred in 1891.

Talk

Alan Stang, author and radio and television commentator, will speak Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Charlevoix High School cafeteria.

His subject will be "Progressive Education: A Danger to Your Child."

Cost of admission to the program is $1.50 in advance or $2.00 at the door.

Hardware Opens

Charlevoix's newest business, Bridge Street Hardware, will open its doors at 403 Bridge Street this Friday, February 20.

David and Bonnie Hand have come from Wyandotte to operate the store.

Hand taught Industrial Arts in the Wyandotte area for ten years. He holds a Bachelor of Science degree from Western Michigan University and a Master's degree from Wayne State in Industrial Education, and has also done post graduate work at Eastern Michigan University.

He says he has always wanted to get into a business of his own and a hardware store fits in well with his background.

Bridge Street Hardware will be a complete functioning hardware store operating under the premise that the Ace low price will generate volume.

Dave and Bonnie invite area residents to stop in for a cup of coffee with them and salesman Harvey Cole.

A Look at Charlevoix's Proposed City Charter

CITY CHARTER COMMISSION

Although the Charlevoix Charter Commission had a mandate to provide the city with a new charter it had yet to determine what alternatives to the present government would best suit the voters of this unique community. One of the ways this was researched was by simply asking people of various pursuits for their feelings on these matters. The following general statements are representative of the results of these interviews and our own observations.

Q. What do you consider beneficial about the Strong Mayor type of government as we now have?

A. "Usually most of the voters know him, sometimes personally." "I know who to go to when something is not done or is wrong." "Even though cities as such, have no direct link with state and federal government, the political party is requisite means of obtaining candidates for public positions." "The city ward represents the smallest unit of government." "The man in charge (mayor) has a vested interest in the city and knows what is best for it." "It (the strong mayor system) is traditional for small towns like ours.

Q. Do you feel that an elected mayor can operate the city by himself?

A. "No, of course not, our present mayor has a city administrator."

Q. Do you consider the fact that our city has an office of City Administrators as being comparable to the Council-manager form of municipal government?

A. "Yes, perhaps, except that the office of administrator is established by ordinance (No. 346) rather than by charter and is repealable by a simple majority vote of the council rather than the vote of the people."

"No, because the mayor can suspend him out of hand and his powers within the parimeters of the operation of the city are secondary to the decisions of the mayor who is by law the chief administrator of the city."

Q. Do you feel that your present aldermen truly represent your interests on the council?

A. "No, although I am sure that most aldermen are well intentioned, usually they run for a council seat on the basis of a single cause that has arisen at the time." "I would prefer to face my ward representatives with their reasons for seeking office, before they are elected. Also since Charlevoix is a small city I would like to be able to cast my vote on candidates from other wards whose interests will also concern me."

Q. Do you feel that the mayors and the councils in the past have worked significantly as a team?

A. "No, there has been too much wrangling which has affected major decisions. I would like to see a mayor-council relationship that at least begun with mutual trust and respect."

Under our present system of elections for the public office of mayor and alderman a person seeking to be placed on the ballot must file with the City Clerk a nominating petition signed by registered voters in his ward. A primary election is then held which is conducted along political party lines. This election determines those who will be placed on the ballot of the general election although write-in candidates are possible. Presently city elections are held every spring. When State and National elections are necessary this results in as many as three voting periods in one calendar year.

The candidate who seeks the office of mayor or alderman will present his nominating petition to persons within his ward with whom he is fairly well acquainted. This is a natural thing to do since there would be little motivation to canvass voters who are or may be antagonistic. By the same token a person seeking the mayor's seat might organize enough personal friends to have his name placed on a ballot and succeed in an unopposed election without ever providing an opportunity for the general public to observe his administrative knowledge and ability at an open meeting or otherwise.

The desire most often aired by the citizens of our community is that "Municipal government should not be removed too far from the voter. It should be kept available to grass root influence as much as possible and should not become purely bureaucratic."

Is it possible that the wards (our smallest unit of government) can be used to greater effect in providing an opportunity for voter and vote-seeker to meet on an informal basis?

Is it possible that our mayoral leadership can be structured to provide a good working relationship between the mayor and the council?

Is it possible to provide a government structure that is at once responsive to the feelings of the community and at the same time as professionally efficient as any corporation with an annual budget of 1.8 million dollars should be?

We think it is possible.

Don Luedke
Charter Commission

IN WAR OR PEACE, WASHINGTON PRAYED TO GOD

George Washington was a great deal more than just a military leader and a great statesman. He was a composite of all the dedicated patriots of his day, whose character traits included a willingness to risk everything they had in order to gain this Nation's freedom, and an absolute reliance upon God's guidance. Washington prayed for it during the darkest hours of battle, and he continued to seek it after he had attained the presidency. Moreover, his writings prove that he was a great believer in religious freedom of choice. Honor his birthday and follow his example by attending the Church of your own choice regularly.

Mardi Gras Comes to Charlevoix this Weekend

Local Candidates Bid For Queen and King

Mardi Gras festivities start in Charlevoix Friday evening!

At that time, winners of the King and Queen contest will be announced in the Market and the new monarchs will lead a parade held down Bridge Street.

Balloting for King and Queen is now taking place in business establishments throughout Charlevoix.

Candidates for King are Robert Muma, Dave Courture, Hal Evans, Al Breeze and Carlo D'Angelo.

Candidates for Queen are Maria Muma, Patti Warner, Pat Begrow, Jo Ann Kravutske, Shirley Sanborn and Lynn D'Angelo.

Following the parade, judging will take place in the beard and mustache growing and mask contests sponsored by LaBlance Insurance and the Grey Gables. There will be contests for both men and women, with women permitted to manufacture their beards and mustaches.

Saturday morning brings judging in the snow sculpture contest sponsored by the Courier and Radio Station WVOY. The sculpture judged best will bring the artist a $50 prize.

Downhill ski races will start at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon at Mt. McSauba. Participants are asked to be there by 12:30 to register. Individual winners in various age groups will receive awards provided by Grey Gables.

Saturday night is Mardi Gras party night. Local restaurants and bars will feature special menus and merriment.

The Lion's Club Winter Outing starting at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Ferry Beach will feature a long list of activities.

There will be snowmobile races, cross country ski races, snow volley ball, snow soft ball and a hockey game between Charlevoix and Petoskey for the area championship if weather permits.

There will also be refreshments, including soup and beef pasties, coffee, hot chocolate and other beverages.

Charlevoix'a Mardi Gras is a northern version of the famous New Orleans celebration which takes place at the end of a long carnival season which begins on January 6, or Twelfth Night.

Mardi Gras is the French term which means "fat Tuesday". The term arose from the custom of parading a fat ox through the streets of Paris on Shrove Tuesday.

Council Rejects Rezoning Bid

Charlevoix City Council overwhelmingly defeated a rezoning request on the city's north side Monday that would have cleared the way for a new credit union building.

In a five to one vote, city councilmen indicated they were opposed to rezoning the corner of Burns and Petoskey Avenue from residential to professional and office use for the Charlevoix Federal Credit Union.

The decision followed nearly an hour-and-a-half of debate by some 15 residents who were concerned that the change would damage the residential character of the neighborhood.

Even though a straw vote indicated the audience of some 20 were split on the issue, mostly only those opposed to the rezoning spoke.

During the initial presentation, Charlevoix architect Hans Wiemer told council the proposed building would be designed to maintain the residential integrity of the area.

The Charlevoix architect said every attempt would be made to save all existing trees.

Despite reassurances from Wiemer, attorney Thomas Pointner said he opposed the application because of a long history residential use in the area.

Pointner said his opposition had no hearing on either the architect or the credit union.

The local attorney said both the city and local residents had previously indicated the property should remain in residential use after requests to rezone parcels along Petoskey Avenue had been made.

Pointner said he was also concerned about additional spot zoning requests, should the credit union request be granted.

Sue Erber, a city councilman-elect, said she talked to people in the area who could not see why the rezoning was necessary.

Others, like Bill Graves, said they would rather see the credit union building than a gas station on the property.

"I think a real nice building like this is going to be an asset to our community," added Dale Boss, a Charlevoix businessman.

Boss said he was concerned that the city was driving all the business out of Charlevoix and into the neighboring township because there was no other place to go.

"I think its down right silly if we chase all the business into the township," he continued.

Lasater Announces Candidacy for Sheriff

A 38-year-old Eveline Township resident has become the first person to officially announce his intentions to run for Charlevoix County Sheriff.

George Lasater, District Court probation officer for Charlevoix and Emmet Counties, is expected to run against Incumbent Sheriff Philo Sumner in the August primary.

Lasater said he decided to run for the four-year term after a number of county residents asked him to seek the position.

The county probation officer set up his department six years ago under then District Court Judge Wayne Richard Smith. In addition to being a probation officer, Lasater has served as a part-time deputy sheriff for six years.

Previous to working for the county, he had been a social worker for the Charlevoix Intermediate School District and a part-time clinical therapist for the Petoskey Area Mental Health Clinic.

When Lasater first moved to Charlevoix County 12 years ago, he worked as a elementary teacher-principal for the Boyne City school system.

Lasater holds a bachelors of science degree in elementary education from Arkansas State University and has nearly completed an associate's degree in criminal justice from North Central Michigan College.

He and his wife, Margaret, have three children attending elementary school in the Twin Valley school system.

The Charlevoix County resident says his strongest attributes are the six years experience he has had working in the criminal justice program as a probation officer, as well as a part-time deputy sheriff.

If elected, Lasater says he would strive to gain community respect of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department and create an understanding that when the Sheriff's office is called for assistance, something will be done.

He said an attempt would also be made to increase the cooperation between the Sheriff's Department and other area law enforcement agencies.

Internally, Lasater said he is interested in professionalizing the Sheriff's department by creating a rank system, certifying all officers and establishing a Sheriff's auxiliary.

Lasater said he was also interested in creating a substantion to better serve the Walloon Lake area and east end of the County. In addition, he indicated he would like to improve the law enforcement facilities on Beaver Island.

While realizing the primary purpose of a jail is to punish convicted criminals, Lasater said he would like intensify present jail rehabilitation programs.

Lasater said he was particularly interested in getting to the first time offenders, who

State Tax Commission Increases County Values

By PEG OHLE

Despite a protest registered by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, the State Tax Commission has added seven percent to the 1975 value of residential property in Charlevoix County.

Last month, the Commissioners forwarded to the Tax Commission the study made by the County Equalization Department showing the value of county residential property to be $207,245,650.

The study was accompanied by a resolution passed by the Board of Commissioners stating, "We strongly protest any increase over the above our equalization studies that the State Tax Commission might plan to increase our County Equalized Value."

The Board of Commissioners also said they were submitting the study under compulsion and "do not have any assurance in any way that the State Tax Commission will perform good, fair and equitable state equalization in 1976, nor do we have any assurance that the legislature will see fit to allow the State Tax Commission to perform the duties required by law to budgeting them an amount of monies to perform the necessary requirements to insure equitable equalization throughout the counties in the State of Michigan."

The Board of Commissioners further stated they feel the State Tax Commission is not complying with the Constitution and the laws governing state equalization because they allow some counties not to submit studies, thereby allowing those counties to circumvent the equalization process and the law and creating inequities between school districts and nullifying the intent of the Constitution to guarantee uniformity of taxation.

The seven percent increase in evaluation amounting to $14,507,197, by the state brings the County residential evaluation to $221,752,847.

Since taxes are levied on the basis of fifty percent of the State Equalized Value of any piece of property multiplied by a designated mill rate, the new evaluation would result in higher taxes within the state unless a lower mill rate is established next year.

Clyde Cunningham, Chairman of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, said the county can't do anything about the increased valuation until equalization time in April.

"I think the county will protest the increase," he said.

Cunningham also said that the State Tax Commission raised the county valuation two years ago.

Charlevoix Will Play Rogers City

The Charlevoix Rayders will enter the Class C District Basketball Tournament at Rogers City on Monday, March 1, when they clash with the Rogers City Hurona.

On Tuesday, Boyne City will take on Onaway at 7:30 p.m. and on Wednesday, the East Jordan Red Devils who drew a first round bye, will meet the winner of the Charlevoix-Rogers City game at 7:30 p.m.

The District finals will be played at 7:30 p.m. Friday March 5.

Average Income

I am answering the person who wrote in to the Hot Line about the average income in Charlevoix. The person must not know how the average income would be found by using mathematics and statistics.

First, someone must have compiled information on a number of residents; taking an equal number from low income, middle income, and high income families. After the data was collected, a table would be made. The total of the incomes would be divided by the total number of families studied. The ending result would be the average income.

Charlevoix is not a poor little town. Think of how many professional people there are in Charlevoix. Most of these people are lawyers, doctors, businessmen, etc. and more of this type of people are moving up there from the cities all the time. In comparison to larger cities, there really are no slums and the middle income people far outweight the poor.

Incidentally, the average income in the United States for 1972 was $11,100 a year. About 12 percent of all families were classified as poor with incomes $4,275 or less for a family of four. Three-fifths of all families had incomes between $5,600 and $19,800. But, the 20 percent with higher incomes received 40 percent of the nation's total. Half got more than $11,100, half less.

I might add that I am not in the high income bracket. I am in a large metropolitan area, bringing home only $105.00 a week. It also doesn't seem possible to me that $11,100 can be the national average. But, it is when computed mathematically.

Second Ward

It is the belief of many in the second ward that Robert Timms owes the second ward an apology. The citizens of the second ward supported him in his bid for alderman and without any notice whatsoever, he defaulted on his obligation as a representative of the people when he allowed last year's defeated candidate, Jeannine Wallace to seek the office without opposition. The whole deal has all the marks of a rip-off of the second ward, which none admire and all deplore.

Zip Code

I've just received mail today that was delayed by one week due to the fact that the party who mailed it from Charlevoix did not put on the zip code. Please, let us remember to use zip codes even when mailing within the city to save undue delay.

Smith Named on Ballot

Harold Smith, a Charlevoix Democrat, will appear on the city's April ballot as a second ward contender, according to City Clerk Lyle King.

King said the Charlevoix County Board of Canvassers made the determination last week after Smith's name was found on eight absentee ballots that were missed in last week's primary election.

Smith had received four write-in votes, besides the absentee ballots.

The Charlevoix insurance agent will now be challenging former city councilwoman Jeannine Wallace in the April city election.

WEATHER

High Temperatures last week were slightly above the freezing mark and low temperatures slightly below. Daytime melting and nighttime freezing resulted in slushy and icy conditions.

Dove Makes Northern Debute

By KEN WINTER

Charlevoix High School senior Heidi Dove sat squarely behind a library table last week.

Several of those who knew her stopped at the table to see what was going on. Heidi isn't the type who spends her time in the library–she's too busy.

The tall, curly brown-haired girl was being interviewed about her new singing career.

It's hard to imagine that the same soft-spoken girl only a week ago appeared before a standing-room-only crowd at Petoskey's Holiday Inn to sing in the Community Cabaret.

Or that she's the same person who quietly sings and strums her guitar for hundreds of weekend skiers at Boyne Mountain's Snowflake Lounge.

All it takes is a spot light, and within minutes the 17-year-old girl can transform a noisy, smoke-filled bar into a serene, dream-like, atmosphere.

Heidi says she has no magic formula to capture her audiences. She just tries to sing with meaning.

"I try to get into my songs," she said while clasping her high school psychology book on the table in front of her.

"The words and melodies mean a lot."

Perhaps simplicity is the key to her success. When she performs, she foregoes the long narrations and simply introduces her songs to her audience.

And you'll usually find her entertaining with contemporary folk music, accompanied by her own guitar playing. Neither of the two are particularly new to her.

She first learned to play the guitar in junior high, while her older sister was taking formal lessons, and found it easy to learn chords. Then she would sing for three or four friends.

"Then I got asked to sing at weddings," she continued.

Last spring, Heidi made her first public debut singing to those eating at the Village Inn in Charlevoix.

"While people munched on their food, I sat under the fish tank and sang," she said.

"Even though the pay was low, I was getting a lot of exposure."

Heidi says her big break came last fall when a high school English teacher asked her to perform for a teacher's conference at Boyne Mountain.

Apparently one of the resort managers heard her play and asked if she might be available to play during the ski season. Last December, the manager called her and now she plays weekends during band breaks at the Mountain.

Besides her weekend performances at the Mountain, Heidi has played for the newly-organized Community Cabaret that has been held on Sunday nights at the Harbour Inn and Holiday Inn.

Heidi says she likes playing because it gives her a chance to meet new people.

"I like to sing and play, especially alone to myself," she continued.

"It also makes me feel good if people say they appreciate what I'm doing."

Oddly enough, Heidi doesn't read music. She learns new songs by buying record albums and guitar books with the chords in them for the songs she hears on the record.

"I only practice when I get new songs," she continued.

"The reason is that I don't have any time."

Heidi is involved in no less than a dozen activities in school, ranging from playing on the girls' basketball and volleyball teams to serving on the school's student council and Campus Life program.

After graduating this spring, Heidi plans to go to Central Michigan University and major in either music or physical education.

She thinks she might want to become a professional entertainer. Heidi says she is interested in writing and singing Christian music that could be used in the church.

She's already performed in several special music programs in her church, The Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix.

THE GIERLACHS of Boyne City were another singing act that played to a standing room only crowd at Petoskey's Holiday Inn.

HEIDI DOVE performed last week at the Community Cabaret held in Petoskey.

Approximately 50 Charlevoix Cub Scouts and members of their families and friends gathered for the annual Blue and Gold dinner last week at the K-5 school.

V.D. Continues to Rise in Charlevoix

Venereal disease is increasing in Northern Michigan.

District 3 Health Department reports that in the four counties it covers, Charlevoix, Emmet, Antrim and Otsego, there has been a marked upturn in the number of cases of syphilis and gonorrhea during the last year.

There were 70 cases of venereal disease in the two-year period 1973 and 1974, but in 1975 alone the number reached 65.

The Health Department further reports that because of the nature of the disease, it knows the number of unreported or undetected incidences of the disease greatly exceeds that number.

To help stem this alarming situation, the Health Department is asking the help of all school systems in the area in teaching venereal disease education.

Public law states that public school of the state should teach the principal modes by which each of the communicable diseases are spread and the best methods for the restriction and prevention of such disease. Syphilis, gonorrhea and other venereal diseases are defined as dangerous communicable diseases.

Public law also permits but not mandate that sex education be taught in the public schools.

The Health Department is offering Health Education and Personal Health Programs to the schools to assist them in developing education programs in this area.

"The only solution to the venereal disease is through education," says Gerry Chase of the Health Department.

Ensemble Performs March 4

The Interlochen Arts Academy Dance Ensemble, sponsored by the Crooked Tree Arts Council, will perform Thursday, March 4, at the Petoskey High School at 8 p.m.

The Dance Ensemble of 20 students will present a program of modern dance and ballet.

The modern dances are choreographed by Suzanne Burns, IAA dance instructor and are "Dances" to music of J. S. Bach, and "Loss," a setting of the Don Ellis work. Lawrence Jones, who teaches both modern dance and ballet, has two choreographies – "Divertisement from The Fantastic Toy-Shop", set to music of Rossini-Respighi, and "Romanza II" with music by Arensky.

Three ballet numbers of Helen Earl, department head and ballet instructor, are "Charades" – music by Ibert, "Shadows," a setting of "Music for a Theme by Shelley," by Samuel Barber, and "Shpielkehs," danced to Riegger's "Dance Rythms."

Tickets for the program are available at Reis Gallery in Charlevoix.

Middle School Plans Concert

The Charlevoix Middle School Music Department will present its annual winter concert on Thursday, February 26 according to Steven Stargardt and Evelyn Peters, co-directors of the department.

The event will be held at the Middle School gymnasium at 7:30 p.m. and will be presented without charge.

Featured in the concert will be the seventh and eighth grade bands appearing under the direction of Miss Peters playing a program of familiar band selections.

The seventh and eighth grade chorus and the Middle School Jazz band will appear under the baton of Mr. Stargardt and will mark the first public appearance of the vocal group since the full-time vocal program was initiated in September. The choral group will also appear with the Jazz Band.

The public is invited to attend this concert, the first offered by the Middle School this year.

Johnny Can't Read

So Johnny can't read?

Johnny couldn't read as well as he ought to as far back as 1953. At that time, Wayne State University was conducting remedial reading classes for entering freshmen.

In the intervening 23 years this deplorable situation has become both a national disgrace and a disaster.

According to a recent article in the Detroit Free Press, nearly 4,000 Michigan State University freshmen will receive credit toward a college degree for doing high school work in English and mathematics.

They are among 46.1 percent of this year's MSU freshman class who failed high-school-level proficiency tests in the subjects and are taking remedial courses for credit.

The article says that many professors oppose this practice because it cheapens the college degree and, in the long run, is more harmful than beneficial to the student.

We agree. If a college student cannot read or perform simple addition, the time he has spent in school, including college, has been wasted. These are the two basic skills he must have if he is to survive in an increasingly complex world.

A college diploma does not give one a magic entry to the world's riches. And neither the colleges, high schools nor elementary schools are doing students a favor by promoting them when they cannot read, write or perform simple addition.

These are the appalling figures compiled by Michigan State University's research department from tests taken by entering freshmen:

–11.5 percent are such strangers to basic arithmetic that they probably cannot figure the unit price of canned goods in a supermarket.

–11.1 percent scored so low on the English test that they probably cannot write an understandable business letter.

–42.4 percent scored so low on the mathematics test that they cannot perform college math.

These deficiences cross all class lines. The students come from wealthy suburban schools as well as the poorest sections of Michigan cities. This would seem to indicate something is seriously wrong with the teaching profession itself.

In our view, this situation will never improve until we get back to the basics. They happen to be reading, writing and arithmetic.

If the present school system drilled these items into Junior's little skull, instead of wasting its time and his by teaching him to be a better and more well-adjusted person, he probably would emerge from the system a better and more well-adjusted person.

In the main, our schools are pleasant and functional structures. The teachers are supposedly better educated, and are certainly better compensated, than their predecessors. But the product is a disaster.

Any school system which, at incredible cost, produces a crop of semi-literates is a failure.

A lot of people worry about whether or not sex education should be taught in the lower grades. We believe they could more appropriately direct their concern toward the teaching of the three R's.

There are some things in this life one should learn for one's self. We place sex in this category. While a happy sex life is undoubtedly something to be eminently desired, one is likely to achieve it only in a milieu of poverty if one has not learned to read, write, and perform at least simple arithmetic. Those who have not mastered these functions certainly will not advance in the real world–the world of commerce and industry.

The purpose of education is–or ought to be–to prepare a child for his journey through life. When we fail to teach him the fundamentals of learning, we have contributed to his eventual failure as a member of society.

In a different context, New York Times writer Patrick Buchanan recently observed:

"We live at a time when justice and the law prevent the execution of the rapist and allow the destruction of the unborn child. And it should be the other way around."

It should indeed.

A general attitude of permissiveness has permeated all areas of our society–the criminal justice system, the arts and communications media, and, above all, the educational system.

Our social institutions are long overdue for a drastic overhaul. The obvious place to start is in the educational system.

It's later than you think and it's up to us.

Friske Questions Ruppe

Congressman Phil Ruppe
House Office Building
Washington, D.C. 21515

Re: H.R. 10481 Intergovernmental Emergency Assistance Act to supply $2.3 billion of taxpayer's money to New York City.

Dear Congressman Ruppe:

According to Congressional Record - House H11649 of December 2, 1975, you voted in support of the above mentioned bill.

Congressman Michel of Illinois said to you: "It is unjust, unreasonable, and unrealistic to tax garbage collectors in Peoria, who make a starting salary of $6,240 in order to pay the garbage collectors of New York their average salary of $15,924."

According to a column by Victor Riesel on November 5, 1975, New York City's sanitation workers whose duties include garbage collection, have a contract which gives them a basic $15,000 yearly plus some $7,500 a year in fringe benefits, and a one month vacation after one year of seniority. Plus, as Congressman Steven Symms pointed out on October 31, 1975, a retirement program allowing for as much as $18,000 annually retired sanitation workers.

Mr. Ruppe, I ask you how many of your constituents in the 11th congressional district receive these kind of wages?

President Ford said: "Why, they (the taxpayers of America) ask, should they support advantage for New York that they have not been able to afford for their own communities?"

Laws on the books of New York say that the city shall not operate at a deficit, yet they are already $12 billion in debt; giving more free services, increased welfare, public housing, and free college tuition until it became a national scandal. According to a letter I have before me, one congressman from New York even publicly admitted to you that these actions border on fraud. New York City has already received $8.5 billion in direct federal outlay in fiscal 1975. This $2.3 billion is just the beginning, for there is no doubt that New York will soon be back demanding more of American taxpayer's money.

You have helped to set a dangerous precedent. If New York City finds that they can overspend and undertax and not face the financial consequences, what will keep every other city or state in the nation from going on a wild and irresponsible spending spree, and then call for the federal government–the taxpayers–to provide the money to pay the bill?

Mr. Congressman, why did you vote for this huge precedent setting stride toward making cities and states the wards of the Federal Government? Why, Mr. Ruppe, do you support such moves away from our free Republic, and toward an all-powerful Big Brother government in Washington?

Sincerely,
Richard Friske
one of your overtaxed, worried constituents

Appreciates Support

Gentlemen:

Once again it is that time when we are confronted with the fact that another year has slipped beneath our feet. Where did it go?

Some of the days of 1975 were dark indeed at Traverse City State Hospital, but we still hold out tremendous hope that with some adjustments this institution will remain a source of pride and accomplishment in the community.

As we reflect upon the months just past, we realize the great value of the media to this institution. The purpose of this letter, therefore, is to express to you the sincerest appreciation of the hospital staff and this particular department for the fine cooperation and all the courtesies you have extended to us during this past year. It is extremely important that we constantly disseminate information regarding the massive and rapid changes which are taking place here. This could not be accomplished without your help.

Thanks again for your interest in us, and we hope that this will be another year of outstanding relationships. May we extend to you, your associates and families, a most satisfying and fruitful 1976.

Very sincerely yours,

Ohmer J. Curtiss, Director
Community Relations Department
Traverse City State Hospital

What Is Richard Nixon Doing in Red China?

The big question during the last week in February of America's Bicentennial year is this:

What in the devil is Richard Nixon doing in Red China?

Some of the possible answers are intriguing:

–He is being interviewed as a possible successor to the late Chou En Lai.

–He needs a new battery for the digital wristwatch he picked up in Peking four years ago.

–Pat needs a new battery for the digital wristwatch she picked up in Peking four years ago.

–The trip was arranged by Chairman Mao at the request of Hubert Horatio Humphrey to embarrass President Ford.

–The trip was arranged by Chairman Mao at the request of Ronald Reagan to embarrass Chairman Mao.

–Some people will travel any distance for a good Chinese meal.

Whatever the reason, the trip could be a body blow to Nixon's probation officer, Jerry Ford, who is attempting to convince the electorate in New Hampshire and elsewhere that the deceit and avarice that marked the GOP under the heavy hand of Richard Nixon have been relegated to the history books.

Sadly, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger revealed in Brasilia over the weekend that the Ford Administration certainly intends to "debrief" the former president when he returns home in order to learn as much as possible about the new Chinese leadership.

Kissinger, of course, is full of wet hay and canal water.

Unless memory fails me completely, President Ford himself paid a visit to Red China just before Christmas, and, even with the death of Chou En Lai in the interim, it is unlikely that the vie from Peking has changed markedly so short a time.

Tu even consider turning to th former discredited president for i formation about China–mu less advice on deali with the Chinese–is the darkest blot Ford's record as President in my boo

Even the most hard-nosed partisa are willing to concede today that th Nixon pardon was simply a sign of M Ford's charity toward his ill-starre predecessor. But it will be anothe matter entirely if Mr. Ford attempts t mitigate Nixon's crimes by casting hi in the role of ambassador witho portfolio whenever he elects to trav abroad.

The Nixon trip not only is damagin to the Ford administration but als serves to reduce the stature of R China in the eyes of the world. What i Chairman Mao thinking of to jeopardiz his standing among statesmen–an China's standing among nations–b entertaining at public expense one o the most celebrated charlatans o modern times?

There is more to the Nixon trip than meets the eye, my friends. Nixon was and is a dangerous and desperate man and you can be sure he is up to no good in Red China.

Why did he go?

I don't even pretend to know. But I do know that Nixon lusts for power as other men yearn for goodwill, love an esteem. The China trip simply has to be a step toward regaining some of the power he lost when Watergate evicted him from the White House.

How will Nixon benefit from the trip?

Again, I just don't know. But some of the possibilities are so horrible I don't even want to think about them.

Erma Bombeck

The disease called Guinnessitis is with us.

Somewhere in this world it has attached itself to a four-man team of pasta lovers trying to consume more than 100 yards of spaghetti in less than 42 seconds.

Somewhere it has struck a man trying to walk more than 8,099 miles in 18 months–backwards.

Somewhere are afflicted twins trying to tip the scales collectively at more than 1300 pounds.

As one of the authors of the Guinness Book of Records pointed out, this publication has become the poor man's marble statue–one of the few places where anyone can become immortal by being the biggest, best, fastest, slowest, tallest, least, last, oldest, or youngest.

My kids haven't been so intrigued with a book since they found "Catcher in the Rye" hidden in the linen closet under the beach towels the year they went to camp.

The other day I heard them talking.

"Hey, we ought to get Mom in the Guinness Book of Records."

"What has she done longer than anyone else?"

"She's been reading 'How To Be Your Own Best Friend' for two years now."

"That's not too long."

"For a book with only 56 pages?"

"I know. She's had diapers in presoak longer than any other woman. Anybody beat 15 years?"

"Is there anything in there for a refrigerator holding the most leftovers?"

"Hey," said one of the swifties, "here's one that's perfect. A Russian woman produced 69 children. That would add up to about 2 a year."

"Forget it," said another one, "Mom's too conservative. Besides, she's starting too late."

"Not necessarily," said another one flipping through the pages. "It says here the oldest mother gave birth at 57 years, 129 days."

On the other side of the door, I swayed dizzily and leaned against the wall for support. Pictures began to materialize before my eyes–swallowing a diaper pin at 65, having my baby push me around in a stroller at the zoo, napping during the delivery, receiving a pacemaker for Mother's Day, fighting the kid for the baby food, having my own Cub Scout pack adopt me for Christmas, having Captain Kangaroo turn ME on, spanking the baby for coloring on my social security check.

"I got a better one," said one of the kids. "Let's see who has cried longer than 23 years without stopping."

Swainson Can't Be Harked

What I like about TV, as opposed to real life, is something I call harking. John Swainson is real life, and there is no harking him.

This lovely doll on TV was slowly dying of a brain tumor and her doctor couldn't save her, no matter how many times he climbed into her bed. It was sad, and my daughter looked worried.

Fortunately, the producer had cast Elizabeth Montgomery as the dying doll. So there was really nothing to fret about.

"Don't worry," I said, "if she wants to live, all she has to do is twitch her nose."

Everyone can remember all those years when Miss Montgomery was Samantha the Witch. No trouble was too big for her, including death. If she wanted to live forever, all she had to do was twitch her nose. Which she did, and she still lives today, in marvelous reruns made when skirts were much shorter. It is only right that legs like that should never die.

It makes my daughter angry when I prove the fantasy of TV land by harking. As in the powerful dramatic play the other night, where Edward Asner disappeared. "Do you think he is dead!" she asked.

"No," I answered, "I think he moved to Minneapolis to run the TV newsroom where Mary Tyler Moore works."

"I hate you when you hark," she said.

(Some readers might be confused at my use here of the word "hark." You probably think I should say "hark back." But that is redundant. Did you ever hark forward?)

So what has this TV nonsense got to do with John Swainson, Michigan's former war hero, governor and state supreme court justice?

Well I grew up in the same town as Swainson. In fact, one of my few claims to fame is I once beat him in a tennis tournament. And this was before he lost his legs in World War 2, honest.

I still remember well the evening I learned about Swainson's terrible wounds. I was a year younger and home on furlough, about to go overseas. John Swainson had been a high school football star and was one of the best known young men in town. Many people cried at the loss of his legs, including me. To be honest, my tears were partly for what had happened to him, and partly for what might happen to me.

It was only a year or so later that John Swainson was back home, jitterbugging on artificial legs. It was a grand thing to watch him dance that way. He was a real man and he went on to prove it, ultimately winning the highest office in the state. We were all so proud of him.

But today John Swainson stands convicted of perjury. A petty crook accused him of accepting a bribe but Swainson was cleared of this charge. He wasn't cleared of lying to a grand jury. The system of justice which he supported all his career declared Swainson guilty.

His penalty is a joke, worthy of a Watergate crook. Swainson has been sentenced to sort of a Holiday Inn, free to leave during the day and to go home weekends. And it will be a long time before he serves even that marshmallow, if ever, thanks to the appeal process.

I don't like 2 brands of justice, one for the big shot and another for Joe Slob, even when the big shot is my lifelong hero. I wish I could hark Swainson back to those days when he made us all so proud.

But life is real. And that's why I like TV, where a man can hark, and laugh, instead of cry.

GRUBAUGH: I served on the City Council for two three-year terms. I was on the board of directors of the Charlevoix Hospital for nine years, secretary-treasurer for four years and president for two years. I was also a member of the Charlevoix United Fund for four years, secretary for two years and vice-president one year. I have served on other committees around town, too.

GRUBAUGH: Yes, they are all marked with the company name and "Charlevoix, Michigan" on the back.

COURIER: Do you have plants anywhere besides Charlevoix?

GRUBAUGH: Yes, we have another plant in Vernon, California.

COURIER: When was Freedman Artcraft founded and when did it come to Charlevoix?

GRUBAUGH: It was founded by the late Gurdon L. Freedman and Walter E. Burnham in 1937 in Detroit as the Freedman-Burnham Engineering Company. They made a new type of propeller for light aircraft. The company later moved to Cincinnati. During World War II they made plastic impregnated wood propeller blades for the BT-13 Air Force trainers. After the war they decided to go into the self-service store fixture business. They moved to Charlevoix in June, 1946, reorganizing as the Freedman Artcraft Engineering Corporation. It was the first industrial plant in Charlevoix. At first they used several existing buildings but in late 1946 construction was begun on the company's first building of 16,000 square feet. The plant has been expanded over a period of time to its present size.

COURIER: Who owns Freedman Artcraft now?

GRUBAUGH: In October, 1972 it became a wholly owned and autonomous subsidiary of Rust Craft Greeting Cards, Inc. of Dedham, Massachusetts. Rust Craft is a leader in the field of communications, greeting cards and allied products and has long been a Freedman Artcraft customer. Being a part of this large organization gives us considerable financial strength.

COURIER: Who are some of your larger customers?

GRUBAUGH: Besides Rust Craft we have Gibson Buzza in CharmCraft in the greeting card line, Sears Roebuck and Company, Kresge, K-Mart, Handleman Company and several record and tape distributors.

COURIER: How do you view the economic situation?

GRUBAUGH: We have noted a definite improvement in the last three weeks. We always lag behind other businesses either in a recession or improved economy.

The man or woman or child enjoys much who is thankful for little. A grateful mind is both great and happy mind.

Sheila, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Farrell is attending classes at Mt. Pleasant. She is completing her last three months of school there.

Fred Vail and Stanley Drenth of Grand Rapids were weekend visitors with their porents, the Ted Volls and the Peter Jake Drenths.

A new daughter and sister has arrived to make her home with Mr. and Mrs. Cornell Alofs and son Brian. Her name is Rachel Lynn.

Guess what fortunate dog has a heated dog house? We understand Maynord Alward's dog is so privileged.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerrit G. Drenth recently visited relatives in Chicago.

Mrs. Robert Lemond is having tests for continued headaches at the Manson Hospital at Traverse City.

The Jr. Choir of the Ebenezer Christion School recently sang at the evening service of the East Jordon Assembly of God Church.

Mr. and Mrs. William Boss attended the baptismal services at the Atwood Reformed of their granddaughter Melissa Joy Drenzy, daughter of their daughter Cindy & husband.

Mr. and Mrs. Burr Abrahamson and son Keith of Mt. Pleasant and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Abrahamson of Kalkaska were weekend guests of their mother and grandmother, Clara Rubingh.

Malnutrition Michigan's Bicentennial Disgrace? That's what Chairman Raymond W. Hood of the House Committee on Public Health says. According to a recent report released by that Committee, 1.5 million residents of Michigan are at a nutritional risk level.

Proper eating is absolutely essential if one is going to maintain good health. A balance diet can be assured with proper food preparation and storage as well as including the essential food groups each day.

The question is sometimes asked if nutrients in fruits and vegetables are concentrated in peelings or just under the surface. The answer is no. Nutrients in a fruit and vegetable are not distributed uniformly throughout the stems, leaves or fruit. Neither are they always found in larger amounts in any particular location. The distribution differs from commodity to commodity and nutrient to nutrient.

A good example is the potato. The nutrients go all the way to and into the skin, but there is no such concentration just under the skin. Recent research has shown there is less ascorbic acid (Vitamin C) in the skin of raw potatoes. In baked potatoes, the concentration of ascorbic acid was the greatest in the control portion. Things are different with carrots. The concentration of carotenoids (vitamin A) is all though from crown to tip. So the moral of the story is eat all edible portions of any fruit or vegetable because the nutrients are there somewhere.

To assure your family a balanced diet plan meals involving fruits and vegetables, dairy products, meat products, and bread and cereal every day. Try to include something of each group in every meal.

Irish Boat Shops Gear Up for Spring

Irish Boat Shop of Harbor Springs and Charlevoix is undergoing considerable expansion for the upcoming boating season.

This expansion includes a new office and store building including a new second floor sail loft at Harbor Springs; new docks at Charlevoix for up to 24 boats in the 18 to 25 foot size; acquisition of a 40 foot steelhulled salvage and towing tug; expansion of the sailboat charter service plus addition of several new boat franchises.

"Our business which has been serving yachtsmen in Northwestern Lower Michigan for some 17 years has simply outgrown our original office building and old unheated store structure," David Irish said of the Harbor Springs building project.

The larger office space will allow for a more fully stocked ship's store and the second floor sail loft being constructed will provide for more efficient sail repair service at the yard, Irish said.

Walt Ward, manager of the Charlevoix Great Lakes sailboat bareboat charter service, predicted a substantial increase based on inquiries already received. There are 11 boats based at Charlevoix, five at Harbor Springs ranging in size from 22 to 38 feet. A brochure outlining charter specs and rates is available from the Irish Boat Shop (Box 236 Stover-rd., Charlevoix).

Rod Stebbins reports that a winter project at Charlevoix is a new series of floating docks along the inside of the southeast breakwater to replace older units. This will provide docking for 24 boats in the 18 to 25 foot class.

Cliff Biddick, operations manager at the Charlevoix yard, is now converting a 40 foot steel-hulled vessel to a salvage-towing tug. It will have equipment for the retrieval and salvage of boats which run aground or encounter other difficulties requiring such assistance.

New franchises added included Islander Yachts of Irvine, Calif., fiberglass auxiliary sailboats of 28, 30, 36 and 41 foot size—and they will soon add a new 32 foot cruiser-racer.

Charlevoix Frosh Down Petoskey

The Charlevoix freshmen, trailing as much as 14 points during their game at Petoskey Thursday night, pulled the victory out late in the game by a score of 73-72.

Coach Roger Gowell said his players ran into foul trouble early in the game with four starting being tagged with three fouls each at halftime. Before the final horn he had lost three via the foul route.

However, bench strength saved the day as Charlevoix overcame a 16-10 first quarter and 39-31 halftime deficits to go ahead 55-54 at the three quarter mark. From then on it was touch and go all the way before the young Rayders came through in the final seconds for the win.

Pat Schmidt paced the game with 29 points with Barney Way adding 20.

Ken Coffey had 25 points, Bourrie 15, Swenor 13 and Cosens 10 fur the Northmen.

To those who voted for me in the recent election my most sincere thanks.

I will do my best to serve all of the wonderful people of Charlevoix.

In working with the rehabilitation program, Lasater said he would like to use more of the community resources, such as the Petoskey Mental Health Clinic, with the program.

"Many of these services would not cost the taxpayers a penny," Lasater continued. "They are services that are already available.

Lasater says he sees the role of Sheriff as not only being involved with the administrative work of managing public funds allocated to the department, but becoming involved with the community.

He says it is important to know the pulse of the community.

Council

Jeannine Wallace said she hated to see any decisions made until the council has a chance to review Charlevoix's new proposed zoning ordinance next month.

Tom Ouke, another Charlevoix businessman, told council that both previous city councils, planning commissions and local residents have indicated Petoskey Avenue should remain residential.

"I suggest that this be voted down because it is spot zoning," Ouke continued.

However, Bill Supernaw questioned both Ouke and others over the harm the credit union would do to the neighborhood.

The only Councilman to support the rezoning was Ralph McRae, who indicated the credit union would not damage the residential area.

IN WAR OR PEACE, WASHINGTON PRAYED TO GOD

George Washington was a great deal more than just a military leader and a great statesman. He was a composite of all the dedicated patriots of his day, whose character traits included a willingness to risk everything they had in order to gain this Nation's freedom, and an absolute reliance upon God's guidance. Washington prayed for it during the darkest hours of battle, and he continued to seek it after he had attained the presidency. Moreover, his writings prove that he was a great believer in religious freedom of choice. Honor his birthday and follow his example by attending the Church of your own choice regularly.

Citizen Information Service

Tax Petitions Have 70% of Needed Signatures

Citizen's Information Service spokesman Bill Peters announced last Friday that over 70 percent of the petitions needed to put the "tax limitation act" on the ballot November 2 are completed.

It is expected that the petition drive will be completed by March 1.

Peters said the C.I.S. has received calls from several other county tax groups, soliciting aid in preparing their petitions for a similar drive.

"We will assist them in all ways with no charge for service," he added.

According to Peters the provisions of the Petition would cut property taxes over one-half million dollars in Charlevoix County.

Further explaining the petition, he said, "We gave the townships a half mill so when we cut certain county department the townships will have money to assume those departments' work at a much lower cost.

"C.I.S plans on some severe cuts, if not total abolition of several county department. For example, when the limitation act is passed, the allocation board is automatically abolished. That's close to three mills saving right there.

"There are about half the county commissioners that are performing on behalf of the people so all of us would be better off without this type of leadership.

"We haven't really researched all the legal procedures, but we do know that the population of Charlevoix County allows for from five to 15 commissioners. An initiative petition to the apportionment commission to re-district the county commissioners from 15 to seven would save the county over $25,000 and eliminate eight commissioners."

Charlevoix Considers Zoning Ordinance

Charlevoix city fathers officially unveil their new guidelines for community growth and development in two weeks when they hold a public hearing on a new proposed zoning ordinance.

The hearing, which is set for Monday, March 22, at 8 p.m. in city hall, is expected to draw a host of residents concerned about the new ordinance.

Both the new proposed new zoning map and ordinance are available for inspection at city hall.

City officials say the hearing testimony will be used by city council to determine whether or not the new ordinance should be adopted to supercede the present city ordinance that was enacted in 1945.

Those supporting the new ordinance claim it picks up where the old ordinance leaves off and deals with problems that weren't confronting Charlevox nearly thirty years ago.

Unlike zoning ordinances established in all of Charlevoix's 15 townships and being considered in Boyne City and East Jordan, planning experts argue that Charlevoix's present ordinance employs an old fashion pyramidal zoning.

Under the modern conception of zoning, each zone is designed for a specific purpose instead plowing a higher zone classification, such as residential, be allowed in lower classification districts.

The new proposed zoning ordinance is a culmination of an earlier ordinance written by Williams and Works of Grand Rapids and later updated by the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission and Charlevoix City Council.

The new proposed ordinance calls for single family residential use with the north side of Charlevoix having larger plotted lots of record.

In the new proposed single family district, there are no provisions for duplex or triplex dwellings. Officials argue that higher density housing is desirable with single family housing.

Under the commercial zoned district, residents will find no provision for service stations because of those working on the new ordinance felt Charlevoix didn't need any more.

Along Charlevoix's Pine River Channel, a completely new zoned district, called Planned Unit Development (PUD) is being proposed. PUD allows for both mixed residential and professional office use.

Under the PUD district, new development would be required to go under close scrutiny with assurances that the development would not detract from the character of the area.

Those supporting the PUD concept this zoned district would preserve the historical characteristics of both Pine River Channel and the south side of Round Lake, where the district is also being proposed.

Another section of the proposed ordinance, calls for Petoskey Avenue to remain residential, with the exceptions of businesses already established.

The new ordinance also establishes a mobile home district, that will confine trailers to established parks.

Finally, residents will notice another new zoned district called "scenic reserve" which is evidenced along the lake shore and required to be consistent with lakeshore uses.

The new ordinance also establishes a planning commission since the commission shared by both Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township was disbanded earlier this year.

Police Question Kidnaping

GRAND RAPIDS – State Police here are questioning allegations of a 22-year-old resident claiming she was kidnapped in front of her Charlevoix home Sunday and was driven south to the Grand Rapids suburb of Wayland.

Rita Moses, who is resting at her parents Marion Township home, claims she was kidnapped outside her Clinton Avenue apartment at about 1:30 a.m. Sunday and driven to a Grand Rapids suburb where she allegedly escaped her two abductors at about 7:30 p.m.

"Troopers are inclined to think she is not telling the truth," says Sgt. Joe Geshel of Michigan State Police in Wayland.

Geshel said a preliminary check of Ms. Moses' car, which was found a short distance from where she said she found her freedom, contained "evidence which makes us think she never had a passenger."

Geshel would not elaborate on what they found in her car, which was scheduled to be dusted for prints on Monday.

Despite the State Police uncertainty, Charlevoix Police Chief Jack Mol said his department is investigating the matter as if it were a kidnaping.

The Charlevoix chief said he had been in contact with the Wayland Post Monday and thought they were speaking prematurely.

Ms. Moses told city police that she was kidnaped from in front of her home at about 1:30 a.m. Sunday and was driven south to the Grand Rapids suburb where she jumped from a car and ran to a nearby home.

Ms. Moses told police chief Jack Mol that she and a friend left the Weathervane Inn in Charlevoix at about 1:30 a.m. She drove to her apartment on Clinton Avenue and parked her car. When she got out of the car, she told police, two men approached her and forced her back into the car.

Ms. Moses told police that one of the subjects then entered her car on the driver's side and that the second man followed them in a 1964 or 1965 Chevrolet. The cars traveled down U.S.-131 with a number of minor detours to back roads. On one of the back roads, Ms. Moses said she was able to jump from the car and run when the car was stopped for a stop sign.

Ms. Moses told police she ran to a nearby house and contacted police.

Mumas Elected King and Queen

Robert Muma, retired U.S. Air Force veteran, and his charming wife, Maria, were named King and Queen of the third annual Mardi Gras observance here last weekend Mrs. Jacquie Merta, secretary-manager of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, announced.

Shirley Sanborn, runner-up for the title of Queen, was named Lady-in-Waiting and second place entry for the title of King, Carlo D'Angelo, Court Jester.

King Robert and Queen Maria received their crowns during a coronation ceremony held in The Market. The couple was sponsored by the Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion.

More than 100 spectators crowded into the mall for the coronation ceremony and several hundred more gathered along Bridge St. for the Mardi Gras Parade that followed.

Harold Thomure and Lois McLaughlin, retiring King and Queen, officiated at the coronation ceremony. Music for the event was by the Clarence Peters Band.

There were 13 entries in the Mardi Gras parade led by the King and Queen riding in a convertible. Music was by the Charlevoix Middle School band members riding on a flat-bed truck. An American Legion color guard, Cub Scouts, several floats, a horse-drawn sleigh and a horse-drawn Amish buggy were among the entries. Students from St. Mary's school, wearing Mardi Gras masks, added to the colorful parade.

A large American Eagle, sculped in snow by Larry Cross of Pine Point, was the winner of the snow sculpture prize of $50 offered by the Charlevoix Courier and Station WVOY.

Downhill ski races at Mt. McSauba and the Lions Club Winter Outing at the Ferry ave. beach area concluded the colorful winter event.

The failure of the weather to cooperate forced cancellation of a planned hockey game, cross country ski races and other winter events.

ROBERT AND MARIA MUMA were crowned Charlevoix's new Mardi Gras Queen and King in ceremonies held Friday night in The Market. The Charlevoix couple reigned over the activities held during the weekend.

Claims Money Collected Illegally

Ostling Fights Power Increases

By PEG OHLE

Two Michigan State representatives, Ralph Ostling and Charles Varnum, plan to do something about the $103 million which they claim Consumers Power Company collected illegally from its customers.

"We're going to see that something is done about that money that was collected in a 23-month period ending November, 1975," they say.

"If at all possible, we want to see that money refunded to the customers."

Ostling and Varnum are members of the Special House Committee to study and evaluate the Public Service Commission. They say they have been pressing since last summer for exact information on how electrical utilities have applied the fuel cost adjustment clauses which allow companies to automatically pass along certain costs to their customers.

"Our committee brought to light the fact that the Public Service Commission was making no attempt to determine whether these companies were over-collecting," Varnum said.

"We had been told by three PSC Commissioners that these automatic adjustment clauses were being checked regularly. Only when we proved otherwise did the PSC get its investigators looking for such over-recoveries."

"Even if our committee accomplished nothing more than this, it will have proved its worth," Ostling said. "But we will be accomplishing many other things before our study is completed."

The PSC study pointed out that while collection of amounts in excess of direct fuel cost increases are not authorized by law, the recoveries made by Consumers did not exceed total increased costs of fuel and purchased power combined.

The study further stated that when increased fuel costs associated with purchased power expenses were considered, Consumers Power actually collected less than its increased expenses.

Mike Blomback, a spokesman for Consumers Power in Jackson, told the Courier this was true.

"We don't feel there has been a $103 million overcharge," he said.

"We have been operating under the fuel cost adjustment allowance as provided by law. In fact, over the period of time in question, we were purchasing outside power that cost us over $50 million more than what we got in fuel cost adjustments.

"We don't make a penny on fuel cost adjustments. We just get back the actual cost," he added.

Smith Taken Off 2nd Ward Ballot

It appears now that Democrat Harold Smith's name won't be on the ballot in the April 5 election for councilman of the Second Ward. Or at least it won't be unless there is a write-in or sticker campaign.

It was reported last week that Smith's name would appear after eight absentee ballots that were cast in the primary were found late.

County Clerk Clarence Rabach explained that the eight absentee votes were written in as Republican, crossing off the name of Jeanine Wallace who was running on the Republican ticket.

Smith also received four Democrat votes on the voting machine.

According to Rabach, since there was no Democrat running for mayor in the recent primary, Smith would have had to receive 50 percent of the votes cast for the overall winner of the mayoral contest in order to have his (Smith's) name on the ballot.

Nameless Friend

To our nameless friend. It is my belief, and also many of the second ward, that Mr. Timms does not owe you or anyone an apology.

He has put in four long years as olderman. Doing his best not only for the second ward, but for Charlevoix. Mr. Timms made it clear he was not going to run again. Now, because a few of you did not get your name in, my sour grapes friend, to you it has to be a rip-off, and has to be Mr. Timms' fault. To put so much time in a thankless job, to be insulted by you, Mr. Nameless, let's me know how fur some will go to find out they left their brains at home. By the phone calls we are getting, I do not stand alone in by belief. Mrs. Barbara Timms.

Dog Nuisance

Nothing appears to be happening to lessen the danger and nuisance of pet dogs running at large around the town. It's not difficult to realize that dog-ordinance enforcement is far from easy due to the fact that an animal reported loose at one location may be blocks away before an officer can get to the scene. For this reason we believe it is the responsibility of the animal owner to keep the pet tied or on a leash at all times.

However, today's citizenry seems to lack consideration for the rights of others, so perhaps a stiffer penalty for a dog on the loose could be the best way of protecting the rights of those who do not own dogs. Present cost of picking up and sheltering a dog is $2.25 per day. An additional fee of $25.00 or even $50.00 for keeping the animal could remind dog owners that their own pocket-books would be depleted substantially if they continued to allow their dogs the freedom of the city streets and their neighbors yards.

An alternative would be to allow a homeowner to shoot any dog that strays on the homeowner's property.

Encouraging

It is encouraging to note that so many local industries, civic organizations, and the school district can collaborate on a community project such as the record size cherry pie.

It would be even more beneficial if the collaboration could be expanded to develop prototypes for new products that could be produced in this area.

Those products could then be displayed in one of the annual summer events to test their marketability. Either the Lakeside Hobbycraft and Trade Show, or the Venetian Festival and Trade Show would be suitable.

Charlevoix Elementary Kids Prepare for Bicentennial

By Sara Gay Dammana

"You've won the war. Now what?

Everyone watched the speaker.

"You've fought for and gained Independence, what problems face this new nation?

Charlevoix 5th grade students were being asked to anvision the problems with which the freedom fighting founding fathers – Washington, Jefferson, the Adamses, Monroe, Madison and all their followers – had to deal at the end of the Revolutionary War.

Hands popped up.–"How will they govern themselves?" – "Who will lead them?"

–"How will they choose the leader?"

–"How can they vote? They've never voted before. Who can they vote for?"

–"Who will teach them how to vote?"

–"Where will supplies, like food, clothing, materials, come from now that England is out of the picture?"

–"What will be the rules, laws, for this new nation?"

Encouraging her students to think, particularly about the complexities of the birth of a nation, teacher Mrs. Edward McNamara, hopes the meaning of the Bicentennial Celebration will take on a sense of reality for them.

The fifth grade student get a solid introduction to American History as part of the curriculum.

Teachers, Mrs. McNamara and Mrs. Brian Seymour are approaching the Bicentennial by laying a foundation of understanding.

"We're trying to have them see the Bicentennial is more than running to the corner store and buying a Bicentennial anything," Mrs. McNamara explains.

"You've got to understand the revolution to understand the Bicentennial.

"We're taking an extensive look at the Constitution, particularly the Bill of Rights, for example,," Mrs. McNamara continued.

While the fifth grade probes and questions philosophically, other grades are getting their Bicentennial exposure in the framework of their curriculum and learning levels.

Two American flags made of looped heavy paper strung in the flag's pattern, hang in the hall outside the kindergarten rooms. One has the thirteen stars of the "Betsy Ross" flag, the other has fifty.

"It's the 200th birthday of America," Andrew Forton beams, "That's our country!" he bubbles with enthusiasm.

The kindergarten students' Bicentennial awareness is being tied to "Flag Month,"–February.

Learning the Pledge of Allegiance, poems which help communicate the symbolism of the flag are a source of pride for typically voluble kindergarteners.

School librarian, Mrs. Marie Webb's efforts span the learning abilities of the school, backing up and supplementing classroom learning.

Over the beanbag seats, upon which the younger students love to sprawl with their books,. Mrs. Webb has hung dramatic posters depicting Revolutionary War events.

Handsome Courier and Ives reproductions of early Americana are arranged on the opposite side of the spacious library.

Mrs. Webb says she tries to keep an appropriate display of books arranged pruminently along with the displays.

Art teacher Marty Mathers is encouraging a variety of Bicentennial-linked projects and Karen Hinds's fourth grade is working on a red, white and blue afghan.

Two major total school projects are in the works.

Mrs. McNamara and Mrs. Seymour have made arrangements with the Anthropology Department at Michigan State University to return to Charlevoix the artifacts an MSU archeological team retrived in digs on the site where La Croft condominium now stands.

During the Spring and early summer of 1971, the archeologists studied the site, discovering it to be one of the best preserved examples of pre-historic Indian settlements in northern Michigan.

Before construction began on the condominum, the archeologists salvaged such artifacts as stone tools and arrow heads, whose particular designs give clues to the type of life these early Charlevoixans led.

These will be displayed in show cases at the elementary school on a date yet to be set.

The grand finale to the elementary schools' Bicentennial celebrations will be an operatta "The Tea Party that Shook the World."

"No taxation without representation," the rallying cry of the American revolutionaries is the theme.

While fifth grade students will take the major speaking roles, Mrs. Marina LaBlanc plans to involve everyone, in the production – from singing in the chorus to working on props, staging, lighting and set designing.

The operatta will be presented on May 6.

CHARLEVOIX STUDENTS post with one of their Bicentennial projects.

MRS. KATHRYN SMITH leads her kindergarten class in the Pledge of Allegiance as a part of becoming more informed about the flag.

County Voter Registration Up

The number of registered voters in Charlevoix County has risen from 7,989 in 1970 to 10,298 in January, 1976.

Records from the County Clerk's office reveal the comparison of registered voters in the City of Charlevoix and surrounding townships as follows:

	1970	1976
City of Charlevoix	1,825	2,381
Charlevoix Twp.	331	475
Hayes Township	396	539

Present law provides that voting units using paper ballots must be split when voter registration exceeds 400. Voting units using voting machines must split when voter registration exceeds 600.

Musicians Head for State Meet

The Charlevoix High School Symphony Band and the Concert Band both qualified for state competition later this spring by winning First Division ratings at the District II Qualifying Festival at Traverse City Saturday their director, Gary L. Stutzman has announced.

The Symphony band, composed of sophomore, junior and senior instrumentalists, won the top rating with two I's and a II in concert performance and a I in sight reading.

The Concert band, composed entirely of freshmen, received three I's in concert and a II rating in sight reading.

Mr. Stutzman had only praise for both bands which, he said, gave outstanding performances.

Comments by the judges were equally complimentary. For the first time one of the judges taped his comments, calling attention to high points and criticisms as the band performed. In this way, the students can listen to the tape and know exactly what the judge is referring to Mr. Stutzman said.

The Charlevoix Sumphony band was one of three playing in Class B and the only one to receive a First Division rating.

The Concert Band, playing in Class D, was the only all freshman band competing in this class whose other entries were regular high school bands from smaller schools.

By winning top honors, the bands may now enter the State Festival to be held at Traverse City on May 1.

Judges at the festival were Jack Saunders, Larry Guenther and Paul Schultz, concert judges and Walter Cole, sight reading judge.

World Day of Prayer

"Education for All of Life" is the theme of the service. It was suggested by women of Latin America.

The program will consist of two musical numbers, "There's a World Out There", and "Prayer for Peace" by Vincent Chew, who will accompany himself on the guitar. Other musical numbers will be provided by a group of women of the Congregational and Community Reformed churches.

Women of several other churches will present skits, offer prayers, read scriptures and give readings.

Everyone in the area is invited to participate in the program.

Zoning Ordinance Needs Your Support

Charlevoix residents are being asked this month to consider an issue that we feel could mean the life or death of our community.

On March 22, the Charlevoix City Council will hold a public hearing on a new proposed zoning ordinance for our city.

Now available for public inspection, the proposed ordinance is intended to replace a document that has been serving our city since the early thirties. We feel this proposed ordinance is long overdue and would meet problems that didn't even exist when our present ordinance was written.

Our primary concern with the growth of Charlevoix is the preservation of a unique picturesque community that has attracted both new residents and visitors to our community over the years.

The threat of losing this valuable asset came to light only a week ago with a proposal to erect a business establishment in a primarily residential area. Our concern was not with the business proposing to expand its operations, but with the dangerous precedent it would have established. This has not been the only early warning we have seen.

South of Charlevoix, we are witnessing an ever increasing number of commercial developments popping up along U.S. 31. Often referred to as strip development, this type of growth does more than detract aestetically from an otherwise beautiful area. It also leads to a traffic congestion problem, as well as decentralization of our downtown business district.

Some argue that decentralization of our business district is not all bad. They say much of this is a direct result of the lack of available space or high land values. We cannot completely agree. We feel the extra effort to maintain business in a centralized area is worth the time and money.

Charlevoix is a unique area and one of the reasons is because of our small shops and businesses. We feel Charlevoix should strive to maintain its "small town" integrity by avoiding strip development so often found or identified with metropolitan areas.

One way of preventing this erosion of the quality of our community is through a strong zoning ordinance.

Zoning is not always popular and, in many cases, not always agreed upon in concept and philosophy.

Right now, the U.S. Supreme Court is taking a cautious approach to the controversial issues posed by the growing movements toward community-imposed zoning.

In one case that could provide a complete review of the issues (Construction Industry Association of Sonoma County vs. City of Petaluma)--the lower Federal appeals court has subtained a growth-restriction plan that limited the construction of multiple unit housing to 500 units a year for five years.

This week, the Supreme Court will hear arguments on a zoning case from Eastlake, Ohio--but with a more limited set of issues. In that case, the lower court struck down a city provision that required a 55 percent favorable vote in a citywide referendum before the city would grant requests to rezone land from one land use category to another.

The court, moreover, still has not announced--although it considered the question months ago--whether it will review two other zoning cases, one from San Diego and one from Santa Clara. Those cases, together with the Eastlake case, could provide the Court with as much of an opportunity to review the issues of community growth-control as the Petaluman case would have.

The various cases and zoning plans involved in a number of legal issues as well as a number of other issues. Legally, the issues include the constitutional guarantees of due process, equal protection of the laws and the right to travel.

As a practical matter, the interests include a community's interests in preserving its ambience, in self-government, and in keeping its schools from becoming overcrowded; the interests of persons from elsewhere in the region in finding adequate housing, and the financial interests of builders.

Despite the Supreme Court's cautious outlook on the issue of zoning to restrict growth, we feel zoning is an integral part of local government to protect its assets--particularly, the quality of land.

We encourage you to take the time to review Charlevoix's proposed ordinance and stop by city hall to see the proposed new zoning map. We feel it would be time well spent and may eventually become the deciding factor in the future of this community--Charlevoix the Beautiful.

Letters to the editor

Objects to Editorial

Dear Ken,

I am writing in response to your editorial of February 25, 1976, entitled, "Johnny Can't Read," and would like to offer further statistics in support of this fact, and comments pertaining to such.

In a story published in The Chicago Daily News last fall, an official at the University of Illinois was quoted as saying that about 80 percent of the freshmen entering the university have serious writing problems. At the University of Wisconsin, the article stated that about 60 percent of sophomore journalism students flunked a required English usage test this past fall.

Further, the U.S. Office of Education has been quoted as saying that approximately 43 percent of elementory school children today are in critical need of help with reading. And, that about 20 percent of adult Americans have trouble coping with everyday skills such as shopping, or getting a driver's license, simply because of a weakness in reading or writing skills.

With these distressing facts, there is no question that many young people, who have completed 12 years of education, do not have the fundamental skills that are so essential in earning a living in today's world.

It is clearly understood that we do have a problem. Inability to achieve reading and writing skills is a growing concern to everyone across the nation. And, we can be grateful for the fact that many elementary and secondary schools, as well as colleges, have started remedial programs that seem to be working quite well. Aware of the deficiencies in the teaching of the basic 3 R's, those institutions are making a sincere effort to alleviate the inadequacies.

Consequently, I must take exception to your statement of placing blame on the teaching profession and our educational systems for Johnny's inability to read. In my opinion, finger-pointing is merely a waste of time and has never accomplished a thing. Adopting a positive approach and considering all aspects of the situation, however, might lead to a solution to the problem.

Yes, we do have "pleasant and functional structures," and the teachers are "supposedly better educated." But, consider these facts as well.

How many adult Americans spend time reading at home? How many spend time reading to their children? How often are the public libraries frequented? How many of our homes are devoid of books, newspapers and magazines?

Less you forget, children are mirror-images of their homes, environments and society in general. They learn by example as well as instruction.

Children spend approximately 30 hours a week in a classroom situation; and, 180 days (as required by state law), out of 362 days each year. There, in the classroom, according to your statements, a teacher is supposed to direct his/her teaching energies to each of 30 to 35 youngsters, approaching each student at his/her intellectual level. Simple mathematics tells us that this is less than one hour per week, per student in those 180 days. Thinking in a positive manner, in this length of time the teacher will be successful in "drilling these items into Junior's little skull," and thus, will avoid turning out a "product that is a disaster."

Your belief in the fact that "the purpose of education is -- or ought to be -- to prepare a child for his journey through life," is accepted, but it is also dependent on each and every one of us. It must be a "shared responsibility," if you please, and not only the problem of the educational systems, as you imply.

I very firmly feel, that if you, as an individual, as well as a representative of the media, feel so strongly about the educational shortcomings in the school systems today, it might be more fair to offer them your constructive support, rather than your destructive criticism.

Sincerely,
Karen Douglas

Ford Won't Get Castro Vote

President Ford is just lucky Fidel Castro isn't registered to vote in Miami. If so, that would be another vote down the tube in next week's Florida primary.

In case you missed it, the President launched another tirade against the Cuban dictator while he was stumping the Everglades over the weekend, calling him every name in the book including an international outlaw.

His audience was made up largely of newly-naturalized Cuban refugees who went wild to hear Ford picking a fight with their old commander-in-chief.

Ford told Castro that he doesn't want to hear of him messing around militarily in the Western Hemisphere as he did in Angola. Shades of the Monroe Doctrine!

He also said: "My administration will have nothing to do with the Cuba of Fidel Castro."

Of course, this isn't the first time Ford has tied into a fiery little Cuban -- from a safe distance. Last fall, Castro expressed the opinion that he hoped in time to reach a form of detente with the United States. Ford slapped him down that time pretty well, too.

Why is Ford doing it?

Of course, I know this is an election year and candidates are expected to make all kinds of statements, no matter how assinine in order to curry favor with this group or that group. This time Ford was talking to Cuban-Americans who only recently had felt the oppression of life in Castro's Cuba. Ford is banking that they will vote for him in the primary because he has the guts to stand up to Fidel -- almost as if standing up to the little man from Havana could make Ford stand any taller in the eyes of the world.

Possibly the best course for the United States could follow in dealing with Cuba is to do nothing -- and this would include a moratorium on the President's inane criticism of Fidel Castro.

After all, this is the government which on many occasions during the past 15 years has actually plotted to murder the Cuban dictator. The fact that we didn't can be laid more to our ineptness rather than to any great outpouring of the milk of human kindness.

The assassination of Fidel Castro has been -- and, judging from Ford's weekend comments, probably still is -- a lively topic of conversation in the salons of Washington. And we ought to be ashamed of ourselves.

Furthermore, why should Castro alone be condemned for sending troops to Angola? Unless I'm mistaken, South Africa and Rhodesia also had positioned men ready for battle. Russia also sent help. Mercenaries poured in from Great Britain and elsewhere in Europe. Yet only Cuba and Castro have come under Ford's fire.

Furthermore, does the United States -- which has wasted 100,000 American lives and millions of native lives by intervening in Korea and Vietnam -- have any right whatsoever to condemn the tyrants and aggressors of this tired old earth? It's the old case of the pot and the kettle.

For my money, Castro hasn't done all that badly in Cuba. Although our knowledge of conditions in the land of rum and cigars is sketchy, visitors tell us that after a rough start the quality of life in Cuba is improving. It is no longer the western playground of yesteryear. The bordellos are closed and the beautiful people must grub for a living like everyone else. There is still squalor in the countryside, but conditions generally are healthier for the average man than they were when Castro took over.

Don't get me wrong. There's no love lost between this corner and Cuba. But I don't think it's good manners for the President to go about insulting our neighbors. A policy of benign indifference would be far preferable so far as Castro and Cuba are concerned.

Erma Bombeck

Without a shred of humility I can tell you there is one soothsayer in this country who can predict the future with phenomenal accuracy. Me.

That's right. I can tell what television shows will be cancelled, what fashions will be in, and what is due in the way of price increases. My system is a little bizarre, but the conclusions are very dependable.

TELEVISION: Any show I watch consecutively for three weeks will be cancelled...due to low ratings. Producers have been known to watch the mails for my fan letters so they will know when to make their move. Tim Conway has begged me not to watch the Carol Burnett Show.

FASHIONS: I use the old yo-yo hemline trick. When my skirt hemlines go up and I spend a year and a half shortening my slips and coats, skirts immediately go down leaving me with a coat that looks like a leftover from my tenth birthday. When I buy a new long coat that covers the dress, the skirts immediately go up again. At the moment, I'm in a "tacky" pattern and holding.

FOOD PRICES: Anything my kids develop a craving for is going up in price. I knew sugar would go sky high in three months before they began to hike prices. My kids were using it to build castles, make Christmas ornaments, have sugar fights, and eat raw by the handfuls for after-school snacks. That was the week it went up to $2 a pound.

FOOD AND DRUG SCARE: I predicted this when I got a case of tuna at 19 cents a can only to hear that somewhere a batch of tuna had been released containing a lethal amount of mercury. Also, I have never gone on a diet in my life that a test mouse somewhere didn't either drop dead or become terminal from drinking my brand of dietary soft drink.

WEATHER: This is the easiest of all. Putting weed killer on our grass will insure a drought. Camping out under the stars--a monsoon. Planning our first winter vacation in Florida--unseasonal snow.

You cannot imagine what a burden it is for me to control the country's destiny--knowing that the minute I buy a car, the automotive industry must design an entire new body for next year's models, or that every Wednesday I'm going to get sick and recover on Thursday when all the doctors return.

Just the other day I was telling my husband about a surveyor who was compiling questionnaires and asked me if I thought sex was a fad and was on its way out.

Hey, relax, folks, I told him yes.

Watch the Dip, Mother

The columns I wrote about the Bible made my mother angry, too. But she danced with me.

Honest, I'm not trying to be cute about a paradox. There are some people, I know, who say the Bible forbids dancing. Mother maybe missed that page, or read it differently. Whatever, I bid you peace.

When Mother accepted my invitation onto the dance floor, I didn't regard it as a sign she'd forgiven me my Bible trespasses. But I did hope she might be ready to forgive me my stumbling feet.

My mother is a nimble, skillful dancer. My father was the same, but he has been dead many years and his only son is a poor substitute. I have been dancing the box since 1942. It doesn't matter what the band is playing, or what the current rage is--twist, big apple or boogaloo. I take one step forward, one step to the right, one step backward and I step to the left. And there you are, a perfect box.

If anyone gets in my way, perhaps forcing a rectangle or even, heaven help me, a triangle, I become completely disoriented. I must stop and start all over again. The usual procedure is I suggest to my partner that we sit down. This gives me time to decide if I really want to start again. Also there's the chance the band might switch to something slower. No tune is too slow for my box. "Danny Boy" is a little too fast.

After 40 years of being married to Fred Astaire, Mother naturally finds my box a little confining, as in straight jacket. She is usually polite about it, hardly complaining at all ("I really think you are improving, Jim. So far I've seen only 2 people fall down laughing at us").

Sometimes, aching for her approval, I am prompted to try something devilish, such as a dip. This voluntary departure from my box usually makes me feel like a hero, when successful. And if Mother is caught unaware, and fails to follow my frisky lead, I jibe her severely ("Can't cut it anymore, hey Bluehair?"). Unfortunately, the dip too often destroys my balance and sets me to lurching. Which sets me down, sulking, to dance no more that evening and perhaps never again if Mother doesn't quit wondering aloud how I could possibly be my father's son.

Anyway, the night of our most recent dance, Mother made it clear I should quit writing about the Bible. At which point I sprung a dip on her and she missed a step. And she told me something I'd never heard before:

"When I made a mistake dancing with your father, he always said 'How are the kids?'"

It was his way of saying her mind wasn't on the music. Instead she was probably thinking of her 5 children at home.

"I loved you kids so much," she added, almost as an afterthought.

"And we loved you so much," I said.

Which may be a strange conversation for a 49-year-old son and his 76-year-old mother. I don't know. But it was a warm, spontaneous moment I won't forget.

I celebrated by going into a backward dip, for Lord's sake, and Mother was too shocked to follow.

"How are the kids?" I asked.

Ah.

If this doesn't have anything to do with the Bible, it should.

Ivy Arlock

Ivy Arlock

Ivy Arlock is manager of the Community Cabaret, a series of entertainment performances by local and other artists, which have been held throughout the area. Here she tells the Courier about how the program started, who some of the performing artists have been, and plans for the future.

COURIER: How did you start the entertainment series?

ARLOCK: We started last summer with a $1,000 mini grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts. We had to come up with matching funds, and we came up with more than $5,000.

COURIER: What were your first performances?

ARLOCK: We had Michael the Clown, who entertained in Harbor Springs on the Fourth of July, we had a group of 14 folk dancers from Wayne State University, who performed on the tennis courts in Harbor Springs, we had Tai Chi instructors, who demonstrated their meditative movements, and we had a Visual and Performing Arts Festival in celebration of local talent.

COURIER: Then what did you do?

ARLOCK: We received a second grant in the fall and brought a Canadian Theater Troupe here as well as a group of Folk Singers from Ann Arbor. We also had a return visit by the Tai Chi instructors and four Cabarets in which local performers also participated.

COURIER: Then the Community Cabaret is really an outgrowth of your other programs?

ARLOCK: Yes, when I came up here it was with the idea of getting out-of-area people to come here to perform. However, as the grant program went on, we started using local talent. We had as many as 50 to 65 participating each evening. There is a great need for a way for local talent to get started.

COURIER: Who are some of the local people who have performed at the Community Cabaret?

ARLOCK: Recently we had Heidi Dove of Charlevoix, Mary Bowman of Harbor Springs, Joyce Warnock of Petoskey, the Gierlach's of Boyne City, The Spring Hill Farm Band of Petoskey, among others.

COURIER: Do you have plans for any Community Cabarets in Charlevoix?

ARLOCK: Yes, I have talked to both the Grey Gables and Castle Farms. We will probably work something out in the way of Folk Fridays with local talent this summer.

COURIER: How do you happen to be in Northern Michigan?

ARLOCK: I started coming up here about eight years ago with my mother, who runs the Galerie de Baicourt in Harbor Springs. Last year, my mother and I began sponsoring once-a-week gatherings at the gallery. I was surprised to see the quality of local talent who participated in the programs.

COURIER: Do you have a background in performing arts?

ARLOCK: Well, I majored in German and minored in fine arts at the University of Michigan and did graduate work in dance therapy and photography. I have a teaching certificate and taught in the Detroit schools. Now, I am doing some substitute teaching up here. Last week I subbed at the Charlevoix Middle School and the Ann Arbor Friends Road Show performed for the kids while I was there. We hope to bring them to the Charlevoix Elementary School some time in the future.

COURIER: Do you have enough money to pay all your talent?

ARLOCK: No, I have been trying to get the Chambers of Commerce and the Service Clubs to underwrite some of our expenses but so far I haven't had any luck. It seems that all the money up here goes for sports programs. We have had to rely on door take.

Rayders Lose To Rogers City

The Charlevoix Rayders bowed out of District Class C competition Monday night after losing to the Rogers City Hurons by a score of 65-59 in the opening game of the tourney.

The Rayders got off to a slow start in the game at Rogers City and trailed 10-0 before Scott Boss dumped in the first Rayder bucket with 3:51 on the clock. As the seconds ticked off, the Rayders closed the gap to 19-12 at the quarter.

As the second period got underway, the Rayders seemed to find the range and midway in the quarter trimmed the Huron lead to one points, 25-24. They continued to match points with Rogers City as the half ended 31-29.

As the second half got underway, Rogers City again pulled away and at one time had a 12-point advantage before the Rayders came back to trim the lead to 47-39 at the three-quarter mark.

As the game went into the final period, Rogers City pulled away to a 54-43 lead and midway in the quarter was ahead by a margin of 57-45 but the Rayders, despite countless turnovers, kept whittling away to come within six points at the final horn. In fact, The Rayders outscored the Hurons 20-18 in the final period but were unable to overcome the early deficit.

Paced by Scott Boss with 20 points, the Rayders had 25 from the floor and nine of 18 from the line while collecting 22 personal fouls. Bud Klooster contributed 17 points, Matt Doan 12, Bob Alger and Pat Schaefer four each and Dave Tollas two. Neil Dziedzic also played.

Rogers City came through with 26 field goals and 13 of 23 free throws and had 16 personal fouls.

Mark Belusar carried the scoring load for the victors with 20 points; Dan Gorlewski had 14; Randy Peltz 12 and Al Streich 10 for the Hurons.

Boyne City will play Onaway at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday Rogers City will now play East Jordan at the same time Wednesday with the finals likely between Rogers and Boyne City, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Grayling with a 15-6 record finished in second place followed by Rogers City with 14 wins and seven losses. Charlevoix finished in fourth followed by Petoskey, 9-12; Gaylord, 6-15; Boyne City, 5-16 and Cheboygan, 4-17.

Charlevoix ended its season with two meets in a week.

On Wednesday, the team hosted its final meet with the following results: Charlevoix over Gaylord 15-9 and 15-6 and over Cheboygan 15-8 and 15-4 while losing to Rogers City 15-6 and 15-12.

Charlevoix, Rogers City and Gaylord came out of the meet with two wins and one loss each while Cheboygan posted an 0-3 record for the meet.

Earlier in the week Charlevoix was at Cheboygan where the team defeated Cheboygan 15-12 and 15-8 and won over Boyne City 15-11 and 15-10 while losing two straight to St. Ignace 15-10 and 15-9.

In the playoff of the winner's bracket, Townhouse and the B League All Stars played to a 16-16 first period tie before Townhouse took command and coasted to a 38-26 halftime advantage which was increased to 58-40 going into the final eight minutes.

Skiers Take Conference Titles

For the first time in the seven-year history of skiing as a Michigan-Huron Shores League sport, Charlevoix teams have captured both the boys and girls titles.

The Rayder boys, defending champions, topped the six teams entered with a score of 34 while the girls came through with a score of 38 to take the girls title.

In the boys division, Petoskey placed second with 56 points; Grayling third with 98; Boyne City fourth with 144; Gaylord fifth with 174 and Cheboygan sixth with 212 points.

Petoskey, defending champion in the girls division, placed second behind Charlevoix with 56 points; Grayling third with 108; Gaylord fourth with 110; Boyne City fifth with 140 and Cheboygan sixth with 202.

This marks the second time since the sport was instituted in the program that a single school has taken both titles. In 1972 Boyne City was the dual winner.

Coach Mike Bonello, in commenting on the teams' successes, said that the victories by both the boys and girls squads represented team efforts.

Charlevoixans won top honors in both the slalom and the giant slalom for both the boys and the girls. Lee Begrow with times of 47.60 for the slalom and 41.8 in the giant slalom and Camille Malpell with times of 57.14 in the slalom and 46.56 in the giant slalom paced the meet.

The top five, their schools and times in each event follow:

Boys' slalom: Begrow, Cx., 47.6; 2. Mark Markel, Pet., 50.4; 3. Marc Malpeli, Cx., 50.5; 4. Erik Lundteigen, Cx., 50.8; 5. Mark Lignell, Cx., 52.6.

Giant Slalom: 1. Begrow, Cx., 41.80; 2. Marty Hill, Pet., 42.17; 2. Herb Olson, Gray., 42.52; 3. Terry Barrett, Pet., 42.54; 5. Marc Malpeli, Cx., 43.75.

Girls' slalom: 1. C. Malpeli, Cx., 57.14; 2. Lisa Weimer, Cx., 59.07; 3. Amy Kircher, BC, 59.40; 4. Jane Kieswetter, Pet., 59.53; 5. Sue Winchester, Cx., 60.90.

Giant slalom: 1. C. Malpell, Cx., 46.56; 2. J. Kieswetter, Pet., 46.73; 3. Kathy Bowers, Gay., 47.59; 4. Cindy Pelto, Gray., 49.06; 5. S. Winchester, Cx., 49.15.

The meet was run at Sylvan Nob outside Gaylord where the temperature reached 56 degrees resulting in very soft snow Coach Bonelo said.

Rayders Down Gaylord

The Charlevoix Rayders posted their second victory in as many weeks Friday with a 64-62 win over Gaylord to conclude the season with a 7 win-7 loss record in Michigan Huron Shores League play and 8-11 in overall play. The 7-7 record gives the Rayders a tie with Rogers City for second place in league standings after Boyne City, Petoskey and St. Ignace finished with 10-4 records and co-champions of the loop. Petoskey was the defending champion.

Charlevoix's victory over Gaylord came in the game with about three seconds to go when Scott Boss, with the score tied 62-all dropped in a twisting reverse to put the Rayders ahead. Gaylord took the ball out of bounds and had one last shot at the buzzer but missed.

The Rayders had to come from behind, after trailing 17-14 at the quarter and 29-25 at halftime, to go ahead for the first time, 39-36, as the game went into the final period.

Charlevoix forged ahead 48-42 only to have the Blue Devils close the gap and then go ahead 48-46 with 3:48 remaining. Gaylord then took over 50-46 before Charlevoix snapped back to knot the score 56-all. The two teams then traded buckets until tieing the score 62-all with three seconds on the clock. At this point, Boss put in the final bucket for the victory.

Boss' bucket gave the Rayders the winning margin for both teams had scored on 10 of 16 free throw attempts. Charlevoix had 17 and Gaylord 16 personal fouls.

Bogard Tourney Still Underway

The Jimmy Bogart tournament play will continue as the 13 teams of the Class B league play out the double elimination tournament.

In the first night of play Credit Union sent Medusa to the loser's bracket by a score of 56-27; Wojan Aluminum advanced as the result of a forfeit by Klooster John Deere; on Friday County State Bank dumped First State Bank 72-81; AlRay Cottages won 63-42 and Freedman's won by forfeit over Village Milkhouse.

It was Credit Union all the way as the team led Medusa 12-0; 22-9 and 35-17 by quarters behind the scoring of Gary Novotny who had 22 points and Joe Renner who posted 15. Beano Archey had 14 for Medusa.

Larry Skippergosh scored 26 points and Denny LaCroix and Steve Martinus 16 each as County State Bank overcame a 17-10 first period deficit to head First State Bank 34-32 at halftime and 52-45 at the three-quarter mark. Rob Castelein poured in 30 points and Glen Taylor 22 but their efforts were not enough as First State went to the loser's bracket.

An inspired AlRay Cottages team downed Bay Shore Steel after leading the Steelers 16-6; 33-22 and 41-34 by quarters. Jay Masoryak and Scott Blanchard had 18 points each and Bob Holtzman 15 for the victors. Charlie Borths and Bob Borths had 12 points each for the Steelers.

Obituary

Joseph J. Bellinger

Funeral services for Joseph J. Bellinger, 50, a former resident who died Monday at Addison following an extended illness, were held at the Brown-VanHemert Funeral Home in Addison last Wednesday. Interment will be in an Addison cemetery.

Mr. Bellinger was born at Boyne City in March 1925 and was graduated from the Charlevoix High School. During World War II he served with the U.S. Army Medical Corps in the Philippines. He was graduated from Eastern Michigan University with B.S. degree; from the University of Michigan with a Master's degree in Education and as an Education Specialist from Michigan State University. He had taught at Elk Rapids and Traverse City and had served as superintendent of schools at Kingsley and, for the past 10 years, at Addison. Born in Charlevoix Feb. 13, 1913, Mr. Novotny was graduated from the Charlevoix High School and always resided in the area. He was an auto mechanic by trade and, at the time of his death, was employed at Bob Mathers Ford garage in Boyne City. A talented musician, he had had his own band or played with an area band for many years. He was a member of the Eagles' Lodge in Boyne City.

Mr. and Mrs. Shields

In Saturday Ceremony

Beth Baldwin Marries Timothy Shields

Arrangements of blue and white chrysanthemums, pom poms, and greens graced the altar of St. Mary's Church Saturday, February 28, for the noon wedding of Beth Marie Baldwin of Charlevoix, and Timothy E. Shields of Fort Wayne, Ind.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. George E. Baldwin of Charlevoix and Mr. and Mrs. James R. Shields of Fort Wayne, Ind

The Rev. Edward J. Krason, principal of Bishop Dwenger High School in Fort Wayne, and close friend of the Shields officiated at the double ring ceremony.

John R. Miller, a friend of the groom's, sang the "Ave Maria" and "The Wedding Song" as well as other traditional selections. He was accompanied by Mrs. Brendan LaBlance at the organ, who also sang.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory silk brought from Germany by her father following World War II. It was designed and originally worn by her mother and just recently by her sister, Mrs. W. Keith Mohan.

Fashioned with a low round neckline outlined with double rows of handmade rose pointe lace, the gown featured long sleeves trimmed with the same lace at the cuffs. The draped full length skirt fell to a chapel length train.

A headband of lace and beads secured the bride's double tiered mid-length veil of ivory illusion edged with rose pointe lace. She carried a Williamsburg bouquet of ivory roses, stephanotis and baby's breath with cascading ivy.

Mrs. W. Keith Mohan of Grand Blanc, served as her sister's matron of honor. Laura Ann Baldwin of Charlevoix, sister of the bride; Patty Shields, of Fort Wayne, sister of the groom; and Mrs. Carleton Smith of Charlevoix were bridesmaids. They wore identical true blue sleeveless gowns with matching tapered capes edged in mariboo of the same color. Their dainty headpieces were also of maribou. All carried Williamsburg bouquets of pastel miniature roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Amy Arquette of Port Huron, cousin of the bride, was the flower girl. She wore a white full length dress of eyelet with sheer long sleeves cuffed also in eyelet and carried a basket of pastel miniature roses, stephanotis and baby's breath. Her headpiece was a Colonial polk bonnet trimmed with lilies of the valley.

Michael J. Shields of Kokomo, Ind. assisted his brother as best man. George E. Baldwin, Jr. of Charlevoix, brother of the bride; William G. Neizer of Fort Wayne; and Robert H. Goliber of Chicago, Ill. were groomsmen.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Baldwin chose a pale pink, long sleeved gown delicately appliqued in pastel flowers. Mrs. Shields, mother of the groom, wore a long sleeved deep cranberry gown with a gracefully draped side paneled skirt. Both mothers wore corsages of white catalaya orchids.

A luncheon-reception for 160 people, hosted by the bride's parents, followed at the Weathervane Inn in Charlevoix.

The wedding cake was topped with the bride and groom figures which graced the bride's parents wedding cake.

An evening open house for out-of-town guests was held at the home of the bride's parents.

After a two week skiing trip to Austria and Switzerland, the couple will make their home in Fort Wayne where the groom is vice-president and part owner of a metallurgical processing firm.

Wedding guests were present from Florida, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, and Ontario, Canada as well as several Michigan cities.

Mr. and Mrs. Shields hosted the rehearsal dinner Friday evening at the Weathervane Inn's Pine River Room. (Martinchek Studios)

McSauba Complex Reverts Back to City

Charlevoix's year 'round sports park, Mt. McSauba, could be getting a new lease on life after being on the verge of collapse this year.

City officials are indicating they will take over operation of the 45-acre site located north of Charlevoix in Charlevoix Township.

The ski slope, which has been used by hundreds of youngsters, had been leased and operated by a non-profit corporation called Charlevoix Mt. McSauba Recreation Corporation for nearly 20 years.

However, the last few remaining officers of the non-defunct corporation who have been continuing to run the ski hill operation say this is their last year.

Chuck Meier, who along with his family, has been managing the slope since 1958, told the Courier that he plans to retire this year.

Meier and Maurice Foster, who has served as the corporation's treasurer, are the last remaining vestiges of the corporation that was established in 1956.

Mt. McSauba opened in 1956 with $8,000 worth of stock at $10 a share. The majority of stock was purchased by summer residents and Charlevoix businessmen.

Foster said most of those investing in the corporation never really expected to get a return on their investment. He said most considered it a contribution to the community.

The Mt. McSauba property had been leased to the non-profit organization by the city, which acquired it from the late P.D. Campbell.

Mayor Edward Hansen said the city hopes to upgrade the Mt. McSauba facility.

Among possible improvements are the addition of a hockey, snowmaking equipment for the ski hill, a sliding hill and a permanent summer day camp program.

Ruppe Plans Breakfast

Congressman Phillip E. Ruppe (R-Houghton) will be hosting a "dutch-treat" legislative breakfast in Charlevoix Friday.

The 11th District Congressman will meet with any interested constituents for breakfast Friday at 7:30 a.m. in Leutheuser's on Bridge Street.

Ruppe is expected to discuss his stand on Reserve Mining's alleged pollution of Lake Superior, as well as PBB, the tonic chemical fire retardant that has affected the lives of hundreds of Michigan farmers.

SLIPPERY HIGHWAYS, so much a part of the weather scene in recent days, caused this International Truck Tractor and flatbed trailer to go out of control at Petoskey and Michigan Avenues at 4:10 p.m. Wednesday. The vehicle went over the island located at the intersection taking out traffic signs, continued around the curve on US 31 North and into the guard rails on the west side of Michigan ave. at The Dunes. The right front section of the tractor was damaged by the impact and towed to Snizik Service Station for repairs. The vehicle is owned by Schultz Snyder & Steele Lumber Co. of Lansing. The driver, Earl L. Ashmore, 26, of Williamsburg, who was uninjured, was cited for violation of the basic speed law (too fast for conditions).

Police Search for Suspects

The Charlevoix City Police Department is seeking information on these young men being sought for questioning in the alleged kidnapping of Miss Rita Moses, 22, early the morning of Feb. 28.

The drawings were made by a Michigan State Police artist from descriptions given by Miss Moses at Traverse City recently.

Both are described as white males in their mid or late 20's.

Suspect No. 1 (left) who drove Miss Moses' car with her as hostage is approximately six feet tall, medium build with green eyes and long blonde hair.

The second suspect is said to be approximately 6-3" tall, stockily build, dark complexion with black hair and dark eyes.

Anyone having any information on the pair is asked to call Chief Jack Mol of Charlevoix.

Chief Mol said Monday that the investigation is continuing and leads are being checked out as the police seek to solve the crime.

Charlevoix Joins School Aid Suit

The Charlevoix School District has joined a consortium of Michigan School Districts with high property values in filing suit against the state for cutting state aid.

The local district, as a member of high SEV school districts, filed suit Monday in Ingham County Circuit Court against the Governor, State Treasurer and the Appropriations Committees of the House and Senate.

In explaining the action, Supt. James A. McKimmy said the consortium is trying to get the legislature to spread its cuts equally in all areas of state aid, not just one portion.

In planning a budget, one uses income to judge what commitments can be made, Mr. McKimmy explained further.

The Charlevoix School District, like the others in the consortium, has adopted budgets within its anticipated incomes only to have the state cut back aid in the amount of $54,000 in two years, $12,000 during the 1974-75 school year and $42,000 during the current school year, he said.

The suit has been brought in an effort to remedy this situation.

An explanation of the suit filed Monday in southern Michigan was made at the regular meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Education held Monday.

A bus replacement schedule was presented by Vincent Olach, business manager, who said the district presently has a 19 bus fleet that includes 15 regular buses, three spares and one used by Vocational Education students. Under the schedule bus purchases have been programmed so that it will not be necessary to buy more than two per year though during the 1981-82 school year this will mean using buses past the seven

City Review Board Protests Tax Hike

Charlevoix's Board of Review adopted a resolution last week strongly protesting any change of the assessment by factors.

The city review board took the hard stand after learning the Charlevoix County Equalization Department published a ratio of 1.07 for the city.

In a resolution unanimously adopted by the board, the group claimed that the tax rolls for all three of the city's wards have been found to be reasonably accurate and equalized.

The board claimed that property assessments of the city are already found to be at 50 percent of true cash value.

"The change of assessment rolls by factors is unjust, arbitrary in nature, and has cost the taxpayers of the City of Charlevoix and the Charlevoix School District hundreds of thousands of dollars in recent years in lost State aid for schools," board concluded in its resolution.

Mayor Ed Hansen said the State Tax Commission has not done a study in Charlevoix County and can't understand where the county factor is coming from.

"We are paying through the nose for school taxes, more than we should be," Hansen said.

"We deplore any arbitrary ratio or multiplier with no basis, especially when all indicators are that we are at 50 percent."

In other business Monday, the council:

–Heard no objections during a public hearing to improve Lake Michigan Park to be financed on a 50 percent matching grant from the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation for $11,600. The project includes additional parking and hiking trails, picnic equipment and an engineering study for future development.

–Received a petition bearing 47 signatures from Oscar Ward for street im-

Real Shame

It's a real shame that those voters who were "surprised" by Mr. Timms withdrawal from the political scene and those voters who failed in attempting to place Mr. Smith's name on the election ballot, did not have the opportunity to attend a real ward nomination caucus. In that case, all these problems could have been brought to light and a solution found. Unflinchingly, Don Luedke.

Dog Problem

I would like to respond to this week's Hotline regarding the dogs. I'm in full agreement with the complaints, but I do not agree with the alternative that anybody should be allowed to shoot a dog. I don't think anyone has that right. But, I do think that the people who own dogs should be more considerate toward their neighbors and the neighborhood in general. Their dogs should not be allowed to run free and do their duty in other peoples yards and harass small children. I also agree that the dogcatcher has a large area to cover. There is a solution to that. Why not hire another dogcatcher on a strictly commission basis. If we raise the fee to $25, we could easily cover that. Thank you.

Good Job

I think the Courier has done a good job on the animal situation and I would like to comment on that. I think the people in this town of Charlevoix who own animals should have enough consideration for their friends and neighbors to keep their dogs tied, for the simple reason that dogs who run loose are more apt to pick up worms. Therefore, the ones who are tied will pick up the worms from them. That is only a simple solution to the problem, but I hope that people who do let their dogs go out the back door will think twice before they do it.

K-5 Building

I'd like to say that I visited the K-5 building this week and I think all those in Charlevoix should be very grateful and proud to have a school such as this and I hope all of, when we start thinking of the millage election, want the best for our children. If anybody disagrees with me, they ought to take a walk down those hallways, and see the wonderful things those people are doing for our children. Congratulations to all the teachers and administrators in the whole city of Charlevoix for making this beautiful school on the north side possible. Now, why don't we try to get one on the south side?

Pine Channel Project Gets Corps Green Light

By Sara Gay Dammann

The U.S. Army of Corps of Engineers plans to deepen the Pine River Channel despite unresolved questions raised by the Lake Charlevoix Property Owners Association.

The $2.2 million project proposes to deepen the channel from its current 15 feet to a consistent depth of 23 feet throughout the channel between Round Lake and Lake Michigan.

The Corps has told the Courier there will be no more public hearings on the project already in its final phase of preliminary study.

Association President Rod Stebbins had written the corps suggesting that more public hearings be held to review the project.

While a few questions have been raised about the project, it is generally supported by such area concerns as Northern Michigan Electrical Cooperative, Hodgkiss and Douma Inc., and the Charlevoix County Road Commission.

Ross Kittleman, Chief of the Corps' Grand Haven Office, said that while there would be no more public hearings, the Corps planned to write Stebbins answering his question.

"Our association is seriously concerned with the deterioration and pollution of Lake Charlevoix. Additional freighter traffic would seem a further contributing factor," Stebbins wrote.

The Corps' reason for deepening the channel is to allow the new larger and deeper draft freighters to ply the waterway.

The Corps' response to Stebbins is, if larger vessels serve their customers, such as freighters carrying coal to the electric cooperative at Advance, there will actually be fewer ships travelling through the three lakes and channel.

The cost to benefit ratio has been another rationale for the project.

At a hearing last Spring, local industry representatives argued that they would save freight costs by being able to ship on larger vessels.

The Army Corps' presentation stated that for every tax dollar spent on the project, local industries would save $1.70 in freight costs.

Presumably those savings would be passed on to local consumers.

The Corps estimates that the project will clost $2,245,000.

There will be additional costs to the city of Charlevoix.

All utilities will have to be lowered under the channel, but according to Charlevoix City Administrator, Robert Wexstaff, those costs are not yet available.

One reason the city cannot estimate its cost is they are awaiting the evaluation of the city's sewer needs, which will amongst other things dictate the size of pipe to be buried.

At the 1975 hearing, question of easements on the part of the channel in front of the Charlevoix Lumber Company were raised by lumber company owner E. James Hiller.

Hiller was concerned that the Corps would need more property to build the revetment it planned, and Hiller said he did not have land for sale.

Also the city will require easements when they move utilities and Hiller was distressed about losing more of his parking lot.

Last week, Hiller said he had not yet been approached about these issues.

The problem of wave action through the channel no longer being dissipated when natural banks are replaced by steel revetments was raised by several persons at last year's hearings.

Kittleman acknowledged last Thursday that wave action and the consequent distress for small boats was a concern for the Army Corps of Engineers at several of its projects.

"The Corps is doing an overall study on the wave-action problem," he said.

The dinner is a joint effort of the Little Flower Guild headed by Mrs. Edward Buday, St. Mary's Rosary Altar Society headed by Mrs. Edward Golden and parish members.

Mrs. Valois Avery and Mrs. Gregory Seese are co-chairmen of the event. Assisting will be Mrs. Buday and Mrs. Bud Coyne, co-chairmen of the soliciting committee; Mrs. Chester Otmanowski, dining room set up; Mrs. Francis Left, dining room decorations; Mrs. Robert Stangis, advertising; Mrs. Thomas Carter, posters and Mrs. Patrick Donnelly, tickets.

At the dinner, Fritz Allard will be in charge of the preparation of the dinner; Mrs. Terry Blissett in charge of the dining room; Mrs. Richard Martin, coffee, Mrs. Kenneth Wojan, salads; Mrs. Ralph Doan, breads; Mrs. David Herbolsheimer, desserts; Mrs. Roger Pischner, dishwashing and Mrs. Jack Curtis, clean-up.

In announcing the lower prices made possible by a slight decrease in food prices, especially that of meat, Mrs. Buday said this was being done as a courtesy to patrons of the dinner and to attract a larger crowd.

It's Time to Get Ready for Spring Gardening

Chase Away Winter Blues

By PEG OHLE

"You can't hurry spring by planning for it," is an old saying.

But planning is a good idea and right now planning this year's vegetable garden is a fine way of chasing winter blues.

Seed catalogs are in the mails and many local stores are displaying racks of colorful seed packets.

Michigan State University suggests that you put your garden plans on paper. "If you had a garden last year, use your records as a jumping-off place for this year's plans," suggests Horticulturist J. Lee Taylor.

Did you plant too much squash and not enough sweet corn? Did you grow a lot of turnips only to find your family won't eat them? Did you plant all your lettuce at once so that most of it went to seed before you could use it?

Answer these and other similar questions so you can plant more carefully this year.

If you are a first-time gardener starting from scratch, begin by listing the vegetables your family likes and how much of each crop your family can eat fresh and how much you will want to can, freeze, pickle or store.

Taylor also advises that you take into consideration the time, skills and equipment necessary to preserve your produce.

"Canning, especially, tends to be time-consuming," he says.

Beginning gardeners often tend to plant more than they can handle. It is much better to succeed with a small first garden than to get overwhelmed and discouraged by an over-large one.

Some vegetables require more space than others, Taylor points out. Corn, squash, melons, pumpkins and other vining crops require a lot of growing room; whereas radishes, leaf lettuce, herbs, onions, tomatoes and many others crops may be grown in pots on a patio, in little clearings in a flower bed, along a fence or wall, in borders along a walk or driveway, or in a conventional garden plot.

While garden seeds are available, garden plants such as tomatoes, peppers, eggplant and cabbage won't be for sale in the area until about mid-May.

Thoughts of home gardens lead to thoughts of canning jars and lids which have been in severe short suply for the last two years. Although manufacturers have promised plenty this year, it's not too early to start buying your needs.

It's better to be early than late.

Need Some Help

Persons wanting professional help in planting their vegetable gardens can receive it in a Michigan State bulletin.

Titled "Home Vegetable Garden, Pamphlet No. E 529" it can be secured for 25 cents from the Bulletin Office, P. O. Box 231, Michigan State University, East Lansing, Michigan 48824.

Those who have the time and want to travel to East Lansing might be interested in Michigan State's Farmers' Week vegetable gardening program on Wednesday, March 24.

Presented by the Horticulture Department, the program will begin at 1 p.m. with a short color film on gardening. At 1:15, Hugh Price, Extension specialist, will give some tips on starting vegetables indoor from seed.

Planning and planting are next on the program, to be covered by specialist Bob Herner at 1:45. Entomologist Don Cress will provide gardeners with a glimpse into the world of insects at 2:30, with Alan Putnam following at 3 p.m. to discuss weed control.

When to harvest and how to store your produce is the topic of Bob Herner at 3:30. Anita Dean, Extension specialist in foods and nutrition, will conclude the presentations with some insights into what vegetables can do for you nutritionally.

Arts Council Begins New Year

The Crooked Tree Arts Council, which brings many cultural activities to the area, will soon start its fourth year of programs.

It is also conducting a membership drive so that its programs may be continued and enlarged.

Most of the Crooked Tree programs have been presented through a 50 to 75 percent grant from the National Endowment for the Arts and the Michigan Council for the Arts, with the difference being matched by membership support.

However, due to the economy, grants are limited and the local group hopes to continue its classes, exhibits and performances through membership contributions and possibly a small grant.

Any organization or individual interested in or associated with artistic activities in Charlevoix and Emmet counties and the surrounding areas is eligible for membership.

Single membership is $5, family membership, $10; club or organization membership, $15; sponsor membership, $25; benefactor membership, $50; and life membership, $100. Membership fees are tax-deductible.

The Crooked Tree Arts Council is concerned with all art forms: Creative – painting, sculpture, literature; Performing – Music, drama; Environmental – architecture, landscaping; Visual – film, kinetic sculpture.

Among programs coming up in the near future are the Interlochen Arts Academy Dance Ensemble this Thursday night at the Petoskey High School, a student and faculty art show April 26 to 30 at the Holiday Inn in Petoskey for all area students, and a talk by a prominent artist at Hidden Valley in Gaylord sometime in April.

This summer there will be a juried photography show and a performance by the Delta College symphony at the Harbour Inn in Harbor Springs in conjunction with the Council's annual meeting.

Currently, Crooked Tree is sponsoring a series of art lessons for children and adults at North Central Michigan College and is selecting a music student for the annual summer scholarship to Interlochen.

Among new activities planned are a course in music appreciation at North Central Michigan College next fall and bringing an artist-in-residence to the area to work in all the school systems.

Headquarters of the Crooked Tree Arts Council are at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey. Anyone desiring further information about the group may obtain it from the office there or from Suzy Reis at the Reis Gallery in Charlevoix or Virginia Olsen, phone 547-9316.

More Singles Own their Own Homes

As in most parts of the United States, a growing number of people in Charlevoix County are living alone these days, maintaining their own homes apart from other members of their families.

A decade or so ago, these single men and women, some young and some old, would have been living with relatives and would have been more or less dependent upon them.

However, public attitudes as well as employment possibilities, especially for women, have changed drastically in recent years, enabling people to be more independent and self-sufficient.

They find that they can get jobs and earn enough to be on their own. Many of the older people among them have been returning to the labor force where their earnings, added to pensions and other income, enable them to swing it financially.

As a result, there are now nearly 14 million people in the United States who are living alone, as compared with 7.9 million in 1960. About 1 out of every 5 households consist of only one person.

In Charlevoix County, according to the latest updated figures from the Department of Commerce, approximately 19.1 percent of tthe dwelling units are occupied by singles. In 1960 it was 16.1 percent.

Throughout the nation as a whole, 22.2 percent are one-person households. In the East North Central States, it is 20.6 percent and, in the State of Michigan, 19.4 percent.

Included in the singles category are unmarried people and those who have been divorced or widowed and have remained single since then.

In the local area, based upon the findings, the number of one-person households has now reached an estimated 1,100, as compared with the 1960 total of 640.

Although the high divorce rate has accentuated the number of men and women living alone, the big build-up has been among the young singles. There has been an increase of no less than 50 percent, between 1970 and 1975, in singles in the 25 to 34 age group, reports the Census Bureau.

Editor Named Fellowship Finalist

Ken Winter, editor of the Courier, was named Friday as a Regional Finalist in competition for the 1976-77 White House Fellowship.

In making the announcement, a White House spokesman said Ken had been selected from 99 semi-finalists to be interviewed on Thursday, March 18, in St. Louis, Missouri.

Ken will be evaluated by a President's Commission appointed panel while in St. Louis.

The top 30 to 35 candidates will be selected as national finalists from among whom the Presidential Commission will nominate 14 to 19 White House Fellows to the President on May 24.

Of this year's 99 Regional semi-finalists, 22 are employed in private business and industry; 18 are university professors, administrators, and researchers; and 16 are with state, county and local government (including two mayors and a city manager).

There are also 10 lawyers, eight career military officers, four nurses and health services administrators, four bankers, three public school teachers and administrators, and three students.

Also in the group are two journalists (of which Ken is one), two pharmacists, two consultants, a Lutheran pastor, a symphony conductor, a foundation officer, a day care center executive director, and the financial vice-president of a large monastic order.

White House Fellowships were created in 1964 to provide outstanding young Americans with firsthand experience in the process of governing the nation. The program is open to persons in all occupations and professions who are no less than 23 and no more than 36 years of age.

Leadership, intellectual and professional ability, and a commitment to community and nation are the broad criteria employed in the selection process.

Dems Plan Meeting

Charlevoix County Democrats will meet in the Charlevoix County Courthouse on Monday, March 15 at 7:30 p.m.

Rose Marie Seaton and Jean Rosewig will report on the regional Democratic workshop held in Grayling last month. Janis Dietrich will also explain the delegate selection plan for Michigan to send delegates to the National Democratic Convention in July.

Anyone wishing to participate in the National Convention delegate selection process must purchase a 1976 Michigan Democratic Party membership by April 5. Memberships may be obtained by contacting Joan Giem at 549-2675.

Recently announced candidate for Charlevoix County Sheriff, George Lasater, has also been invited to attend the meeting.

Local Education Ranks High Here

We're still feeling the bruises from our recent editorial on "Johnny Can't Read."

Surprisingly enough, the editorial relating national trends of deficiences in education drew mixed reviews.

Some told us that not enough was said on the subject of our eroding English language and its usage, while others asked why we turned against the Charlevoix school system just before a millage election.

Although we never received any written objections from local school teachers, several did verbally attack the Courier for its position. One teacher even threatened to call our competition before he would ever call us again about activities in his classroom.

Still another educator labeled us as a "John Birch" front publication.

Unfortunately, too many people read the editorial defensively and looked at it as a direct attack towards the Charlevoix Public Schools system.

Our concern is primarily with the growing number of young people who are unable to perform basic skills in reading, writing and arithmetic. However, it was not an attack on Charlevoix schools or educators.

In fact, all data that can be obtained to measure the quality of our local school system would indicate that Charlevoix is well above the state average in education.

Recent Michigan Educational Assessment Program testing conducted on our seventh graders showed that our students ranked far above the state average in measurable math and reading skills. Similar results appeared in testing held the two previous years.

Similarly, college-bound high school students taking the American College Test (ACT) have tested well above state and national averages, particularly in English, Math and Social Studies.

All of this is achieved despite the fact that Charlevoix ranks only 324 out of 530 Michigan school districts in total instruction expenditure made on each student that passes through its doors.

So you can see that Charlevoix has an impressive track record in educational experiences.

And, as we have said in previous editorials, we think Charlevoix could even be a better district, if local residents would approve the upcoming bond proposal to improve school facilities.

Our news coverage of school activities during the last few years should be enough assurance to local educators that we're interested and supportive of local schools.

However, this support does not alleviate our growing concern that a number of young people do not read for enjoyment or are able to write a simple coherent letter.

Farm Bureau Should Release PBB Info

Three years later, Michigan's PBB cattle disaster continues to affect many state residents, the legislature, various state agencies and several private firms.

The problem started in 1973 when it was discovered that thousands of Michigan cattle had consumed feed which had been accidentally tainted with PBB (polybrominated biphenyl), a fire retardent chemical.

State and federal officials ordered many of the cattle herds destroyed because they had PBB levels which exceeded federally-mandated safety levels. Many of those farmers are still trying to recover financial losses.

State Health Department officials plan a long range study to determine the effects on humans – mostly farm families exposed to PBB before the problem was discovered.

A department report last week said studies conducted so far show no significant health threat to those exposed to PBB. The report added, however, that "Nothing can be said concerning possible long term effects of PBB on human health, even at low levels, because there is not information on which to base such statements."

With that in mind, it is disturbing that the Michigan Farm Bureau last week refused to give a legislative committee data on PBB levels in cattle belonging to 832 farmers who have filed claims against the bureau.

A spokesman said the bureau did not want to release data on PBB levels because many people refuse to buy a farmer's product if they learn his cattle are involved, even if the level is below the federal safe guidelines of three-tenths part per million.

We can understand that concern but we still believe the legislative investigating committee and the public have a right to such data, especially in view of the preliminary findings of the State Health Department.

The legislative committee is going to need that kind of informatin if it is to make any kind of a determination on future distribution of products which may have been lightly contaminated by PBB.

The legislature, in fact, should consider a law to label such products so consumers have a choice in the matter until better evidence is forthcoming.

The committee should insist that all the data it requested on PBB levels be turned over to its members without delay.

Against Budget Cuts

Dr. Donald C. Smith, Director
Department of Mental Health
Lewis Cass Building
Lansing, Michigan 48900

Dear Sir:

The Emmet County Board of Commissioners wishes to express its grave concern about the effects on our community of both the fund cutbacks and the admission and discharge procedures for the mentally ill to our state institutions.

Although the Department of Mental Health budget was cut 2½ percent, our local community mental health services budget was cut 11.8 percent. Our 1975-76 budget received, after cutbacks, only $15,000 additional over the previous year although we had been led to expect $45,000 additional. Some areas in the state may be able to sustain this type of budget reduction with minimal strain, but in the 4-county area of our community mental health services board's jurisdiction, services are not even up to a basic level. Our area mental health clinic attempts to cover four counties, in three offices, with twelve employees, four of whom are funded under CETA. It covers an inpatient unit at Lockwood-MacDonald Hospital in Petoskey of six beds, which sometimes has ten patients. To quote our mental health clinic director "Our inpatient facility is lacking in space and is without occupational therapy, our Cheboygan office needs additional staff, our Petoskey office is literally swamped with requests for service, Charlevoix County desperately needs an office, our "Activity Program" is fledgling and skeletal, we are without partial hospitalization, without primary prevention and our educational efforts are sporadic at best." The active cases are increasing monthly to a December total of 489, with client contacts totaling 710 for the month. By November 1, 1975, the staff has accummulated 412 hours unpaid overtime and 500 hours vacation time for a total of 912 hours. We are able to contract for only twelve hours of psychiatric time per week.

In the area of mental retardation, we have three work activity centers in our four counties, offering only an inadequate minimum of services, and a six-bed transitional home acquired through a federal grant. We are serving a total of 80 clients in four counties with a staff of seventeen, including four CETA positions. Our Community Mental Health Services Board has tentatively identified approximately 320 mentally retarded adults not receiving service in this 4-county area, and in Emmet County, of approximately 110 adult mentally retarded, only 10 to 12 are receiving service.

The state institution fund cutbacks are causing problems for our community as well. Although we are well aware that institutionalizing people often hinders their readjustment to society, a low density area such as ours, with very limited resources, needs the centralizing function of the state institutions. Our local communities can not set up individualized programs for a

Misled

Thomas A. Duke
431 Michigan Avenue
Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

Dear Tom:

After reading the paper and hearing the reaction of the public in regards to the re-zoning of the property on Petoskey Avenue, it disturbs me that you would mis-lead the council and the public to the fact that the Planning Commission was in favor of leaving the property along Petoskey Avenue residential.

On two (2) different occasions the Planning Commission spoke in favor of doing just the opposite of what you said we did. Note the minutes dated August 3, 1973, where we were in favor of the possibility of re-zoning to C-I. On August 31, 1973, we declined to re-zone the parcel because there was no land use plan submitted, NOT because we were against the C-I zone. On September 28, 1973, we recommended that the parcel on the corner of Petoskey and Meech be changed from R-I and R-2 to Restricted Office District.

It is my hope that in the future all true facts may be presented to the citizens of Charlevoix of what decisions took place in the past.

Sincerely,
John E. Haggard
Former Chairman of the Charlevoix
Regional Planning Comm.

Clockwise

by Bob Clock

For a couple of years now it has been apparent that the Clocks have been facing a stand-off with the Arabs. Everytime the price of oil went up, I turned the thermostat down one degree.

However, as of Sunday, the Arabs can go fly a kite so far as we're concerned. The Clocks are toasty warm, thanks to a new parlor stove in the living room.

Actually the stove project dates back more than a couple of years when it became apparent that we are spending far more for fuel oil than we can comfortably afford. Furthermore, the furnace often clicks on in the spring, summer and fall when all you really need is a little something to take off the chill.

Therefore the stove project was born, and Judy and I visited every bargain barn and garage sale in northern Michigan looking for a wood-burning space heater. We saw a lot of antiques without legs and some fancy models with built in water reservoirs.

One day we drove 100 miles to look at a white enameled trash burner that just wouldn't look at home in our living room.

We knew that the initial expense of the stove would only be half the battle, since all of the old chimneys that served the house when it was built a century ago have long since been cut off and roofed over.

We also would need a hearth of some kind to protect the floors and walls.

Finally after Christmas we found what we wanted at the Morning Valley Fireplace Shoppe. It is a small cast iron model with two burners on top and "Arctic" embossed on its fat little sides. We brought it home and proceeded to try it out for size in all areas of the living room, finally deciding on the southwest corner.

Two weeks ago, after the IRS came through with our tax refund, we had Les Staley from Boyne City and his dad come over and put in our new flue.

Last weekend we bought bricks for the hearth and I spent all day Saturday bricking a corner of the living room. I had never worked with bricks before, and have acquired a new respect for the nation's bricklayers. My hands are shredded and my arms and legs won't stop aching.

Sunday I boxed in my brickwork, lifted the stove into place, hooked up the stove pipe, stoked her up with newspapers and stovewood and touched a match to it. The kids thought it was very strange that daddy was starting a fire in the living room.

However within a few minutes, our first wood fire was burning merrily, breathing great drafts of warm air into the living room. The heat, incidentally, has a different quality from the sickly, second-hand offerings from hot air registers. Heat from the stove is blistering and full-bodied and you can feel it down to the marrow of your bones.

Of course, the parlor stove project is far from completed.

We have now decided to make the living room our "1776 Bicentennial" project. I already have installed a strip of wainscotting molding midway up the walls and Judy has ordered a gold paper with a vertical pattern. The lower walls will be painted a compatible color. Some of our 100-year-old furniture will blend right in with the new decor; other pieces will have to go. I think a well-mounted oil lamp in a cast iron bracket would look good above the stove. An old-fashioned "deal table" and a couple of antique chairs also would fit in well somewhere near the stove.

Are we actually going to save money with our wood-burning parlor stove?

According to my latest calculations, we should break even by the time of the Tricentennial.

Erma Bombeck

A lot of people are so busy watching and listening to the presidential candidates, they overlook the real people who could make the difference. Show business personalities.

It's simply a matter of scoring. To date, on the Democratic side Jimmy Carter has the endorsement of the Marshall Tucker band and Gregg Allman. Since Gregg is married to Cher, it could mean the entire block of "navel" votes could go to Carter.

Mo Udall has Linda Ronstadt as a supporter and Fred Harris lists Harry Chapin, Arlo Guthrie, Pete Seeger and Tom Paxton behind him. George Wallace is claiming a large segment of country music performers.

On the Republican side of the ledger, Ronald Reagan hopes to net Pat Boone. Gerald Ford is still doing a single.

The Democrats seem to have captured the lion's share of tennis players (which could make a difference at the convention) but have only one tap dancer (Shirley MacLaine).

The Republicans, however, have several blockbusters, Sammy Davis, Jr., Pearl Bailey and John Wayne, who have been known to effect a landslide victory.

Still confused and wondering who to watch in the forthcoming election year?

Watch Rich Little. Rich is no fool. He's not going to align himself with any candidate whose voice he can't do.

Watch Jeanne Dixon. She's another one who, in her business, can't afford to endorse a "loser."

Watch Bob Hope. As yet, he's uncommitted, but you can bet he won't play footsies with a "ski" man even if he has to nominate Jack Nicklaus himself.

Paul Newman. Some people question how much effect a sex symbol will have on the voting public. I can only tell you Paul Newman supported Humphrey in 1968. In 1972, I voted for Humphrey and he wasn't even running.

Watch for the uncommitted vote. There are 97 per cent of the entertainers in Las Vegas, Hollywood, Nashville and New York who are still on the fence.

My husband refutes my theory. He says people listen to issues, weigh the attitudes of the candidates and the soundness of their proposals.

All I know is if Gerald Ford gets Charlton Heston in his back pocket, that's the old ballgame. With Moses on his side, he can't miss.

Maribelle must be Kidding

I'm old enough to remember the days before Saran Wrap was invented. Which prompts me to wonder if Maribelle Morgan's silly smile would look any better through old-fashioned wax paper, the cloudy kind with ragged edges. Probably not.

Maribelle wrote a book called "The Total Woman." She says wives should do anything necessary to turn their husbands on, even greet them at the door wearing nothing except Saran Wrap.

Maribelle is very big on the lecture circuit and TV talk shows. No matter how violently people react to the dumb things she keeps saying, Maribelle never stops smiling so sweetly. When she was born, Maribelle's parents showed remarkable foresight. Such a sappy dame could not be named Mary or Belle. She has to be Maribelle, just as sure as John Boy Walton could never be Jack.

Maribelle has gained fame by preaching the total submission of wives to husbands. A woman's sole purpose should be to make her mate happy, she says. If the husband is a truck driver and feels inferior because his wife is a supreme court justice, the wife should leave the bench. She should go home and sit by the CB radio, on call. When Jake Diesel roars home, she should feed him through an oil can and seduce him in the back of a pickup, with background music by Johnny Cash.

Whatever Jake wants, he should get, according to Maribelle.

Any jerk can see why Maribelle's philosophy is popular with many husbands. Most guys want to be king of the castle, with no other royalty in sight and with a wife dying to convert her dungeon into a massage parlor.

But how come Maribelle is so popular with the women? Thousands of them think she is right. They are buying her book and hoisting her flag. They have organized Total Women clubs where the members think up new ways to submit and discuss how to sew pockets in Saran Wrap jumpsuits.

This makes me suspicious. It's possible Maribelle could be suffering from a rare case of insipid inanity. Perhaps, as a child, she was left in the path of too many kisses thrown by Dinah Shore. But it can't be contagious. The world cannot be full of Maribelles. Why is she getting all that support from bridge clubs?

I suspect an insidious plot. Maybe Maribelle isn't a dummy after all.

Maybe this whole Total Woman nonsense is a flip-side plan hatched by Women's Lib to get even for commercials starring Eve Arden. Maybe Maribelle is really an espionage agent named Maude.

The idea could be to sex men insensible. Joe Slob can gorge himself on Saran-wrapped goodies only so long before he begins to believe he really is Robert Redford, worthy of all female favors at all times. At which point his conceit will become so insufferable he will wonder why such a great man has to go to work everyday. So he'll send his plastic Maribelle out to traffic in commerce while he stays home and kisses his mirror.

The ultimate result is obvious. The hand that steers the diesel rules the freeway. Betty Ford will be elected President. Gerry Ford will appear on TV only once a year to explain why he wouldn't be surprised to learn his son was having an affair with the chairman of the board at General Motors.

That is one possible plot behind the Total Woman movement. There is another possibility which may be much nearer the truth.

Maybe Marbelle's husband sells Saran Wrap.

Meet Charlevoix

...Jim Berlage

Charlevoix High School senior Jim Berlage is asked this week to examine the high education he is just about to complete.

Born in Toledo, Ohio, Jim moved to Charlevoix in fourth grade. He is the son of a Charlevoix lawyer and elementary school teacher.

Last summer, Jim attended the American Legion's Wolverine Boy's State held at Michigan State University for youth with leadership potential.

He is active in the high school band program, yearbook, student council. He is also editor of Charlevoix High School's student newspaper, Crimson Flash.

Outside of school, Jim is involved with Youth for Christ's Campus Life program for high school students.

Elected class president during his sophomore year, Jim is also listed in Who's Who in American High Schools. He has also received a news writing award in Michigan Interscholastic Press Association competition.

COURIER: What are your immediate plans following high school graduation?

BERLAGE: I plan on working this summer, and then in September, I will enter Michigan State University. While I'm there, I will be studying journalism as my major, while looking ahead to journalism or law or both.

COURIER: What influenced your decision to consider either journalism or law?

BERLAGE: All through school there has never been any doubt in my mind that I wanted to go into some type of law, and I'm sure my father influenced me, too. In my sophomore year, I became involved in journalism in high school and I have been involved with it ever since working on the high school yearbook and school paper. In May, 1975, I was employed by radio station WJML as a news stringer, where I was responsible for local Charlevoix news coverage. In November of last year, I moved to WVOY in Charlevoix, where I am presently working as a reporter. I have also had the opportunity to write for the Courier, as well as other scholastic publications.

COURIER: Do you have any long range goals? If so, what influenced them?

BERLAGE: My one major goal is to get through college and if my interests are still the same, I plan to attend law school. With the job market looking the way it is in both journalism and law, I really can't tell whether I will be a small town lawyer or journalist or whether I will be working in the metropolitan area. Or then again, I may combine the two fields and go into something like broadcast law.

COURIER: What do you feel have been the most important influences in your education and life outside of your family?

BERLAGE: I think I have been very lucky. As a high school student, I have been able to work for both professional newspapers and radio stations and be able to go out and meet the community.

My contacts with the community and its problems have been a great influence.

COURIER: How do you evaluate your formal high school education?

BERLAGE: It's hard to pinpoint any specific areas, but for the most part my four years in high school have been beneficial. One thing I would like to see more of, are classes or sessions where the student has an opportunity to look at himself and be able to evaluate his good points and areas for improvement. Last fall, Mr. Bentley of the high school counseling center, introduced a limited lifestyle workshop program, where we evaluated our personal life in terms of how we see ourselves and how other people see us. The program was just a week long and touched on many areas, but could be greatly expanded. As a matter of fact, there is a whole book on the subject and it could possibly be expanded to a semester program. Another good program the counseling center is conducting, is bringing in career people and professionals from the community to talk with interested students about a specific career. Approximately once a week, one such individual will come in and speak about his or her profession. The career program is spread over the entire year, giving it even more value, where as a student can look into many occupations over a period of time unlike a career night, where everything is just piled on top of each other allowing many possible areas to go untouched.

COURIER: Do you think the present physical facilities at the high school are sufficient?

BERLAGE: In terms of being able to get by, I suppose you would be able to do so. But, education could be furthered with more space and modern updated facilities, such as in the areas of communication. The speech department could much benefit with separate speech, drama and newspaper studios or labs. Also, facilities for physical education and art need more space.

COURIER: You often hear that kids your age are lost and really don't know what they want to do in life. What is your reaction?

BERLAGE: I would tend to somewhat agree, in that not enough courses are being taught where the individual truely can learn about himself and his future. But then again, "finding yourself" is a lifetime experience. No one can ever hope or expect to be perfectly satisfied or to have reached their goal before they get out of high school or college. I do feel our high school counseling center is partially satisfying that need, but the school system has a long way to go in helping the high school student learn to cope with everyday living.

COURIER: Do you feel your generation is any different than previous generations?

BERLAGE: Not really. Every generation goes through certain problems. Of course the basic adolescent problems remain, but as times change different fads and lifestyles have probably appeared that our parents have never dreamed of.

This spring, do something about next winter's heating costs.

Insulate!

More than 100,000 Michigan Consolidated Gas Company heating customers have taken advantage of our low-cost ceiling insulation program in the past two years.

Originated under the direction of the Michigan Public Service Commission, we are presenting the program again this spring.

Why insulate? Because it helps hold down home heating costs. With the cost of gas continuing to rise, installing ceiling insulation has never made more sense than it does right now. Many Michigan Consolidated customers have already reduced their gas consumption for home heating by as much as 17%. And you can save just as much by installing six inches of ceiling insulation in your home this spring.

How much does it cost? Many homeowners can install insulation themselves for about $125. That's a small investment when the money you save on heating can repay the insulation cost in just a few years. We have a free handbook that shows you just how to do the job, whether you'll be insulating for the first time or adding to insulation that's been there for many years. You can get a copy at any Michigan Consolidated Gas Company Business Office, most building supply dealers, or write or call us.

If you'd rather not do the job yourself, one of our participating subcontractors can. Total cost is about $250 for homes with less than 1000 sq. ft. of ceiling area. You can pay cash. You can pay 20% down and pay the balance without interest over your next three gas bills. Or you can make extended payments at the interest rate of 1% per month on the unpaid balance (ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE OF 12%)

So why not insulate this spring? You'll make next winter's heating costs less than they might be without it. And if you have air conditioning, you'll save on this summer's cooling costs, too.

Michigan Genealogical Council Helps with Family Records

By Pat Ranger

Ancestor whorship is not a practice confined to the ancients. In our own culture there are opportunities tu induige in this enterprise, known in professional circles as genealogy.

Today, the Michigan Genealogical Council is urging Michigan residents to look into their family records for a Michigan pioneer ancestor who lived in the state 100 years ago. The reward for this research is a handsome document including in the inscription your own name and that of your ancestor. This Centennial Family Certificate is a Bicentennial project of the Michigan Genealogical Council.

The first step in establishing your qualifications for certification by the State is to obtain the questionnaire, which documents from five generations your relationship to the ancestor who lived in the State in 1876. The questionnaire clearly states that you must provide official records to prove descent from the ancestor.

Acceptable sources of proof are: Census records; county histories; tombstone inscriptions; Centennial Farm Certificates; survey maps; births - marriages - deaths Bible records; city and county directories; military records; cemetery records; mortuary records; dated obituary; dated newspaper notices; school and church records.

No original copies of documents should be sent. Xeruxed copies are acceptable. All inquiries about the application can be addressed to the Michigan Genealogical Council, Michigan State Library, Michigan Unit. 735 E. Michigan Avenue. Lansing, Michigan 48913.

Charlevoix County Residents will find census information available on microfilm at the North Central Michigan College Library in Petoskey. The director of the library, Raymond Kalbfleisch, has census records for 1870 and 1890 in the microfilm collection. It is fascinating reading to see the lists of names from the various townships in Charlevoix County. The rollcall still sounds familiar today with many of the same names active in our county.

Birth - marriages - death records are found in the Charlevoix County Clerk's office. There are large red and black leather volumes, which neatly record the vital statistics of the County from the year 1865. Occasionally, it is frustrating to find a birth listing as "Reinhart - female." Cross references must be used to verify if this is the individual needed to establish eligibility.

It is important not to ignore the female lineoges when the name changes after marriage. These names may be the family line that would be the most direct link with the pioneer ancestor. For this reason, the female maiden names are often the most difficult to trace.

Reading tombstones is another activity characteristic of hardcore genealogists. It is a brisk exercise in the middle of winter, but there are fewer disturbances than in the warmer mouths. There again, it was often the custom for a female ancestor to be buried with her father's family rather than her husband's kin, especially if a divorce had taken place, or in the case of an early death, the husband had remarried.

Township Halls have records which are available to the public. A few historically-minded residents have examined these documents which include some census records and homesteading claims. Family churches are another source to consider. The Methodist Church at Greensky Hill has ancient documents in its possession, especially for American Indian families, who were the earliest residents of all.

The County has many interesting records to examine and in the future a list of Charlevoix County Centennial Families might be compiled and documented. As time goes by it becomes increasingly difficult to separnte myth from reality and to establish official records. It took une resident almost a month to run from one source tu another to get all the proofs assembled. Scrambling for 100 years of history reminds me of the interview I watched on television recently. The American reporter asked an Englishman if it was true that he could trace his family back to the year 1200. "No indeed," the Englishman replied: "Our family records go back to 1200 B.C.!"

Bogart Finals Set for Wednesday

The game pitted Swanson K & D against Townhouse following Swanson's defeat of the Townhouse Thursday night by u score of 60-55.

In the gome that sent the two teams into another game in the double elimination tournament, Swanson's went ahead 18-10 and managed only two point margins at halftime, 27-25, and at the three quarter mark, 39-37, before increasing the victory margin to five points. Hockey Rink Gets Area Support

Charlevoix's lnng-plannd hockey rink literally went down the drain last week when the unseasonable weather hit the area but hockey fans, youngsters as well as adults, were counting on the freezing weather usually experienced in late February to rebuild the rink, Dwight Boss, City Recreation director, reports.

The boards for the rink were built by the Charlevoix High School Building Trades class as their contribution to the project and had been placed by a wurking crew spearheaded by Wayne Boss, kids' hockey coach, before the 40 degree weather hit the area.

"Everyone who had worked on the project wus disappointed but now we're hoping the weather will level off and we'll get some of the cold weather we usually have this time of year so the teams can play a few home games" Boss said.

The teams of which he speaks are an adult team known as the Charlevoix Crusaders and a boys hockey team composed of youngsters in the 11-14 year age group. Both teams have played out of town and we're looking forward to the completion of the rink so they could appear on home ice for their return games.

If weather permits, the Crusaders will host a visiting team, as yet un-named, during the forthcoming Mardi Gras, Boss said.

Boss said many people assisted in preparing the rink. Besides Wayne Boss, he named Frank Cook, Mike Boss, Tim Elenbaas, Jim Wibbey, Jack Mol, Jim Mielke, Roger Pischner, adult hockey players, the entire boys' hockey team, parents of players and interested persons who contributed their time during the project. "People came and went. It was impossible to get all the names but we want them to know their efforts were appreciated" Boss continued.

He mentioned particularly Charles Clifford and Steve Kidder, regular ice maintenance personnel, who spent hours of their own time in preparing the rink.

If the weather cooperates, there will be both boys and adult hockey games under lights at the re-built rink, Boss promised.

Funds to finance the project came from the Recreation budget. Boss said that future plans call for an expanded winter sports program, possibly at the Mt. McSauba area, next season. A budget with this in mind is presently being prepared. At that time, the hockey program will be enlarged to include teams in other age categories.

Scuba Lessons Offered in April

A series of basic Scuba diving classes will be offered shortly by Scuba Nnrth of Traverse City under the spunsorship of the Charlevoix Recreation Department Dwight Boss, City Recreation director, has announced.

Each course involved nine sessions of class and pool work all sanctioned by the National Association of Underwater Instructors.

Classes are open to both males and females 15 years and older who have basic swimming ability. Open water check dives at the conclusion of the course, administered by qualified instructors, will result in nationolly recognized certificatiuon if all requirements are met, Boss said.

Classes will begin at 6 p.m. April 6 and continue for nine weeks.

Call Boss at 547-9098 for registration and further information.

Library notes

Our patrons will be pleased to know that the Library has four volumes in the American Bicentennial Series, authored by John Jakes. The first volume "The Bastard" inougurates the series. All six books tell the story of our nation and on amazing family living in the turbulent spirit of frontier adventure that began the American experience. In this first book we are introduced to Phillipe Charboneau--the bastard, illegitimate son of an English-nobleman. Phillipe flees Europe and, as Philip Kent, joins the turbulent adventure that was the beginning of the American Experience. It is a stirring saga of the proud men and women who took a handful of colonies and made them a nation. Volume Two, "The Rebels", continues the saga, and in volume three, "The Seekers" and volume four, "The Furies", we meet more members of the Kent dynasty. We reod of the society of George Washington as President ond Thomas Jefferson as the sage of Monticello, the siege of the Alamo, Boston's Beacon Street, New York's glittering society, clipper ships in harbor--the whole magnificent panorama of our country. Although each of these books is o separate novel, to fully enjoy and appreciate the rich background, we suggest that they be read in series.

And in on entirely different series, we recommend "The Fall of Midas," written by Juliet Astley, the nom de plume adopted by one of our best selling novelists. This first book in the projected series is the story of Anna Thorley, a disarming country lass, os poor as she is pretty, but to Edwin Osford, who has built a merchondising empire, Anna is merely o tort and the tarnished stepdaughter of the local gamekeeper. This is an entertaining melodrama, with murder and intrigue, in turn-of-the-century England.

"River Rising" by Jessico North, who, along with Mory Stewart and Phyllis Whitney, is one of our most familiar and favorite gothic novelists. This new book is a wonderfully plotted tale with a very surprising resolution, an unusual love story and a locale in Canada which is vividly drown.

The new biography "Jack Benny" by Irving A. Fein is absolutely first rate.

Unlike so many of the new biographies about celebrities, this is o warm, sincere and intimate portrait of one of the greot humorists of all times. The author was Jack's personal manager and close friend for 28 years. He reaches beyond the image of the world's worst violin player and stingiest man in show business and presents Jack Benny as a gentle, generous, serious person who loved to make people laugh and who loved to laugh himself.

FREEZING RAINS and poor driving conditions may have forced early-school closings last Wednesday, but it didn't prevent Charlevoix youngsters from having fun. Several youngsters decided to build a snowman and see if the Courier would come out and take a picture of it. There was only one problem--the snowman wouldn't stand up straight and had to be held up until a Courier photographer could arrive on the scene. Those involved with making the snow creature included Shelley Porter, Nancy Miller, Noni Pace, Wendy Porter, Christie Pace and Loren Pace.

Rural Girl Finds Weather Balloon

Just at dusk one evening recently, Melissa Warner who lives with her parents, the Doyle Warners, on a farm in Norwood township eight miles south of here, caught sight of something floating down near her home.

Only a light wind was blowing at the time, but Melissa, curious about the object, chased it about half a mile before it came to earth and caught in a fence. She found that it carried a card in a plastic bag that had been held aloft by three small balloons, one of which had been broken when it struck the fence.

The card stated that the balloons had been sent aloft as a science project at the Riverview Elementary School in Wassau, Wisc., some 500 miles west of here. The sender was Dawn Pophal. She asked the time, hour and date the card was found, the wind direction at the time, the place and the name and address of the finder. Melissa has since returned the card with the necessary information so that Dawn may complete her science project.

There was no date on the card telling when it had been sent on the journey that brought it across Lake Michigan.

Corps

At Charlevoix, to dissipate wave action into Round Lake, a "rip rup" revetment was being considered.

A date for construction is still not set.

The project report has moved from the Detroit Office to the Corps of Engineers North Central Division Office in Chicago. After review in Chicago the report goes to Washington, D.C., first to Corps of Engineers Offices then to the President's Council on Environmental Quality, and finally for funding by Congress.

At the funding stage, the Charlevoix project would be a minor part of a Corp's budget, and not considered separately.

Wexstoff hoped the project would begin this summer, but it appears unlikely.

City officials would like to see the project include a new Sundew dock, running parallel to the channel which would open up more space for city docks.

CHARLEVOIX MAY BE the only town in northern Michigan with a bicentennial garbage truck. This week Charlevoix Garbage Service's new 1976 FORD LN 7000 Red white and Blue Diesel truck arrived at Erber Auto Company. Wes Weebe (right), owner of Charlevoix Garbage Service said he needed a new truck anyway, and the Leach Company, who manufacturers the back section of the huge machine, was offering bicentennial decorations. Weebe decided to take it. Also pictured are Mike Weebe (right to left) and Lyle Miles of Erber Auto.

Budget

few people with diverse illnesses. A case in point was the closing of the autistic unit at Traverse City State Hospital. In our county, an eleven year old girl, who had been institutionalized for six years, was suddenly released to her family after making good progress in the highly specialized (and expensive) autistic unit. Our Community Mental Health Services Board could do nothing for her, the Char-Em Intermediate School District could do nothing for her, the Hawthorne Center would not take her as their unit accepts only boys, and her family was put under unbearable strain due to the nature of her disability and resulting behavior. She has this week been accepted at the Alpine Center, which has no staff to provide anything more than custodial care, and it is expected the child will now regress.

In short, our 4-county area has received only an addition of $15,000 to an already slim budget for 1975-76 from the state, with which we must attempt to place our eight CETA employees on permanent staff, and take care of rapidly expanding needs, including those patients who need services to prevent their admission to state hospitals, and those who have been returned to our community, ready or not! We realize the state is very short of funds this year, with prospects of another tight budget year ahead. However, we in Northern Michigan feel a disproportionately large amount has been cut from our budget by the State Department of Mental Health, at a time when are are struggling to bring our services to a basic level to meet the crying needs of our area. Our population is low and spread for afield, but our problems are no less intense.

In the other area of admissions procedures, the law enforcement officials in our community are increasingly burdened with the responsibility of decision as to disposition of the mentally ill. The restrictive involuntary admission criteria for commitment, tie the hands of our prosecuting attorney and probate judge, and law enforcement officials do not feel qualified to make treatment placement decisions, which they are often forced to do. We have a number of cases of disturbed citizens who cause problems in our community, and come to the attention of our law enforcement officials. At the moment, we have lodged in our county jail a psychotic individual who stole a car. He does not belong in our criminal justice system, nor can he be admitted to a state institution due to the restrictive criteria of the new mental health code.

In summary, unless adequate treatment and support services are available in the local community; the state institutions must continue to house those mentally ill citizens who are in need of service; otherwise, unbearable financial and other pressures are exerted on local communities and the mentally ill and mentally retarded citizens are shunted from pillar to post, are unacceptable in the institutions, and can not be serviced in local communities due to a lack of funds. Our communities can probably replace many state hospital functions, but we must have funds to do the job.

Sincerely,
EMMET COUNTY BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS

years during which transportation funds are paid to school district.

Supt. McKimmy said that efforts were again being made to collect approximately a third of the school operating millage with summer taxes thus saving the school district money for interest when it became necessary to borrow against anticipated revenue.

The change in the polling site to the Elementary School for the March 22 special election was pointed out. On that date, voters will go to the polls to vote on a $2.8 million bond issue to underwrite the cost of remodeling and expanding the present Middle and High Schools and to renew a six mill tax levy for operational purposes.

Mr. McKimmy reported that a committee headed by Mr. Olach had been named to interview a possible tenant for the Beaver Island Lighthouse property. Such a tenant would live at the site and supervise the restoration of the property.

It was proposed that the School Board ask to meet with the Charlevoix County Road Commission in an effort to iron out some of the problems regarding roads in the county that have necessitated school closings recently.

The board went on record as commending the Rayder Ski Teams and their coach, Mike Bonello for their accomplishments.

THE SPACE AGE REVEALS THE GLORY OF CREATION

Man's conquest of space is just beginning; although it has already achieved many astounding feats of technology that hardly anyone believed possible even a few years ago. And yet, the farther we progress through the intricacies of modern science, the more we are compelled to marvel at the magnitude of God's Creation, that reaches out into an infinity we cannot comprehend; and also, at our God-given ability to engineer and perform these feats. However, you need not go to the moon, but only as far as the Church of your choice; to thank God for this vast universe and for the intelligence granted to man to explore it, and thereby enrich all our lives on earth.

"For by him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth,
visible and invisible..."
— Colossians 1:16

Police Officers Association Sponsors Essay Contest

All high school students in Michigan are invited to enter an essay contest sponsored by the Police Officers Association of Michigan. Deadline for entries is March 15, 1976.

Subject of the essay is "A Student View of Today's Police Officer in our Bicentennial Year".

Prizes are $3,450 in United States Savings Bonds, with a $1,000 bond being awarded for first prize. Second prize is $700, third prize $500, fourth prize $300, fifth prize $250, sixth prize $150 and seventh prize $100. Eighth through twenty-fifth prizes will be $25.

The essay must be not more than 1,500 words in length and must be accompanied by a statement from either the school principal, teacher, clergyman or parent, attesting that to the best of his knowledge the student wrote the essay unaided except for bibliographical references.

All entries must be typewritten and mailed to Secretary, Police Officers Association of Michigan, 2187 Orchard Lake Road, Pontiac, Michigan, 48053.

Student's name, full home address, phone number, school name, age, grade in school, parent or guardian's full name and address must be typewritten on a separate sheet of paper attached to the front of the essay.

The Leaning Tree

I've talked to a few lucky people who received a microwave oven from Santa Claus this year. The microwave oven can be a real timesaver for a busy homemaker. They are convenient in preparing good, quick meals on short notice.

The microwave uses much less energy than conventional type ovens when cooking some foods. Research indicates that the best energy saving is when cooking small to medium quantities of concentrated foods such as meats, potatoes and desserts (particularly puddings and sauces), and in heating TV dinners.

Here are a few pointers from the research kitchens. When using your microwave oven cut down spattering by cooking fatty or crispy foods with paper toweling. Cover moist foods with a glass cover, waxed paper, or plastic wrap to retain moisture and equalize cooking.

Low colorie cooking is another asset of microwave cooking. Because foods do not need to be fried, almost all cooking fat can be eliminated.

Browning can be achieved by adding special microwave seasonings or a sauce. Frosting will disguise the lack of browning on a cake.

If a microwave oven is in your present or in your future, make sure you use and maintain it properly.

--Learn to operate according to manufacturers' instructions.

--Don't try to defeat safety mechanism, such as door interlocks.

--Don't modify equipment.

--Keep oven clean, particularly around door seal.

--If door interlock fails, don't operate equipment until it has been serviced by a competent serviceman.

--If a change in door seal operation is observable, have it checked by a competent service organization.

Nursery Accepting Applications

The Charlevoix Cooperative Nursery is now accepting applications for the September, 1976 to May, 1977 school year.

The nursery is a cooperative organization, therefore all parents are expected to help support it by both monthly tuition and active participation in the program. There are, however, a few openings for private membership at a higher tuition cost.

To be eligible for next year's term, a child must be three years of age by December 1, 1976.

Interested parents of three and four-year-olds are asked to contact Lynn Salmonson at 547-2601

Enrollment is limited, so it is to parents' advantage to register early for the class they would like and the work committee of their choice.

Zonta Club Taking Trip

Area residents interested in taking a trip to San Francisco and Las Vegas might find what they are looking for in the spring trip sponsored by the Zonta Club of Traverse City, May 8 to 15.

Cost of the trip of $575 double occupancy. Single and triple occupancy rates are also available. The cost covers air flight from Traverse City and return, hotel accommodations, side tours, two dinners and three luncheons, baggage transfers and transport between airports and hotels.

All Zonta proceeds from the trip are directed to service projects. Further information may be obtained from Mrs. J.O. Griffin, Arnold's Books, 511 South Union Street, Traverse City, 49684.

Faust Honored

Charles W. Faust of Delton, formerly of Charlevoix, was named to the Dean's List at Adrian College for the fall semester.

To achieve the honor, a student must have maintained a 3.25 grade point average on the basis of at least 12 credit hours.

Historical Society Starts Museum Building Drive

Charlevoix is one step closer to having an Historical Museum!

As a means of raising funds for the museum, and as its Bicentennial project, the Charlevoix Historical Society has undertaken the publication of a book, "Bob Miles' Charlevoix".

Over 300 Pictures

The book is a compilation of over 300 pictures of the Charlevoix area taken during the last 100 years and collected by long-time Charlevoix photographer Bob Miles. Many of the pictures were "shot" by Miles himself. Appropriate captions, written by Miles, accompany each picture.

In donating the pictures, Miles writes in the Foreward to the book, "Several years ago I discovered, to my dismay, that many of the old pictures were being lost to us forever, either by fire, by thoughtless discarding and consignment to the dump, or by being taken to unknown places as people moved away.

"Many thought these old prints had no value, but having o value can mean different things to different people. To me, these prints were priceless, for their loss meant that the very atmosphere of the old days were being blotted out forever.

First Moments of Charlevoix

"To be able to record any human experience from its beginning is rare indeed, and the old prints being lost represented the first moments of Charlevoix's existence.

"What has been happening here was the slow obliteration of our very heritage. Though it may be true that Charlevoix has no historical significance, nevertheless we owe it to the people living here in the future to look back and be able to say, 'This gives us some idea of the way it was'. What is modern now will some day be ancient, and pictures of today will be as interesting to future generations as the old ones are to us."

Limited Edition

"Bob Miles' Charlevoix" is being printed in sepia on high quality paper and bound in natural buckram. It will be a limited edition of 2,000 copies with a planned publication date of June 15. Pre-publication price is $20 a copy. After publication the price will be $25.

Each contributor of $100 to the Museum Building Fund will receive a copy of the book free. All proceeds above publication and distribution costs of all books sold will go to the Museum Building Fund.

An Historical Museum has long been planned by the Charlevoix Historical Society. Society member and past president Ralph Hamilton points out that the Society has been given o large number of artifacts through the years which are now stored in attics and basements throughout the city.

"We need a place to display those things we now have and for future donations," he says.

Museum Location

Charlevoix architect H. Jack Begrow has provided a conceptual design for the museum which will soon be on display in town. The City of Charlevoix has promised a building location on the lot between the Water Tower and Park Avenue.

Persons desiring to buy a copy of "Bob Miles' Charlevoix" at the pre-publication price of $20 may do so now by sending a check to the Charlevoix Historical Society, P.O. Box 525, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720.

School Election Monday

Charlevoix School District voters decide Monday whether or not they want to improve middle and high school facilities.

Voters are being asked to consider a $2.8 million bond proposal for a remodeling and construction program that school officials say will eliminate a serious overcrowded condition in both school buildings.

Besides the building proposal, voters will also be asked to renew a 6-mill tax levy for school operation. The levy expired at the end of last year.

School officials say the present middle school facility, built in 1927, is outmoded and desperately needs to be replaced.

To bring the building up to standards, officials say they need $386,000, to renovate the existing facility with new building construction adding another $654,000. Fees, equipment and interest would bring the total to $1.3 millian.

The renovation would include replacement of heating and ventilation at a cost $100,000 and the electrical system at a cost of $80,000; conversion of two science and shop rooms to shop and music rooms, $22,000 plus renovation of both exterior and interior of the building.

New construction at the middle school would include the building of a new gymnasium at an estimated cost of $192,000.

School officials are proposing that the present gym be remodeled into two science areas, two classrooms, administrative offices and instructional media center. Other construction would include a new kitchen addition, elevator and basement elevator passage and related construction.

At the high school, officials hope to create four new classrooms through additions and remodeling between building A and B. They also hope to construct a metal shop and multi-purpose and locker room area.

The remodeling program at the high school would include the home economics, special education departments and the general education area to business and arts and crafts, expansion of the counselor area plus carpeting in the classrooms and corridors. This proposed program would cost an estimated $1.5 million.

Freedom of Speech

As a citizen I am invoking my privilege of Freedom of Speech in expressing the following. Before long, we will be enjoying our beautiful summer season and with it some situations of great concern to me and I am sure to a lot of other people who go along with the following thoughts. This pertains to employment practices of our local businessmen, industrialists, and public works, just to name a few. I have noticed that during the summer months, many of our fine, young local people, high school and young married people, are being by-passed for jobs by the influx of numerous wealthy and college youngsters who converge here during the short summer season. For some unexplained reason, they seem to get the preference. Why? The money they earn here is taken home with them and spent in their own local communities, instead of being diverted. This does not help our already depressed economy. This is only one factor. A great number of our youth here are idle during these summer months and that creates a problem condusive to mischief. The old saying "an idle mind is the devil's workshop." Let the Chamber of Commerce, the churches, and public officials stress the importance of doing something constructive with respect to the above situation. We can all gain by it. Should any of our citizenery have a comment to make, good, bad, or otherwise, I would be happy to hear about it. Thank you for reading this item. Louis M. Picard

More Dog Tales

This is Bill Miller of Charlevoix. You've had several published articles on stray dogs. It seems the people are not making their complaints to the right parties. First, citizens are not complying with the law if they don't license their dogs and keep them confined to their own property. Second, elected and sworn officials are not doing their duty in enforcing these laws and should be called to account. The law stipulates that the dog census be taken annually and this is not being done. Prosecution of these violations is sadly ineffective.

Higbways

The Petoskey News-Review recently had an article which said that the Charlevoix Planners are going ahead in favoring a north country freeway, an additional freeway, when very conspiciously at the hearing those who spoke were against such a thing. I don't quite understand why these hearings are held if the constituents voice their opinion and supposedly government is by the people and then the planners go ahead and ignore this and say that the "deck has been stacked" and that those who spoke in opposition were not a representative group. Well, a public hearing is for all who wish to speak and it sounds to me as if these planners just plain don't accept the fact that the majority are not in favor of a new freeway which is in opposition to their own feelings. I would think that they would have to act according to the voice of the people.

City Plans 2 Hearings

Two major city hearings take place during the next six days in Charlevoix.

On Wednesday, March 10, at 7:30 p.m., the city will be holding a hearing on a proposed improvement project for Mt. McSauba.

The purpose of the hearing will be to discuss an application for federal funding under the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, Land Water funds.

The city is proposing to take over the city-owned property that has been leased to a now defunct non-profit corporation which has been operating a winter ski operation for some 20 years.

The 45-acre property located in Charlevoix Township has been used for local year 'round recreation for years.

Among proposed improvements are the addition of a hockey rink, snowmaking equipment for the ski hill, a sliding hill and a permanent summer day camp program.

On Monday, March 22, city fathers will hold public hearing on Charlevoix's proposed zoning ordinance.

The hearing, which is set for 8 p.m. in the city hall, is expected to draw a host of residents concerned abut the new ordinance.

Both the new proposed zoning map and ordinance are available for inspection at city hall.

City officials say the hearing testimony will be used by city council to determine whether or not the new ordinance should be adopted to supercede the present city ordinance that was enacted in 1945.

The proposed ordinance that was enacted in 1945.

The proposed ordinance is similar to ones being used in all 15 townships within Charlevoix County and being considered in Boyne City and East Jordan.

Those supporting the new ordinance claim it picks up where the old ordinance leaves off and deals with problems that weren't confronting Charlevoix nearly 30 years ago.

MARTY JO Warner of Charlevoix was one of many who testified Friday on the effects of PBB on humans. Turn to page 3 for more details.

Local School Superintendent Explains Property Tax Hike

Charlevoix School Superintendent James McKimmy denied rumors this week that his school district would be realizing more money with increased property taxes.

The school official said that under the current state aid formula, when State Equalized Value (SEV) increases, the amount of revenue to local school districts does not significantly change.

McKimmy was responding to Charlevoix property owners who had tax hikes this year and thought the additional revenue was going to the Charlevoix School District.

"The proportions merely change," he said about local and state money going to the Charlevoix School District.

"The person pays a higher tax bill, but the school does not get more money."

McKimmy suggested that those with increased taxes should look at the homestead exemption that calls for a 60 percent state rebate of property tax of 3½ percent of household income to a limit of $1,200.

He said senior citizens with $6,000 incomes or less may also qualify for rebates depending upon the amount of money they have earned over a year.

Inspector Opposes Code

The major objection to the State Construction Code is the requirement that certain buildings must be of "Barrier Free" design to make them accessible for use by the physically handicapped and aged, according to Dick Mayhew, Charlevoix County Building Code Inspector.

The Code provides that all government buildings, business buildings, schools, recreation buildings and other such facilities used by the general public must be constructed so they can be used by the physically handicapped and aged. Special construction features include doors, ramps and toilet facilities.

"Barrier Free" design adds considerable cost to the construction of a building, which accounts for the objections to it.

Boyne Mountain Lodge is appealing the "Barrier Free" requirements for indoor tennis courts it is planning to build, Mayhew says.

Beaver Island May Get Coast Guard Lighthouse

CLEVELAND--Beaver Island residents may soon become the owner of the U.S. Coast Guard Lighthouse at St. James.

Rear Admiral James C. Gracey, commander of the Ninth Guard District, told the Courier this week that he can't conceive of there being any problem with turning over the property to St. James Township.

The station, located near the town of St. James, has been used by local residents as a township hall for several years under a lease agreement with the Coast Guard.

Gracey said he had received a letter from Congressman Philip E. Ruppe requesting that the unattended lighthouse be turned over to the township.

Gracey said he would expect to have a definite answer concerning the lighthouse within the next few weeks.

The admiral also confirmed that the Coast Guard is considering another request to install a permanent lighted buoy in the Beaver Harbor.

WEATHER

Charlevoix temperatures last week were in the 20's and 30's except Thursday when a low of 10 degrees was reached. It was a changeable week with sunshine, some snow and an ice storm. The Charlevoix Coast Guard Station reports temperatures as follows

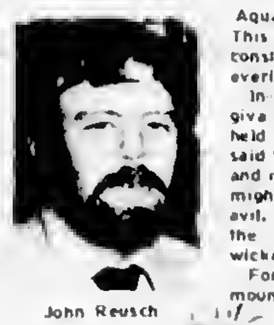
March Birthstone



John Reusch

Aquamarine is the birthstone for March. This pastel blue stone has long been considered the symbol of happiness and everlasting youth.

In the Middle Ages it was believed to give insight and foresight. If a person held an aquamarine in his mouth, it was said that he could call a devil from hell and receive answers to any questions he might ask. It had further powers over evil, since when consecrated and worn, the wearer was conqueror over all wickedness.

For lovely aquamarines both loose or mounted in rings see Reusch Jewelry.

Hypertension Clinic Being Offered

Blood pressure checks taken in Charlevoix County by the District 3 Health Department indicate that more persons than expected are suffering from hypertension.

Since October of last year the department has taken the blood pressure of 304 persons, of whom 51 were referred to their physicians for folllowup. This averages out to over, 13 percent, somewhat higher than the 10 percent referral rate usually expected, according to Health Department Nurse Sue Presnell.

The Blood Pressure checks were taken of several groups of persons over 50 years of age, of Charlevoix County employees with the exception of the Road Commission and Sheriff's Department, and of employees of the First State Bank of Charlevoix.

Another free blood pressure clinic for persons over 50 is scheduled for Tuesday, March 30, between 1:30 and 3:30 p.m. in the Charlevoix High School cafeteria.

Screenings are planned in the near future for employees of the Charlevoix Public Schools and of the Road Commission and Sheriff's Department.

The Health Department points out that hypertension is painless and may not produce any symptoms whatever in early stages. When a sign does appear it may be only a bothersome headache or dizziness now and then.

Extension Hosts Real Estate Program

A three-day short course on Estate Planning and Farm Transfer will be held in April, Ed Rebman County Extension Director, reports.

The short course will be held on Thursdays, April 1, 8 and 15, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Community Building at Whiting Park.

Speakers include John T. Murphy, Judge of Probate in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties; George Stanos, Trust Officer, State Bank & Trust Company, Petoskey; Mike Kelsey, Extension Specialist, Agricultural Economists, Michigan State University; and Jim Myers, District Extension Farm Management Agent, Michigan State University.

The program for the first session includes decision of an estate, what it is, how transfer taxes affect estates, who gets what and what is probate.

Pre-registration is required. The cost for all materials and three lunches will be $21 per couple or $14 for single persons. Anyone interested in attending is asked to contact the Extension Office immediately, phone 582-6232, for a program and pre-registration blank.

CHARLEVOIX CO-OP Nursery School students got special attention last week when they made a class visit to the Charlevoix Area Hospital. The pre-schoolers were given a tour of the facilities.

A MICHIGAN HOUSE legislative committee heard nearly seven hours of testimony from farmers across the state on how PBB affected their families and farms.

Ruppe Swings Through North

Congressman Philip E. Ruppe came to Charlevoix in an ice storm last Friday morning to talk over breakfast with his local constituents.

Citing the economic situation as "the thing probably uppermost in your minds," he noted that his Congressional District had gained approximately 18,000 people since 1970, many of whom were employed downstaters who brought their financial problems with them.

"It is a challenge to keep our quality of life yet improve economic conditions under these circumstances," he said.

The proposed closing of Kincheloe Air Force Base in Chippewa County, which now has a 20 percent unemployment rate, is another serious problem, Ruppe added.

The Congressman said he was working closely with the private sector, with such groups as the Upper Great Lakes Regional Commission and the Economic Development Administration, to help bring new industry to the area.

Ruppe voted to override President Ford's veto of the Public Works Program, he said, because of economic conditions. With the failure of the over-ride, he has introduced a less comprehensive bill but one which he believes would help the nation's economy, especially in the building industry.

The shortage of natural gas in the Midwest was also discussed by Ruppe, who said it was an important matter. He suggested that there be a hook-up with Canadian gas lines to help them bring their Mackenzie gas through. He said he now had 70 Congressional sponsors for a bill devising such a plan.

"Unless we do something, Canada might cut off its supply of gas to the United States," Ruppe stated.

Other comments by the Congressman dealt with the Great Lakes Shipping Conference which he has been instrumental in setting up so that users "could tell Federal agencies what they need instead of the other way around"; the Federal Land Use Plan, on which Ruppe has changed his mind and now believes the Federal Government should stay away from (he helped kill the bill); and the Consumer Protection Agency, which he voted against because "we don't need another bureaucracy."

Among questions of the Congressman from the floor were:

–Re-imbursement to local taxing units for Federal Lands. ("Rate should be raised").

–Seafarer. ("Michigan should have same right of refusal by referendum that Wisconsin had").

–Congressional pay raises. ("Should be voted on each time rather than made automatic").

–Federal Revenue Sharing. ("Has 60 to 40 percent of passing. I am for the program").

Cancer Crusade Starts April

Charlevoix County's Cancer Society launches its massive county-wide drive in April in an attempt to wipe out cancer.

The group will hold a kick-off coffee on Wednesday, March 24, at Anthony's Inn (formerly the Dilworth Hotel) at 1 p.m.

Larry Moore, area director for the American Cancer Society, and Dr. Harry Custer, medical chairman of the local group, will both address the organization.

"Our action program which motivated people to discuss facts about cancer and commit them to regular health check-ups are carried into all communities of the United States," says Mrs. Glenn Varnum, president of the Charlevoix County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

"The volunteers in this great fight against a great common enemy come from all walks of life.

"This people-to-people contact alerts neighbors, relatives and friends to cancer's warning signals and helps raise fighting funds."

Northern Michigan Farmers Plan March on Capitol

SAULT STE. MARIE-- Michigan dairy farmers testifying here before a special legislative committee probing PBB contamination say they will go ahead with plans to march on Lansing March 22.

Those testifying during the seven-hour hearing held at Lake Superior College claim the state is moving too slowly on their demands to stop the sale of PBB-tainted food to humans.

Farmers are insisting the state prohibit the sale of livestock, meat and dairy products contaminated with PBB. Federal regulations allow up to 0.3 parts per million in meat and milk.

Other demands include destruction of all living and dead stock contaminated with the chemical–a public hearing before the full Legislature on the PBB controversy and an investigation of the state Departments of Agriculture and Health.

Several dozen of the 125 attending the last of three hearings conducted by a special House Committee, chaired by Donald Albosta (D-St. Charles), told how they and their families have suffered from dizziness, fatigue, ulcers and other symptoms as a result of eating meat and milk products from PBB-contaminated dairy herds.

Hundreds of Michigan farmers have lost livestock as a result of using feeds mixed with polybrominated biphenyl (PBB), a toxic fire retardent chemical mistakenly sold as a feed additive in 1973. In the wake of the widespread contamination, some 30,000 cattle, hogs and chickens have died or been destroyed.

Although state health officials say small doses of the chemical in milk and meat poses no threat to humans, many testifying here say they're convinced PBB in any amount is a health hazard.

Dr. James Terrien, Chippewa County Health Department director, told the legislative group that Michigan Department of Health is being hindered from conducting desperately needed tests because it does not have the necessary funds.

He said residents in his own Upper Peninsula county are experiencing health problems –such as weight loss, ulcers and fatigue–from eating PBB-contaminated food.

"Mothers are seeing their children lose weight or stop gaining weight," he continued.

Both Dr. Terrien and other Chippewa County health officials said they don't have many resources to combat the problem. They said their department is presently developing a questionnaire to send to hospitals to find if they are having the same problems.

While indicating he appreciated the State Health Department's laboratory assistance, Dr. Terrien said the state was moving too slowly.

"I've been told a number of times they are waiting to get funding," he continued.

Chippewa County officials estimate they would need at least $10,000 to do what they think is necessary to combat the PBB problem in their community.

William Hail, a former Eaton County beef farmer, said it took nearly a year before state agriculture officials were convinced his 120-head herd had been afflicted with PBB.

"I feel we have been used and misused by the Department of Agriculture," he continued.

"I feel the governor has been dragging his feet and closing his eyes hoping it

DNR Commission Considers Safeguards For Nuclear Plants

A proposal to establish state safeguards for the construction and operation of nuclear power plants in Michigan deserves serious consideration.

DNR Director Howard A. Tanner recently forwarded a proposed policy statement governing the operation of nuclear plants to the Michigan Natural Resources Commission for its consideration this month.

Tanner, in forwarding the statement to the commission, noted that alternative sources of energy must be found to replace diminishing supplies of fossil fuels such as oil, natural gas and coal. One of these considerations should be nuclear energy.

The nuclear energy plan, which would be the first of its kind in Michigan, stresses that additional and continuous research—on the potential adverse environmental effects of all future power generating facilities must be made.

It further states that both state and federal legislation is needed to require safeguards for spent or active fuel transportation, against theft of radioactive materials, and for the ultimate safe disposal of spent nuclear fuels.

Acknowledging that "there has been much controversy over nuclear fuels and that too little is known about some of the risk involved," Tanner says he expects there will be a wide variety of opinion on the proposed policy statement from both the commission and the general public.

But, as Tanner recommends in the draft, any decision involving the problems of radioactivity and need for energy "should have full public disclosure and debate."

Tanner rightfully urges that the news media continue to fully inform the public and that citizens, in groups or as individuals, read pertinent literature, attend forums, debate the questions and come to informed conclusions.

The draft policy statement, subdivided into 11 points of reference, states as a premise that electrical energy is important to Michigan's economic and social well-being and that energy can be produced and be conserved at the same time.

Economic expansion and population growth undoubtedly will increase Michigan's future requirements for electrical energy, the DNR-prepared draft continues.

"There will be needs for some new electric power production facilities. Current technology dictates that those needs be met by either fossil-fueled or nuclear-powered generating plants.

We are not entirely sold on nuclear power as being an only alternative energy source. The recent use of plutonium at Big Rock causes us much concern, since so little is known about it.

However despite these uncertainties, we are not prepared to eliminate it as a potential major energy source.

We feel the proposal being offered to the entire DNR commission has much merit and is heading toward the general controlled situation we want to see established in Michigan.

Other points outlined in the proposal include:

–The DNR, in evaluating the proposed siting of a power plant, should recognize all the impacts of that facility on surrounding geographical and political entities.

–One agency should have responsibility for control over the design and operation of nuclear power generating facilities in the nation, with the Commission supporting the concept of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency assuming that role.

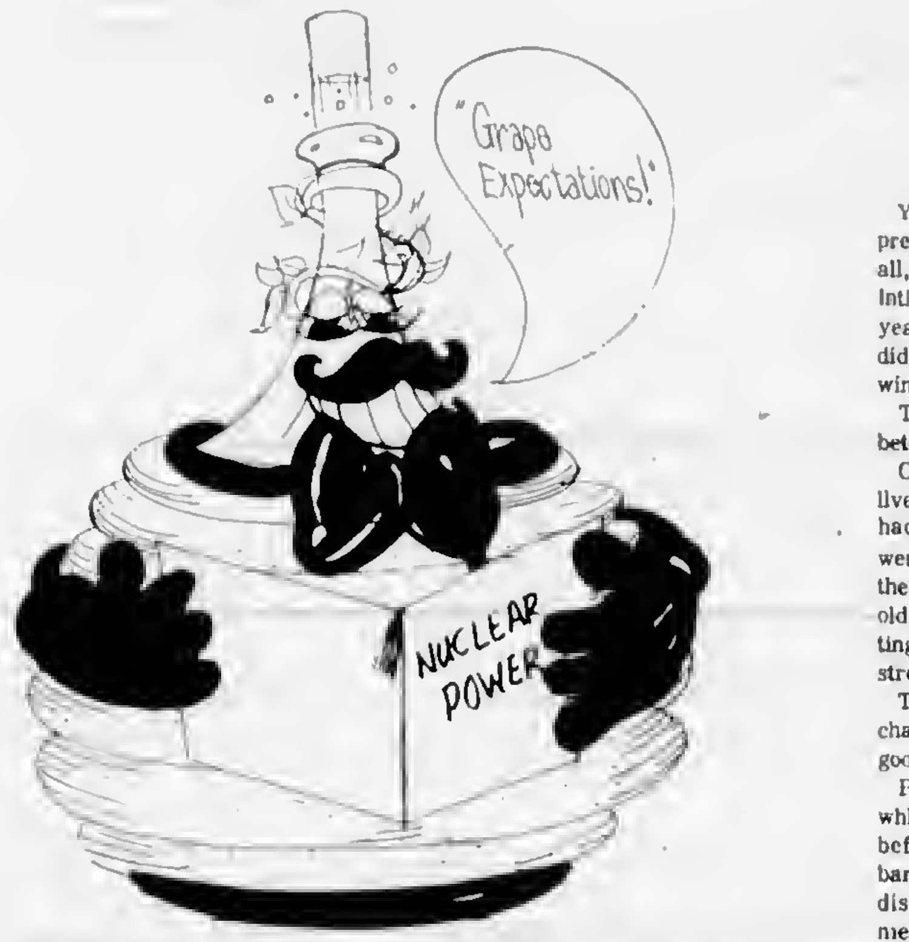
–When necessary, DNR staff should participate or intervene in licensing hearing of the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission and Michigan Public Service Commission as those hearings relate to either fossil fuel or nuclear power facilities.

--That the Commission supports continued research into radioactive and heated wastewater discharges and their effects on aquatic life and public health, and upon the effects of adverse atmospheric conditions resulting from cooling towers and ponds.

–U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission should resolve problems with nuclear plant safety, establish safety criteria for shutdown or cutback incidents, and improve emergency protective equipment.

--That state or federal agencies require continuous monitoring of nuclear power plant discharges into the environment. Also, after a plant is no longer in use, surveillance should still continue.

–Lastly, that the Commission opposes the fueling of nuclear power plants with plutonium "until existing knowledge increases and controls over the handling, use, transportation and disposal of plutonium are improved."



Letters to the editor

Supports Bond Issue

Editor,

It's that time of year again. Property owner's are recovering from the shock of paying their winter tax bills and some of them are sparing with the Board of Review over valuations that will affect future taxes. People that owe IRS for income taxes are trying to figure out how they can pay them before the April 15 deadline.

TAXES, TAXES, TAXES....it's a never ending merry-go-round which we have to face very year, and they almost always seem to go higher.

As a property owner (and taxpayer) in Charlevoix, Petoskey and Alpena I am always interested in any project that can affect my tax expense. With the combination of my personal and business "holdings" I am one of the larger taxpayers in the area, and frankly, I don't enjoy paying taxes. I do realize that to a degree they are necessary.

As a businessman I try to operate in an efficient manner and so would like to see our local governments and schools do the same. As an individual I think I have the right to object if it appears our tax dollars will not be used wisely. If I feel strongly about the issue, I speak my mind either in person or via a letter to the editor. On two occasions I successfully ran for public office in order to put my ideas across:

(1) In 1959 I became a councilman in Charlevoix on a platform that stated our city electrical rates were too high (along with Petoskey's ...the highest in Mich. at that time), and I would work to reduce them. This was accomplished in 1961.

(2) In 1969, I joined the Charlevoix School Board armed with a budget which proved that the school system could be operated (actually with curriculum improvements) for less than the administration was requesting from the taxpayers. This was accomplished.

Several years ago I wrote a letter to the local newspapers asking that the readers vote no against a Char-Em Intermediate School District proposal which would have set up a district wide vocational education program. I was and still am strongly in favor of Voc Ed. The Char-Em proposal could have taken the education from the local schools and placed it in some new facility away from existing buildings. I felt that it was also a duplicate of effort as the Petoskey school system already had a good Voc Ed facility and program which was and still is made available to the surrounding schools. Thank goodness....the voters did turn down the Char-Em proposal.

Last year a second Char-Em proposal came under fire. The voters were asked to vote tax dollars to build two new buildings at widely separated locations. The cost per student was extremely high. In my opinion the (approximate) $1 million would have been unwisely spent. I strongly suggested that the voters turn this down...and they did.

From the foregoing it might appear that I am "against the schools!" I don't look at it that way. I just want the schools to spend "our" money wisely. I don't want them going over board with fancy expensive projects. We should have good supplies and textbooks, and good teachers, and adequate facilities (but, not castles or monuments).

My whole reason for writing this letter now comes to light. The Charlevoix School District will have an election on Monday, March 22, 1976, at which time you will have the opportunity to say "yes" or "no" on a building proposal.

When I first heard that the schools were going to ask the public for funds to support a building program I was disturbed because I thought..."they are going to

Clockwise

by Bob Clock

You'd think most winters would be pretty much alike, wouldn't you? After all, Charlevoix hasn't changed its latitude or longitude one iota in the past year. Lake Michigan lies just where it did 12 months ago. And prevailing winds are still out of the west.

Then why isn't there more similarity between our winters?

Of the 11 winters the Clocks have lived in Charlevoix, only two have had any like characteristics. Those were the winters of 71-72 and 72-73 when the snow piled up over the back of the old Courier office on Bridge-st., shutting off all daylight for six weeks at a stretch.

The other winters have had characteristics all their own, some good, some bad.

Probably the best winter is one in which the snow comes early and heavy, before the ground freezes. Then, barring calamities, the snow will disappear quickly in the spring, melting into the soft earth almost overnight.

Southern Michigan never gets this kind of winter. A deep freeze usually sets in before the first heavy snow and the ground freezes to depths of up to five feet. It takes forever for the ground to thaw in the spring, turning dirt roads, vacant lots and plowed fields into quagmires.

These terrible conditions also can come about if you have a mid-winter thaw and lose some of your snow cover, followed by bitter cold weather. I am sure this happened to some places in the Charlevoix area this February after the thaw. And I am afraid one of them is a bed of transplanted peonies in our backyard.

Of course, having rain mixed with snow gives you a whole new ball game—or snow fight. Once the water-saturated snowbanks freeze, they no longer resemble snow but glacial ice packs. They will support the weight of the Russian army, fully equipped. And, unlike fluffy snowbanks, they will not disappear overnight. It will take many days of direct sunlight and balmy nights before they vanish.

This, of course, is the condition in Charlevoix this year, which is unlike any other year I can remember. When before have the snowbanks been so high and so solid in the middle of March? It might have happened, but I can't remember when.

This winter also has differed in its snow patterns.

Although a hefty drift develops almost every winter between our house and the Charles Duerr home to the east, our backyard usually remains fairly level. But not this year.

For some reason, an escarpment has developed across the middle of the yard, as high as the top of Duerrs' picket fence. The other end has virtually buried our swing set, which was badly mangled by high winds last November.

The unusual snow sculpture has given the dog a bi-level play area and she enjoys sliding up and down the icy bank in noisy pursuit of squirrels and rabbits.

Perhaps the unusual east-west drift has resulted from construction of LaCroit condominium at the foot of Dixon-ave. Closer neighbors have told me that wind patterns have changed since the huge fortress-like building went up facing the lake. I don't know. But I do know the drift didn't form before the condominium went up. And it didn't form during the first few years after it was built.

But then again the winter of '75-76 has been, is and promises to be unique for many weeks to come.

Greeting cards were originally born out of the need to say for people what they couldn't say for themselves.

I once gave my mother a card depicting a little girl in a hooped skirt knocking on the door of a cottage and saying, "You bask in the sunshine of sweetness and light . . . and make all my dreams come true . . . prithee reap the harvest of all my love . . . in everything you do. Happy birthday."

Mother smiled and said, "It sounds just like you."

"Prithee, mother," I said, "you've been basking in the sunshine too long. All I wanted to say was I'm not much, but I'm all you can afford."

Not so today. I've never seen so many cards for so many occasions saying greetings in so many ways in all my life.

Some of them you can even send through the mails.

If you put your foot in your mouth and are sorry, there's a card for it.

If you won a tennis tournament, a diploma in sheetmetal, a divorce, or passed your eye examination, there's a card for it.

Even saw one that said, "I love living with you because I've got a case on you." When you open it up, it threatens, "Marry me or I'm taking you to court."

There are marriage proposals, business proposals, vacation proposals and some proposals that are just plain indecent.

I was picking out a Valentine for my husband when a salesperson asked if she could help. "I'd like seomthing a little sentimental." "Here's one," she said, handing me a card. My ears turned red. "You wanta see my I.D.?"

"That one's not so bad," she said. "We had one that was waterproof so you could read it under a cold shower. Just tell me what you want to say and how you want to say it."

"Maybe I'll just get a Mother's Day card."

"Unwed? Underage? Unwanted? Undone? Unsung? Unexpected? Underfoot?"

"Just something that will sound like me."

"Here's one that might fit you. It's a little strange. 'You bask in the sunshine of sweetness and light and make all my dreams in accord . . . prithee, mother, you know I'm not much . . . but face it, I'm all you can afford."

Good grief.

Nixon liable to blab

An American tourist goes to China and what happens?

Congressman Don Riegle said: "All Americans should be outraged at the tasteless behavior for former President Nixon for his obvious meddling in American foreign policy...And what business does President Ford have in providing Secret Service protection to a crook like Nixon who is so shameless he still has not been man enough to say he is sorry to the American people? This is another $250,000 rip-off of the American people for a man who ought to be in jail instead of traveling the world with Secret Service protection."

Yeah. Riegle is to be complimented for his plain talk. You don't hear much of that in Congress. But still, he missed one important point. What about national security?

Everyone knows the Communists can't be trusted. Nixon himself said so for 30 years. That's how he won elections. The treacherous Commies are why 40,000 American youths died in Vietnam—to keep Red dominos from toppling into New Jersey.

If it weren't for the Communists, there would be a lot of CIA plotters sitting around with no one to plot against. The U.S. must be ever vigilant to keep the dirty Reds from stealing our secrets. If you're not careful, they might learn there is no such state as New Hampshire. It is really a TV test laboratory for NBC's computers and Walter Cronkite's sincerity.

So who knows more U.S. secrets than Richard Nixon who had CLASSIFIED stamped on his jockey shorts? He used to say ssshhh when Pat told him it was Tuesday. As President he knew all the secrets because he made them. Is it wise for the U.S. to allow all that secret information to fly off in a Communist airliner, to picnic and gossip in the shade of the Great Wall?

After all, Richard Nixon is not just another retired civil servant. He didn't want to leave the White House but he got caught in the cookie jar, with the lid closed above him. He went on TV and lied to everyone, including the thousands of people who voted for him, all of whom have since died.

As Congressman Riegle pointed out, Nixon has never admitted any guilt or remorse. He thinks he was the innocent victim of a killer press and an undeniable propensity to sweat around the upper lip. He is bitter that he must fly all the way to China to hear applause.

The Communists paid Nixon's travel expenses and honored his gimpy leg with its own private ambulance. They treated him the same way he always treated himself—like a king. This had to be heady stuff after the conclusion of San Clemente and the humiliation of being called a crook on national TV several times a week.

What more would the Reds have to do to get Nixon to blab every U.S. secret he knows? Make Julie editor of Pravda?

Nixon's friendliness with the Communists is a risk to our national security. His passport should be lifted. In the name of Alger Hiss.

Meet Charlevoix

...Pat Bayer

Pat Bayer, who has been a co-leader of the La Leche League in Petoskey, has become leader of the Charlevoix area group which held its first meeting Tuesday evening of this week. Here she tells the Courier what the La Leche League is all about.

COURIER: What does La Leche mean?

BAYER: Literally, it is Spanish for "the milk". It means life, love, and the beginning of happiness to a baby.

COURIER: What does the La Leche League do?

BAYER: Members of La Leche are dedicated to helping mothers give and enjoy giving happiness and security to their babies through breastfeeding.

COURIER: How and when was the League started?

BAYER: It all started with two mothers at a family picnic in Illinois in 1956. Now there are many groups in cities throughout the United States and other countries.

COURIER: Why is there a need for such an organization?

BAYER: Doctors agree that breastfeeding is best for babies and statistics show that over 90 percent of all mothers are physically able to nurse their babies. However, about one-third of that number are actually successful.

COURIER: What do you talk about at your meetings?

BAYER: The series of four monthly meetings includes Advantages of Breastfeeding to Mother and Baby; the Art of Breastfeeding and Overcoming Difficulties; Baby Arrives, the Family and the Breastfed Baby; and Nutrition and Weaning.

COURIER: Who is welcome at La Leche meetings?

BAYER: All interested women. Pregnant women, those who hope to have children some day, grandmothers, everyone. Mothers with nursing babies are encouraged to bring them to the meetings. A woman's ability to nurse her baby is helped by associating with other mothers who are doing it – sharing their experiences, discussing approaches, reading and understanding what it's all about.

COURIER: Do you have any printed material for use by La Leche members?

BAYER: Yes, we have several books and pamphlets which have been approved by our medical board. All meetings follow "The Womanly Art of Breastfeeding", which was written by the mothers who founded the League. We also have pamphlets with such titles as "What's In It for Mother?", "Breastfeeding and Jaundice", "Does Your Baby Need a Pacifier?", "Baby's First Solid Food", and so forth.

COURIER: Do members of La Leche furnish breast milk for babies who need it but whose mothers can't furnish it?

BAYER: Yes, but only in case of emergencies. Little Traverse Hospital has set up a breast milk bank in its neonatal unit and we help with that.

COURIER: When and where will the Charlevoix La Leche League meet?

BAYER: We will meet in various homes the third Tuesday of each month.

COURIER: Is there a membership fee?

BAYER: We do not push memberships but those who join the League pay $8 dues a year, which includes the bimonthly magazine. This isn't much when one considers that if the mother is formula feeding she would spend more than that in a week.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lloyd Cummings of Charlevoix and Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Cook, Sr., of Sault Ste. Marie.

The Rev. Austin Regier officiated at the service before an altar graced with arrangements of white gladioli in the presence of more than 200 guests. Mrs. John L. Boss, at the organ, played a program of traditional music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Lester Lamareaux Sr. of Sault Ste. Marie who sang "Time in a Bottle" and "One Hand, One Heart".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a gown of white knit fashioned with a stand-up collar, empire waist, long sleeves and full length skirt that terminated in a train. A Juliet cap trimmed with lace secured her full length veil. She carried a bouquet of red roses, white carnations, blue straw flowers and baby's breath.

Mrs. Ronald Cox assisted her sister as matron of honor. Donna Hutchison of Portland and Mrs. Gregory Sitzema were bridesmaids and Pamela Cook of Sault Ste. Marie, sister of the bridegroom, was junior bridesmaid. Mrs. Cox and Mrs. Sitzema wore navy gowns and white eyelet pinafore. As junior bridesmaid, Miss Cook wore a red pinafore jumper and white blouse. Each carried a basket of red and white carnations and blue straw flowers.

Jodi Cummings, as flower girl, wore a navy pinafore jumper and carried a basket of flowers in the bicentennial colors. Daniel Cox, nephew of the bride, was ringbearer.

Lester Lamareaux of McChord Air Force Base, Wash., served as best man. Marty Cook and Edward Cook, brothers of the bridegroom, and James Hallesy, all of Sault Ste. Marie, were groomsmen. Herbert Cummings and Terry Cummings, brothers of the bride, seated the guests.

Mrs. Cummings chose a peach double knit floor length gown with matching jacket for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Cook, mother of the bridegroom, wore a light blue floor length gown. Their corsages were of white orchids.

A reception hosted by the bride's parents, followed at the American Legion Post Home. Mrs. Herbert Cummings and Mrs. Terry Cummings, sisters-in-law of the bride, served the wedding cake. Pamela Grubaugh was in charge of the guest book. Mary Wolf served punch and coffee.

The couple will be at home at 2101 Apt. D. Woodmer Drive, Houghton, Michigan, where the bridegroom is a senior at Michigan Technological University.

Wedding guests were present from Washington, Indiana and several Michigan cities.

A rehearsal dinner, hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Cook, was held at the Cummings home Friday evening.

The title game of the Class B Independent Basketball League will be played at 7 p.m. Wednesday when Credit Union of the winner's bracket takes on the winner in the loser's bracket. The latter will be determined at 7 p.m. Wednesday when the winner of the Russell Shell-County State Bank game takes on the winner of the First State Bank-Kenney Excavating game.

If a twenty-fifth game is necessary to decide the championship it will be played at 7 p.m. March 22.

Credit Union was the winner in the winner's bracket after defeating Kenney Excavating 43-41 in the finals of the bracket on Wednesday night. In the semi-finals on Monday, Credit Union won over County State Bank 64-59 and Kenney's edged LaBlance Insurance 60-59.

Joel Donaldson scored 21 points and Terry DeVries 15 for the victors. Joe Beaudoin poured in 23 points, Dave Novotny 14 and Sam Supernaw 10 for LaBlance's.

Credit Union held a one point lead at the quarter, 12-11, before Kenney's took over 19-18 at halftime and 31-25 going into the last period. A stubborn Credit Union quintet came back strong in the final minutes to outscore Kenney's 16-10 for the two-point victory.

Gary Novoiny had 19 points and Mike Hamilton 10 for Credit Union. Joel Donaldson came through with 13 for Kenney's.

SAVE $41 TO $62 per set of four Goodyear 'POLYSTEEL' RADIALS

You've seen them advertised on TV – 'Custom Polysteel' radials are built to help avoid hydroplaning – a loss of control that can occur when tires ride up on a slippery film of water instead of the road. Eight wide tread grooves channel the water through, instead of letting it build up. With 'Polysteel', you get gas-saving radial construction too – steel cord belts for handling stability, polyester cord body for ride. Buy now and save.

Commission Looks at Home Rule

One of the more exciting experiences that the members of the Charlevoix Charter Commission had was last September (1975) when we took advantage of the opportunity to watch democracy in action during the local elections in Petoskey. That very close neighbor of ours adopted a charter under the "Home Rule" Act in 1924. The form of government they chose was the Council-manager form with the Mayor elected by popular vote at large and the aldermen by each ward.

Many cities in our nation today elect Mayors and councilmen by nominating through petition and voting in at-large, non-partisan elections. This means that the ward system, as such, is done away with and all voters cast their ballots on each nominee for each vacant seat on the council or other elective office. The entire city is one ward.

Petoskey is unique in that they have retained their ward system and even more unique in their use of ward conventions to nominate, first, ward aldermen candidates and, second, delegates to attend a city convention for the purpose of nominating city elective offices such as Mayor, Clerk and Treasurer. The ward convention presents an opportunity for the citizen to face incumbent and would-be office seekers with various concerns.

The use of the ward system in this manner to determine the leadership of the community dates back to the early days of American government when the Town Meeting was the initiating public political action. At these meetings city problems were discussed, sometimes solved and city fathers were chosen. As towns grew into cities of greater and greater populations the town meeting was divided into ward meetings of equal representation according to population.

Today's ward system in Charlevoix is reminiscent of those meetings except that we have not retained the opportunity for voters to meet with potential candidates within the ward. Petoskey has kept this idea and the result is that every voter has an opportunity to have his say at these ward conventions without the influence of a restrictive agenda schedule which is so necessary at regular council meetings.

The experience of our visit to Petoskey's fall conventions is one which has made a deep impression on each Commissioner. We feel that here is a possible alternative to "too much bureaucracy" and here is a way to get government back into the hands of the people.

There is no one who would argue that Petoskey's form of government is so perfect that they do not have problems. Quite the contrary, the fact that they have been trying to make changes in the charter show that their charter is not satisfying their every need or at least according to the feelings of those who would initiate those changes. The great part of this is that here is a form of government which cannot be changed hastily, but which must be voted on by the people.

The Charter Commission is unanimous in its belief that the Council-Mayor-administrator form of government which the city is presently operated under, is basically a good system and should be the model for the new charter. Under the charter the "administrator" would be retitled "city manager" and his duties and responsibilities would be clearly defined.

By having the council elect one from amongst its numbers to act as Mayor we would be assured of having a man who had the confidence and respect of the council team to guide its actions through the ensuing year. Continuity in government can be sustained by establishing terms of office of two years for councilmen with one half (three) elected each year. With no limit as to the number of terms which can be served we can encourage good men to become experienced and to retain their leadership of the community by the display of that leadership at the annual ward conventions.

Control of council seats by minority factions can be balanced by utilizing city-wide elections on ward candidates. In other words, the two persons we nominate for our one vacant ward seat will be chosen by the city voters at large. This will occur each year in each ward for alternate vacant seats.

The Commission feels that we are a city big enough to warrant professional management, yet small enough to feel the effects of concerns in all of the wards of the city.

Obituary

Mrs. Milton Richardson

Funeral services for Mrs. Milton M. Richardson, 56, who died Thursday as the result of injuries received in an auto accident near Nashville, Tenn., were held Monday at the Winchester Funeral Home. The Rev. Dan Minor of the United Methodist Church of East Jordan officiated. Interment was in the Norwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Richardson was a passenger in a car driven by her husband when it became involved in a three-car accident near Nashville while the couple was enroute home from a Florida vacation trip. She was dead on arrival at General Hospital at Nashville after their car was struck broad-side on the passenger's side. Mr. Richardson received minor injuries in the accident.

Born near East Jordan in Antrim county May 6, 1920, the former Alice Wilson was married to Mr. Richardson at Charlevoix in 1939. They had always resided at Norwood. She was a member of the Norwood United Methodist church and its W.S.C.S.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a son, Rodney M. of Charlevoix; two daughters, Mrs. Russell (Bonnie) Thomas of East Jordan and Mrs. Charles (Marian Kay) Skully of Cadillac; seven grandchildren; her mother, Mrs. Gladys Wilson of East Jordan; three brothers, Edward Wilson of Coldwater, Jack and Glenn Wilson, both of East Jordan and two sisters, Mrs. William Drenth of East Jordan and Mrs. Max Homacher of Grand Rapids.

The family suggests that anyone wishing to honor Mrs. Richardson's memory contribute in her name to the Memorial Fund of the Norwood United Methodist church.

Joseph Vratanina

Born in Czechoslovakia March 10, 1891, Mr. Vratanina came to Wisconsin at the age of 16 years. In 1914 he was married to the former Magdalene Kopca. They came to Charlevoix in 1928 and settled on a farm in Norwood township which he farmed until he retired. Mrs. Vratanina preceded him in death in December 1963. He was a member of the Western Bohemian Fraternal Association and a former member of the Bornard Grange and the Farm Union.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Joseph (Josephine) Statzman of Charlevoix; three sons, Edward of Croswell, Robert of Petoskey and Donald of Rochester; eight grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

David C. Austin

Funeral services for a former resident, David C. Austin, 31, who died unexpectedly at his home in Bailey on March 3 following an apparent heart attack, were held recently at the Ravenna Assembly of God Church. Interment was in Casnovia Township cemetery.

Born near Grant, Mr. Austin lived in various Michigan communities and came here in the early 1960's when his father, the Rev. Arthur Austin, was pastor of the Assembly of God Church here. He attended the Charlevoix High School and in June 1965 was married to the former Vicky VanDorn at Boyne City. They resided here until moving to Bailey in 1970. He was an electrician by trade and was employed by the Allied Electrical Co. in Grand Rapids at the time of his death.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a daughter, Karen; three sons, Dale and twins, Jerry and Dean; his parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Austin of Rapid City; two brothers and three sisters.

The body is at the Winchester Funeral Home where friends may call from 2 until 4 p.m. and 7 until 9 p.m. Tuesday.

Born in Charlevoix April 7, 1896, the former Florence U. Meggison was a graduate of the Mt. Pleasant Normal School and taught in area rural schools for three years prior to her marriage to Mr. McGhan on June 18, 1919. They resided on a farm in Marion township until moving to Charlevoix in 1958. She was a member of the United Methodist Church for 52 years, the United Methodist Women and a church-affiliated circle, was treasurer of the Sunday School for 17 years, a member of the Marion Center Home Extension Group, Marion Center Farm Bureau, the Gleoners, member and former officer of the Marion Center Grange, American Legion Auxiliary, the Northland Ladies Auxiliary of World War 1 Veterans Barracks No. 2710 and Charlevoix Senior Citizens.

Born in Ireland, the former Elsie Jebb Platzer came to this country at the age of 14 years. She resided in Toledo until her marriage to Mr. McCafferty at St. James, Beaver Island, in 1950. They lived in Toledo and Beaver Island from then until coming to Charlevoix to live ten years ago.

would go away."

Non-dairymen, such as Mr. and Mrs. Hank Babbitt, related how their 15-year-old son has been seriously ill for over a year from products sold over store counters in Sault Ste. Marie.

They said their son lost over 30 pounds in two months, and still vomits blood on occasion.

After a 11-week delay, the Babbitts said the state health department told them last June that their son had .003 parts per million of PBB in his blood.

"We have talked to almost anyone who would answer the phone," Babbitt said.

"We have gotten little response from the state.

"We've gotten very little help from anyone."

Dr. Reion Hakala, dean of Science Technology at Lake Superior State College, criticized the state Health Department for not conducting the necessary research on PBB and its effects on humans.

"We should take any food off the shelf that contains PBB," he said.

A McBain livestock trucker claimed that her company had transported PBB-contaminated cattle to a Coldwater slaughterhouse for eventual human consumption.

Mrs. William Hughsten of Hughsten Livestock said her company took 37 cattle from a quarantined from in Hickory Corners to Walter's Packing Co. in Coldwater for processing last January.

Mrs. Hughsten and her husband said that Farm Bureau had told them to truck 17 cattle from that farm to the state pit in Kalkaska, two to Michigan State University for research and the remaining 37 to Coldwater for slaughter.

She said it wasn't until two days after that they received a letter from Michigan Agriculture Department lifting the quarantine on the Hickory Corners Farm cattle.

Even then, she said the notification letter came on a Michigan Department of Agriculture letterhead in a Michigan Farm Bureau envelope.

try and put that 5 or 6 million dollar high school building on the ballot again!" This I would not be in favor of. Charlevoix needs some additional class rooms at the Middle School and the high school...but, not a whole new high school.

I have now had a chance to review the plans and I like what I see. Finally, we have a school board and administration combination that is being practical. I say this because, for a number of years certain people have been trying to sell us on the idea that the Charlevoix Middle School Building complex is obsolete, run-down, and not very usable. They have said that we should build a new building somewhere else (usually a very expensive site that the school would have to purchase) and then abandon the existing buildings. I have never agreed with this. The original school was built in 1928 (true), but, major additions were built in the 1950's and the buildings are basically very sound....and they should be saved and utilized. The March 22 proposal is to build additions to the existing Middle School. It will also renovate and make improvements, and will include a new heating system (sorely needed). The bonding proposal will also allow for expansion of the existing high school. It will close in the always troublesome breezeways between the buildings along with expanding the cafeteria and some of the classrooms.

Here are the positives in a nutshell:

1. A total of $2.8 million...not $5 or $6 million.

2. Adding on to existing buildings...not a totally new structure at some distant location. Thus...

a - No land purchase

b - No new long distance utilities to run.

I think the March 22 proposal is a sound idea. The additions should solve our growth problems for the time being and perhaps for the next several years. If the schools should grow even more in the next 5 to 10 years another addition might be necessary.

Even though I hate to pay additional taxes, I do believe that the resulting small increase that will result from this bond issue can and will be wisely utilized. I would much rather build these additions now than the fancy new buildings that someone will try to force on us soon.

I am going to vote yes on March 22, and I hope you will too!

FAITH TEACHES US THE LAW OF RETRIBUTION

One of the most commonly held fallacies is the notion that we can "get away with something". This false premise is strengthened by the sight of those around us who have apparently succeeded in doing so; while at the same time it would appear that others are being punished out of all proportion to any wrong they may have done. However, you are destined to learn that in the long run you will receive whatever reward or punishment you deserve, according to the way you have conducted your life. And that choice is yours, as is the Church you should go to in order to learn how this divine merit system works.

"Whatever a man
soweth, that shall he also reap."
— Galatians 6:7

We ought to do our neighbor all the good we can. If you do good, good will be done back to you; but if you do evil, the same will be measured back to you again

School Board Clarifies Mail Fiasco

By BOB CLOCK

Supt. James McKimmy told the Board of Education and critic Willis Peters Monday night that he has agreed with a post office request to review the content of all future bulk rate mailings in order to avoid another snafu like the one that developed over the processing of the controversial "Donaldson letter" last week.

McKimmy said the letter was offered to the board by Dick Donaldson to promote the passage of millage for building programs at the Middle and High School.

Since the letter was of a promotional nature, the superintendent said he and the board shared the costs of reproducing the letter on school stationery ($14.10) and postage under the bulk rate ($45.25).

However after the letter had been processed by the Charlevoix Post Office postal officials discovered that the mailing actually was a personal letter signed by Dick Donaldson to school district residents and should not have been mailed under the low-cost, non-profit rate.

(Wayne Chellis, temporary officer in charge of the Charlevoix Post Office, told the press Monday afternoon that the matter has been referred to the Mail Classification Branch in Detroit to get an interpretation of the legality of the mailing.)

Peters, who said he represents Citizens Information Service, asked for an apology from whomever was responsible for the error and hinted at legal action in the event the guilty parties are not punished.

Major business on the agenda was the approval of 11 probationary teachers for tenure. They are Charles Bentley, Carol Elliott, Roger Gowell, JoAnn Kravutske, Frances May, Plas Presnell, Thomas Sothard, Steven Stargardt, Henry Wagner, Jennifer Wright and James Wyns. Mrs. Mary Lou Smith was approved for second year probation on the pre-tenure ladder and continued tenure was approved for all other teachers.

McKimmy reported to the board on a meeting he held recently with Fred Brown, superintendent of the Boyne Falls School, and members of the Charlevoix County Road Commission over a great number of lost school days (six) this winter because of poor driving conditions. He said the road commission is operating on a tight budget and has cut down on its weekend and overtime plowing, leaving roads impassable on many Monday mornings during the winter. After pointing out that each lost day costs the school district between $12,000 and $14,000, McKimmy said he will meet with the road commission again before fall in attempt to redesignate priority routes for school buses.

In other business, the board:

--Learned that Industrial Appraisers, Inc., of Pittsburgh, is now appraising all school property for insurance purposes.

--Hired custodian Douglas Kuebler as building and grounds director at a starting salary of $9,000 a year. Kuebler is an industrial arts graduate but has no teaching certificate.

--Hired Gary Hice as assistant track coach at a salary ranging from $480 to $500. Board member Ardeth Wieland objected on grounds that the board may also have to provide a second girls' track coach if enough girls sign up. "We are committing ourselves to something we can't afford," she said and voted no on the proposal. McKimmy suggested that Hice be used to coach both boys and girls.

--Approval of a five-day trip to Montreal and Quebec in May for 13 members of the French Club and three adults.

--Learned from Business Manager Vincent Olach that insurance bids, except for fleet and errors and omissions, will be accepted May 7.

McKimmy also answered questions posed by Peters on ownership of the Beaver Island lighthouse property, which has been transferred from the Coast Guard to the school district. McKimmy said the district acquires a $2,000 equity in the 64 acres of land, including 2,000 feet of Lake Michigan frontage, every year. The land and building will be owned wholly by the school district at the end of 30 years.

The next board meeting is April 12.

School Bond Issue Defeated

A $2.8 million bond issue to finance a remodeling and rennovating program at the Charlevoix High and Middle Schools was voted down by a 27 vote margin while a 6.0 mill tax levy for a period of three mills gained the approval of the electorate in a special school election held here Monday.

The bond issue which would have required a maximum of a 3.0 mill tax levy for 16 years was turned down by a vote of 651 nays to 624 ayes. Approval of the millage issue would have made possible the remodeling and rennovation of the 49-year old Middle School and remodeling and expansion of the high school to alleviate the crowded conditions in the two schools.

The 6.0 mill tax levy for operational purposes was approved by a margin of 744 ayes to 531 nays. The millage is a renewal of operational millage that expired in December.

The special election brought out 1,286 voters out of a possible 4,000. Of the overall total, 11 votes were spoiled on each issue.

Council Rezones Credit Union Property

By KEN WINTER

Charlevoix City Council reversed itself Monday and cleared the way for Charlevoix Federal Credit Union to relocate on the city's north side.

The surprise move came after nearly two hours of debate when city councilmen unanimously agreed to rezone the corner of Burns and Petoskey Avenue from residential-2 (multiple housing) to office and professional.

Only four weeks ago council turned thumbs down on the proposal that would allow the credit union to build new facilities at that location.

Even though Council did grant the rezoning, several speculated that the rezoning would be invalidated because of insufficient public notice.

The rezoning decision came after the council had met as the city's Board of Appeals to consider a variance request by Julius Gilbert, owner of the property.

At that time City Attorney Don Berlage informed council of his potential conflict of interest and told them that he did not think the city had the power to grant a "special use" permit for the property.

Berlage advised the council that it could either accept or reject his opinion, get a separate legal opinion or hold the hearing.

Jack Uhrick, representing Gilbert, told council that his employer had owned the property for four years and that this had been the first offer for purchase.

He said Gilbert had some $34,000 tied up in the parcel and doubted whether any residential buyer would want it because of the high cost.

"This parcel of property has been used for Office and Professional since 1936," Uhrick said about the property that at one time was used by the health department.

He added that most adjacent property owners said they preferred the credit union over a potential apartment or service station development.

After more discussion, former Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission Chairman John Haggard told council his group had looked into some of the property along Petoskey Avenue as being designated commercial, but never completed its work since the commission had been disbanded last year.

In what one attorney termed a "Senate filibuster", city resident Thomas Duke argued against the proposed variance and refuted earlier allegations that he had intentionally attempted to mislead council and the public at the original February rezoning hearing.

In a 45-minute presentation, Duke took issue with a letter appearing in the Charlevoix Courier charging that he had not given proper information to Council.

Duke proceeded to show council some five documents that he had based his earlier statements from.

The city resident then referred to an opinion that he had the Detroit suburban law firm of Brennan and Bibeau render on the Charlevoix rezoning proposal.

The law firm concluded that council did not have the authority to grant a variance in this particular situation until council complies with the zoning ordinance.

The law firm also concluded that the proposed use would be an obvious "spot zone" and sets a dangerous precedent for further rezoning requests.

Duke continued to ask council what the purpose of zoning was if the council ignored established districts, especially a district that is primarily residential.

"It is my opinion, as is everything else that I have stated, that this council made an "uplifting" decision on February 23, when it turned down the rezoning 5 to 1," Duke concluded.

"For this council to reverse itself in the face of all of the data they have in front of them together with legal opinions will possibly be reaped in the future by their constituents as acting under gimmick or a loop-hole and raise considerable question in the minds of the citizens."

Charlevoix attorney Thomas Pointner joined Duke in objecting to the proposed variance questioning the legality of the city being able to grant a special use permit, as well as the practical difficulty claimed by the owner of the property.

TOM DUKE of Charlevoix questions proposed rezoning of Petoskey Avenue property.

Local Kidnapping Termed Unfounded

Charlevoix City Police Chief Jack Mol called off a three-week investigation of kidnapping allegations made by a Charlevoix woman this week.

Mol said claims by Rita Moses, 22, that she was kidnapped from in front of her Charlevoix apartment on the morning of Feb. 29 were unfounded.

Miss Moses alleged that she had been held against her will for 18 hours while her two captors drove her car to the Grand Rapids suburb of Wayland, where she was able to escape.

Spring Swing

Now that spring is just around the corner, I know that people will be thinking of getting out of doors and playing tennis. Last year, I can remember quite a bit of discussion on not having enough courts to play on. A thought came to me last weekend when I was out on the west end of the beach out by the co-op and the public parking for the marina. There seems to be a lot of extra land out there that possibly could be developed into more courts for tennis players on this side of town. If anyone else thinks this is a good idea, let's get some definite plans going.

Dog Ordinance

It is the belief of many Charlevoix citizens that the Sheriff's Department has no intention of trying to enforce the dog ordinance in the city. Dogs run at will on the north side of town. They run at will on the south side of town, where the department is located. They run at will in the valley. It has been noted that a call to the department gets no immediate response. It has been noted that the department fulfills the letter of the law by checking the report hours after the report has been given. Of course, the stray dog is miles or at least blocks away from the scene by the time the dog wagon shows up. Perhaps the department should be eliminated and the cost subtracted from the taxpayers tax bill. Let the dogs breed at will. When there are so many more dogs than people, let the people move out and give the town to the dogs.

Proposed City Zoning Ordinance Gets Cool Reaction

Charlevoix City Council took no action on a proposed new city zoning ordinance after receiving a cool reaction Monday during a public hearing held at city hall.

Council was using the hearing to determine whether or not the new ordinance should be adopted to supercede the present city ordinance that was enacted in 1945.

Robert Steadman, a Traverse City attorney representing Douglas Bathey, questioned both the proposed scenic reserve and planned unit development (PUD) districts proposed under the new ordinance.

Under the PUD district, new development would be required to go under close scrutiny with assurances that the development would not detract from the character of the area. The district is being proposed for both the Pine River Channel and the south side of Round Lake, areas where Bathey owns property.

The new zoned district called "scenic reserve" is evidenced along the lakeshore and required to be consistent with lakeshore uses.

Steadman said the proposed ordinance was extremely complex for a city already so developed.

Robert Schleman, another lakefront property owner, joined Steadman in questioning the proposed "scenic reserve" district and wanted to know why Charlevoix needed a new ordinance.

"How can you do this to private property?" asked Charlevoix Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud, who said he had been paying property taxes for 40 years and didn't want it to revert to the public.

Jack Malpell questioned the absence of a marine district in a community with a natural harbor, while Dawson Way, another Charlevoix resident, said he was concerned about proposed setback requirements.

Charlevoix County Commissioner Oscar Ward called the ordinance dynamite.

"This (the ordinance) is revolutionary," he continued.

"I might go as far to say it is un-American."

Ward said he was particularly concerned about the power being proposed for an appointed planning board.

Mayor Hansen indicated that the ordinance has been worked on since 1964, when Williams and Works of Grand Rapids had been hired to develop a master plan for the Charlevoix-Charlevoix Township area.

Hansen suggested that those who have public comment should submit it in writing to city hall.

Councilman Ralph McRae said he would like to see a planning commission established to handle the public comment and work on the ordinance.

Mt. Sauba Sports Park Project Gets Favorable Nod

Charlevoix may soon have a winter-water wonderland of its own following a public hearing Wednesday on Mt. McSauba that drew no opposition.

City Council members instructed Dwight "Ike" Boss, recreation director, to file a preliminary application with the federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation for land-water funds to make improvements at the park following the hearing.

Formal approval of the application process was given by the council two weeks ago.

"The time for whispering about this project is over," Mayor Ed Hansen said at the public hearing. "We've been talking about improving this area for 20 years.

"If there were any objections to it, we would have heard by now," Hansen said. "It's time to start doing things.

"This is just like the waterfront project," the mayor continued. "We talked about it for 20 years and now we've got it.

"It's time to work on this (Mt. McSauba) now," he concluded.

Multipurpose Complex

The city recreation department is proposing to take over the operation of the 60-acre site following the collapse of the Charlevoix Mt. McSauba Recreation Corporation, which has been operating the slope for nearly 20 years. The city had leased the city-owned property located north of Charlevoix in Charlevoix Township to the nonprofit corporation.

At the public hearing, Boss presented a plan proposing the construction of a multipurpose building to be used as an additional warming house in the winter and for a day camp in the summer, the construction of a hockey rink, basketball courts and tennis courts, the construction of a loop drive to the beach area, the widening of the current ski hill, and the creation of a sled and toboggan hill and a picnic area.

"After these improvements, this won't be just a winter sports park, it will be a place for year 'round use," Boss explained.

"It will definitely be a community facility," the recreation director continued, "for school district-wide use."

The recreation director estimated all the improvement could be made at the park with a minimum amount of funds from the city coffers.

"We have a project here, that if enough people donate their time and equipment, we can have a nice area without costing the taxpayers any money," Boss explained.

Volunteer Help

If enough volunteer help can be found to give us the equivalent of the amount of matching money we have to have to get the grant from the federal government, then the project won't cost the city anything," he said.

"Initially the city will have to stick some money out for this," he said. "But it's money they'll get back.

"If we can supply the labor and the equipment, the federal money will buy all of the supplies," he said.

Boss stressed that it was important to begin construction on the project as soon as possible.

"Now's when we can get the equipment and the volunteer help," he said. "And now's when this has got to be done.

"We'll lose all of our volunteer help after this spring," he explained. "They'll want to use their equipment on their own jobs." jobs."

No objections were raised against the plans for improving the Mt. McSauba recreation area. However, Oscar Stroud, Charlevoix Township supervisor, said township residents would be concerned about the increase of traffic on Mercer Boulevard projected to be caused by the proposed park improvements.

Boss explained that he was proposing to make McSauba Road one way from Waller Road to Pleasant Street to cut down on the traffic on Mercer Boulevard.

Support Leaded

Stroud said the township residents would also be concerned about the operating hours of the park. Boss assured the supervisor the park would be closed by midnight or 1 a.m. He said improving the roads in the park would make them easier to patrol, too.

Another resident at the public hearing expressed his whole hearted support for the project.

"This is a beautiful piece of real estate," the resident said. "It's just another club we have not only for the resort people, but for our own people, too.

"I feel if we can get this shaped up it will suit everyone from age 6 to 96."

Baby Pollution: High School Students Probe Birth Defects

By Peg Ohle

Juniors and Seniors in Charlevoix High School were asked to broaden their concerns about the environment, at a meeting last Wednesday.

With the theme that while much still needs to be done about protecting our external environment, a group of speakers and a film strip told about the necessity of protecting our first environment – that within the mother's womb.

They stressed that when internal environment is polluted, when conditions are inhospitable to life, death or damage may result.

The meeting was sponsored by the Charlevoix County March of Dimes, which spent most of the money it raises to help prevent birth defects.

Specifically, problems caused by venereal infections, drugs and malnutrition were discussed.

Syphilis and gonorrhea can cause babies to be born blind or deaf, with nerve or bone damage and, in case of syphilis, with the disease itself, the students were told.

Dr. William Mosher said there was a free clinic in Petoskey, under the guidance of the Planned Parenthood Association, where testing for the treatment of venereal diseases is provided. He stated that venereal diseases were transmitted by sexual intercourse and even by close association without intercourse. Any obvious lesions should be checked by a doctor to determine whether or not a person is infected and immediate, complete treatment obtained in positive cases.

The only way to prevent contacting venereal diseases is to exercise caution and avoid exposure.

Worthy Trufant of the Substance Abuse Center reiterated some of the facts pointed out in the film about how drugs affect the unborn child. Such drugs as "speed" which decrease the appetite and desire for rest by the mother are bad for the developing baby, she said.

Of even more serious consideration is the fact that two-thirds of the babies born of mothers addicted with heroin and other hard drugs suffer withdrawal symptoms at birth.

Proprietary drugs, even aspirin, should be used during pregnancy only with a doctor's sanction, Ms. Trufant added. Cigarettes and alcohol may also have harmful effects on the unborn child.

Dr. James Geis told the students about the importance of nutrition to prospective mothers and their babies. It is important for young women to develop good eating habits long before they become mothers, he said, because "it is kids who live on pop, pizza and potato chips who get into trouble."

It had earlier been pointed out that "the time to start feeding a baby is several years before it is born." It was also stated that one of every ten babies born of mothers under 18 years of age have some kind of physical or mental illness or handicap. The babies are apt to be underweight or premature.

Dr. William Waters, Petoskey pediatrician, spoke on child care, which must begin after the baby is born, so all the internal pollutions of infections, drugs and poor foods are concerns of the pediatrician.

The major causes of infant mortality, according to Dr. Waters, are premature deaths and respiratory distress. Work in preventing infant deaths is paying off, however. There was a decrease of seven percent in the number of infant deaths in 1974 compared to 1973.

The March of Dimes undertook the fight of birth-defects after the conquest of polio because birth defects are a far more serious menace than polio ever was. The March of Dimes now directs its programs in research, medical services, professional and public health education to the problem. The meeting with the high school students was part of its education program.

Besides the specific causes of birth defects discussed with the students, the March of Dimes is concerned with other causes, including heredity, rubella (German measles), and Rh blood types.

The White House on 10 Cents

By KEN WINTER

EN ROUTE FROM ST. LOUIS–It took years of being a Grand Rapids congressman for Jerry Ford to get into the White House.

Others have spent millions of dollars on political campaigns and never even gotten a glimpse of the Oval office. I might make it on a 10-cent stamp.

Sound impossible? I might have thought so until last Thursday and even then I had to pinch myself to make sure I wasn't dreaming.

But a 10-cent stamp placed on an application filled out last summer landed me right smack in front of a 10-member regional panel of the President's Commission on White House Fellowships in St. Louis.

The group of top businessmen and educators were trying to figure out why I should be one of 14 out of some 41,000 young people to work in the White House for a year.

As I sat in the day-long inquisition, I sort of chuckled to myself. If the 10-member panel only knew what I had gone through to get to the interview, I probably wouldn't even have qualified for a pass to take a public tour of the White House.

Who else could have a less-than-two-day-old car not start the day they're supposed to rush to the airport to catch a fight to St. Louis?

Worse yet, who do you tell about misreading the airline ticket and getting to the airport an hour too early, only to think that you missed the one flight to Chicago? Not the empty ticket counter or passenger waiting area.

Even after I got on the plane for Chicago, luck continued to be with me. I spilled part of my drink on the passenger next to me, which of course led to a cordial conversation all the way to O'Hare.

Then there was O'Hare. I stumbled down the passenger gateway with my garment bag in hand, scouring the endless corridors of gateways looking for my flight to St. Louis.

Too proud to ask anyone, I continued to trip up and down the people filled hallways only to discover that where I wanted to be was next door to where I got off.

With another hour to wait, I decided to buy a Chicago paper from a nearby newsrack to find how the downtown papers compare to the metropolitan Charlevoix Courier. No way could they come close.

Having only greenbacks, I decided to go the concession stand next to the newsrack to buy a hot dog and with the change buy the paper. You wouldn't have thought it could be that tough.

So I joined the several other hundred in line and finally grabbed my foil-wrapped hot dog and flashed the greenback in front of the nose of the cashier.

In case you can't guess what happened. I held my hand out for the change and got a funny look from the Cashier. Hot dogs in Chicago cost $1.

Now with only five minutes to spare, I climbed aboard my plane for St. Louis.

Except for the 30 minutes I spent in St. Louis trying to flag down a taxi, things went rather smoothly. I got to my hotel and spent three hours reading national magazines and newspapers to update myself for the next day's interview. Somehow, I didn't think Charlevoix's proposed zoning ordinance would have much interest to the senior vice president of Anehueser-Busch or to the president of Wichita State University.

Then, after only six hours of tossing and turning in bed, I proceeded to get ready for the interview. And, like the thousands of other Americans who travel every year, I forgot my toothpaste and razor.

Those are only minor problems, solved by dashing down to the hotel gift shop and making a few quick purchases. But what happens when your only clean shirt has a button pop off?

It's then that a cold sweat starts pouring down your face as you realize that there's only an hour left before a group of 10 distinguished community leaders will spend eight hours trying to size you up.

Now, completely relaxed, you leave the hotel and walk down the street to a tall office building called the Pierre Laclede. You push the elevator for the 14th floor and walk out looking for the Library of the St. Louis Club. But all you can see are doors marked "IBM". It doesn't take long before a security guard comes and says that you're in the wrong tower of the twin building complex.

WHAT'S NEW!
'SCOOP'

Finally, after a few more elevator rides, you arrive. After some brief introductions, you're escorted into a small room where an interview panel is ready to begin its inquisition.

You sit down in the lonely overstuffed chair facing the panel and hope they don't notice that one of your socks is blue and the other black. All you can think of, is "what national and world problems are they going to ask you to comment on?"

Teenage Girls Are the Ones Who Suffer

"Every revolution has its casualties and the sex revolution is no exception," wrote Chicago Tribune columnist Joan Beck recently.

Among the walking wounded in its wake are the teenage girls who are getting pregnant, having abortions and becoming unmarried adolescent mothers in epidemic numbers.

The casualty list goes like this:

–About one million teenage girls become pregnant in the United States every year now–one out of ever 15 or 16 girls between the ages of 13 and 19. About 400,000 of these young women have abortions.

–The number of unmarried mothers who are 18 or younger has jumped 75 percent in the last five years.

–An estimated three to four million teenagers are sexually active. Of these, only 10 to 20 percent use any kind of contraceptive consistently. Of those who do not use birth control devices, seven in 10 think they cannot become pregnant.

–One of every five babies–and one in every three first born infants–has a teenage mother. Almost all of these children are not planned.

–Teenagers account for more than half of all out-of-wedlock births and more than one-third of all abortions.

–Seventy-five percent of all births to teenage mothers involve some kind of public welfare expenditures or subsidy.

Some may look at these figures and quickly point out that they're national statistics and have no bearing on the teenagers in our community.

But, only last month, the District 3 Health Department reported that in the four counties it covers, Charlevoix, Emmet, Antrim and Otsego, there has been a marked upturn in the number of cases of syphilis and gonorrhea during the last year.

They reported there were 70 cases of veneral disease in the two-year period 1973 and 1974, but in 1975 alone the number reached 65.

The Health Department further reported that because of the nature of the disease, it knows the number of unreported or undetected incidences of the disease greatly exceeds that number.

To help stem the alarming situation, the Health Department asked the help of all school systems in the area in teaching veneral disease education.

Fortunately for Charlevoix, the local chapter of March of Dimes wasted no time in setting up a program for youngsters at our high school.

Headed by Mrs. Janet Ready of Charlevoix, a local group of physicians and other interested parties spoke to high school students about the "pollution of pregnancies."

Armed with visual aids and a host of local resource people, the volunteer group talked to the young teenagers honestly and frankly about the effects of veneral disease and drugs during pregnancy.

Getting pregnant is a rotten break for an unmarried teenage girl. It causes embarrassment and shame, leads to trouble with parents, forces an adolescent to play an adult role before she is ready.

It usually cuts schooling short, and forecloses chances for a good job. A teenage mother runs higher medical risks than slightly older women and is less likely to get early prenatal care; her baby is more likely to be premature, to have birth injury or other complications, to get of to a poor start.

Public law states that public schools of the state should teach the principal modes by which each of the communicable diseases are spread and the best methods for the restriction and prevention of such disease.

Syphilis, gonorrhea and other veneral diseases are defined as dangerous communicable disease.

Although public law does not mandate that sex education be taught in the public schools, it is permitted.

We feel the only way the problems of teenage pregnancy can be combated is through local education efforts such as was presented last week by the March of Dimes.

Our hats are off to the local doctors and other interested persons who were willing to take a few minutes from their busy schedule to present a program at the Charlevoix High School.

The time they spent with our youngsters, was, in our estimation, time well invested.

Questions Nuclear Safety

To the Editor:

The recent resignation of three top G.E. engineers on the question of nuclear safety, underscores the validity and importance of the testimony that was brought during the AEC's national safety hearings in 1972, which discredited the safety research practices of G.E. and other nuclear manufacturers.

Internal documents that had been suppressed by the former Atomic Energy Commission (now the Nuclear Regulatory Commission) were released through the vigorous efforts of citizens' attorney, Myron Cherry, and placed in the public record. (Because of the background on nuclear safety research deficiencies which he acquired in the Midland and Palisades reactor licensing procedures, Attorney Myron Cherry was the chief counsel for the citizens' groups at the national safety hearings.) These documents dealt with the test results of a key testing program on which the AEC was relying for licensing of nuclear plants and for its public assurances of reactor safety.

In this testing program, the manufacturers were paid to perform sensitive tests on their own safety systems. The G.E. BWR-FLECHT Program and the Westinghouse PWR-FLECHT Program were especially designated in the memos. These internal memos, written by AEC experts who inspected the work performed by the manufacturers, documented the shoddiness of the testing program and indicated the major conflicts of interest involved in the program that gravely weakened the results. The tests conducted by the manufacturers were performed so poorly that the AEC experts analyzing the tests for the Commission reached the conclusion that the manufacturers were in effect deliberately sabotaging the experiments to prevent weaknesses in their safety systems from being exposed. Moreover, at these national safety hearings, AEC experts were permitted to testify for the first time at public hearings. The majority of AEC reactor safety experts seriously questioned the validity of the AEC official position on reactor safety.

The Union of Concerned Scientists, an MIT-Harvard based group of scientists who provided the technical expertise for the citizens' groups, brought out these facts in a press release (October 27, 1972.) However, little public attention was given to these matters at that time. Instead, the utilities, the nuclear industry and the AEC continued to inundate the mass media with the message that nuclear power was safe, clean and economical.

When Dan Ford of the Union of Concerned Scientists brought out these facts and other cover-ups of nuclear safety at the nuclear conference at the University of Michigan last fall, Dr. Dixie Lee Ray, former Chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, who was also on the panel of speakers, categorically denied them. Yet these facts were already established in the public record through sworn testimony during the national safety hearings during her tenure as Chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

The resignation of the G.E. management-level engineers over their doubts on nuclear safety, and the resignation of Dr. Robert Pollard from the Nuclear Regulatory staff over that agency's cover-up of serious safety questions, now convirm these research and safety deficiencies in the nuclear program.

It is not easy to admit you are wrong.

But I was wrong when I jumped to the conclusion that the Charlevoix Board of Education was trying to pull a fast one on the U.S. Post Office and the people of Charlevoix when it sent out a private letter from Dick Donaldson to school district residents under the school's bulk rate permit last week.

But the truth came out at Monday night's school board meeting.

The mailing, in case you didn't receive one, presented a strong case in favor of millage for expanding and remodeling the Middle School and the High School.

The letter, itself, was a little unusual because, as most of you know, Mr. Donaldson tends to squint at school district expenditures more intently than the rest of us. He is not one to spend money recklessly and you may be sure he gave the school building proposal the closest scrutiny.

And he liked it.

Because of Mr. Donaldson's reputation for "telling it like it is," he offered the school board a letter of endorsement on its building plans and the board accepted. It seemed like a rather economical means of promoting the project since the letter was to be sent out under the school's bulk mailing permit to approximately 2,500 school district residents.

However the board realized this wasn't an ordinary mailing—like the school remodeling plans we all received under the bulk permit two weeks ago. Mr. Donaldson's letter was an out-and-out pitch for passage of the needed millage.

So Supt. Jim McKimmy kept track of how much it cost to reproduce the letter $14.10) and how much it cost to mail the letter ($45.25) and made arrangements to pay it out of his own pocket, with contributions from some of the more affluent members of the board.

The letters were stapled shut and were processed by the post office just as any other mailing by the school district under its non-profit bulk permit.

It wasn't until after the Donaldson letters had been delivered that the post office people became aware that they had handled 2,500 personal letters under the low cost (1.8 cents per piece) bulk rate. Faces were red all over town.

Wayne Chellis, temporary officer in charge of the Charlevoix Post Office, has referred the matter to the Mail Classification Branch in Detroit which will rule on the legality of the mailing.

Pending a decision, Chellis has asked and received permission from Supt. McKimmy to review all future mailings under the bulk rate permit before the mailing is made to determine if it is eligible for the reduced rate.

What worried me at the point is who will foot the bill if the Mail Classification Branch decides that more money is due in the mailing of the Donaldson letter.

Supt. McKimmy and his board have paid for the reproduction and mailing of the letter, which came to a total of $59.30. However, if Detroit decides each letter should have carried a 13-cent stamp, the postage bill alone will climb to $325.

If Detroit decides the letter could have qualified for the regular bulk rate of 6.8 cents per piece, Supt. McKimmy and his board will be out $102, plus an additional $55 for a new bulk permit in Mr. Donaldson's name.

Hopefully, the Mail Classification Branch will recognize an honest mistake for what it was and simply warn the superintendent and school board "to go and sin no more."

If there is a lesson in this tangled mess it is this:

Members of school boards and other public bodies should not be expected to dip into their own jeans to promote pet projects which they feel are in the public interest.

Needless to say, school board members are poorly compensated for the hours they devote to public business. If they, in good conscience, come up with a building proposal they feel the community needs and can afford, they surely have done more than their share.

It is unfair to expect them to deplete their own treasuries in promotional ventures when they already have given so much of their time and talent.

Such building projects should sell themselves, with the cooperation of a friendly citizenry and a public spirited press.

Erma Bombeck

If there is anything in this world as fiercely independent as a microphone, I don't know what it is.

I mean, imagine this year is 1775. At the Provincial Convention in Virginia, statesman Patrick Henry rises to his feet to make an impassioned plea for liberty or death. He approaches the microphone and as the entire assembly awaits his first words he asks, "Can everyone in the back hear me?"

Those seven words have preceded more speeches than the proverbial cocktail hour.

In ten years of lecturing, I have seen microphones go from an occasional passive screech to real screaming militants. To begin with, microphones do not like to be touched by a union or otherwise. Because I am short, I tried to adjust one the other week. I gave it just a simple tweak, mind you, and it went as limp as a $2 permanent in a sauna. I gave the entire speech from a squatting sprinter's position.

Some microphones work great as long as you blow into them. So you stand there like an idiot blowing and saying, "Are we on? Can you hear me?" Everyone admits they can hear you blowing. It's only when you speak the microphone goes dead.

Other have a weird sense of humor. They're punch-line poopers. You'll be sailing along with a three-minute story, building to a big pitch and just as you say, "So why isn't the dog drinking his daiquiri?" the microphone goes silent and you're left muttering, "Gee, I guess you had to have been there."

Some speakers spend half their lives looking for the on/off switch of microphones. There aren't any. I've looked for them under the light, on the shelf, on the side, the goose neck, off-stage. I suspect most of them are triggered by a remote control in a 1936 pickup truck in a garage across from the auditorium.

I have been warned that some microphones are super sensitive and

Grandpa Snaps His Fingers

It was a time, again, to be reminded of how sweet it was before the balloon began to burst.

They don't make balloons the way they used to. But little girls haven't changed, thank you, God.

3-year-old Melissa came visiting for a week. She calls me Papa, a dreadful name for a cool swinger who still snaps his fingers in Frank Sinatra style, come fly with me. But I tingle when she says it in a restaurant and I'm sure the people at the next table are whispering to each other, "That beautiful child looks like her father, doesn't she?

But Melissa is my grandchild, and not the only one I have, either. There is also 6-year-old Michelle who couldn't come visiting because she's so big she has to go to school, And there's tiny John. I'm a grandfather 3 lousy times, for Lord's sake.

But come fly with me anyway. The kids' mother was outrageously young when she got married. I must have worn argyle sox and a beanie to the wedding.

Anyway, it had been an exhausting day at the office. The editing chores had been as usual but there were also 3 nose-to-nose visits from readers who objected obscenely to some participles I had dangled in their soup. So I was looking forward to home and a tinkly glass and Mike Douglas on TV, hopefully with a gorgeous guest, female, not Gabor.

But Melissa met me at the door with a deflated balloon, a long skinny one. She said Grandma didn't have enough wind, a deficiency I'd never noticed. So I had to blow it up, right now.

Sure thing. I used to be an expert at blowing up balloons. My Aunt Madeline sold insurance and she was always giving my kids balloons for me to blow up. Each one had a friendly message printed on it: "Your Premium is Due."

So I sucked in deeply, put rubber to mouth, and blewwwww. My eyes feel on the floor and my cheeks got their first look inside my ears. But the balloon remained long and skinny.

Papa had failed. He was of no more use than Grandma. Melissa began to miss her father, a disgustingly muscular young man who lettered in 22 sports just the other day. He could probably blow up that balloon with his nose.

No way was I going to back up from the challenge. I took off my coat and took a running start at that lousy balloon. The wind came up wearing toenails. The balloon was half-inflated when I paused to check my vital signs. That was a mistake. The air rushed out of the balloon and back into me, whoooooosh!

I got up off the floor and tried again, Gunga Din. This time I kept blowing until Grandma could read the balloon's message. "Give yourself a break today," she read.

And the balloon burst. Bits of rubber flew everywhere. What's that Kotter kid say on TV? Up your nose with a dirty hose? That's how I felt. But there was no time to parade my wounds.

Melissa's lower lip was beginning to quiver. Her wide eyes were getting wet. I had broken the balloon that clown at McDonald's gave her. I was on the verge of villainy. But I remembered my child psychology....

I laughed. I rolled on the floor, yucking all the time. I urged Grandma to laugh too. ("We've gotta convince the kid this is funny.") And it worked. Melissa laughed too. Dr. Spock couldn't have done it better, especially with a nose full of rubber.

Melissa even climbed into my lap and let me nuzzle her neck while she giggled. Grandma said something and that's when I concluded it would be a marvelous world if half the people in it were 3-year-old girls, chubby, and the other half were boyish grandfathers, finger-snapping. No Grandmas necessary.

What Grandma said was: "This is so much fun. I have another balloon, so let's do it again."

Meet Charlevoix

Patty Muma

Patty Muma is County chairman for the American Cancer Society Crusade. Here she tells the Courier about the upcoming Crusade and the need to continue work in cancer detection and research.

COURIER: When will the Cancer Crusade take place?

MUMA: During the month of April. Door-to-door collections will be made during the first 17 days and the last part of the month we will have other fund-raising activities, a bake sale, luncheon, bazaar. We will put "buck boards" in the local taverns so that patrons can make their contributions easily and will give an award to the tavern collecting the most money. We will also have a "Send a Mouse to College" campaign in the schools so that children may buy a mouse for a small donation.

COURIER: How much money do you hope to raise in Charlevoix County this year?

MUMA: Our quota is $12,750, which is $1,000 more than last year. We met our quota last year.

COURIER: How is the money you collect spent?

MUMA: Half of it stays in the county. It goes to help stricken cancer patients with such things as transportation to and from the hospital, wheelchairs, dressings and medication. We also award three nursing school scholarships to Charlevoix County students, conduct a breast cancer clinic at the Charlevoix Hospital and make cancer education films available for organizations and schools.

COURIER: How is the rest of the money spent?

MUMA: For research, treatment and education of cancer throughout the country. Currently, 17 Comprehensive Cancer Centers funded by the National Cancer Institute are carrying out high priority research and providing expert treatment for cancer. When completed, the network of centers across the nation will provide the American public with the best treatment available today within easy reach of every family, directly or through referral services.

COURIER: How much progress has there been against cancer?

MUMA: In the early 1900's few cancer patients had any hope of long-term survival. In the 1930's fewer than one in five were alive at least five years after treatment. In the 1950's the rate grew to one in four. Now the rate is one in three.

COURIER: Who gets cancer?

MUMA: Anyone can get it. It kills more children three to 14 than any other disease and the older one gets the greater the chances of getting cancer.

COURIER: Can cancer be prevented?

MUMA: Some cancers but not all. Most lung cancers are caused by cigarette smoking and most skin cancers by too much overexposure to direct sunlight. These cancers can be prevented by avoiding their causes. Certain cancers caused by occupational or environmental factors can be prevented by eliminating or reducing contact with agents that cause cancer.

COURIER: Why is early detection of cancer important?

MUMA: Because more people die of cancer which could have been cured or prevented than of cancer for which a cure has not yet been found.

COURIER: The Cancer Crusade is a worthy cause. Who else is working on it?

MUMA: Mrs. Maurice Dixon is County Treasurer, Mrs. Leroy Buchanan and Mrs. Michael Seymour are Charlevoix Co-Chairmen, Mrs. Robert Potter is Rural Co-Chairman, Mrs. Harvey Varnum Boyne City Chairman, Mrs. Donald Russell East Jordan Chairman, and Mrs. Anthony Kullik Boyne Falls Chairman.

COURIER: If other people want to help, whom should they call?

MUMA: I would be glad to have them call me at 547-9335. By the way, the coffee for all County volunteers will be held today (Wednesday) at 1:30 at Anthony's Inn in Boyne City. Charlevoix area volunteers will gather at the American Legion Hall at 1 o'clock so we can go together.

Commission Considers Grants Officer

The question of whether or not Charlevoix County should have a Grants Research Office will be brought before the Board of Commissioners next month.

A motion recommending such as office was passed by the County Planning Commission at its last meeting with the thought that such an office would assist the county and local units in obtaining grants for current and future projects.

In the summary of information prepared for the Commissioners by Director of Planning Bill Mercer, he points out that a good grants officer will return ten dollars for every one dollar spent in funding an office. However, it is stressed that while the Planning Commission supports the suggestion, much additional study must be undertaken before such an office can be created.

Mercer's report indicates that it would cost the county anywhere from $17,000 to $24,000 to operate a Grants Research Office and that for that money it could expect an average yearly return of $169,000 to $242,000 in grants.

Some of the questions which Mercer feels must be asked are:

(1) Is this program needed in Charlevoix County?

(2) Are the federal "strings" attached to grants desirable?

(3) Do all 20 political units desire this service?

(4) Should this be a separate office or under an existing department?

(5) Who will be in charge of grants administration?

(6) Can we develop $169,000 plus worth of projects each year?

Horse Show Planned

Area horsemen are invited to participate in the two-day English Clinic and Tack Sale April 24 and 25 sponsored by the Northwestern Michigan Horsemen Association in Traverse City.

The clinic will feature English equitation on April 24 and dressage and jumping on April 25.

Calico Hen Clothing Store Opens for Business in Market

There is a new shop in Charlevoix that mothers and grandmothers of small children should not miss!

It is The Calico Hen, located in the Market Mall on Bridge Street. Formerly the Family Butter Churn, the shop specializes in infants wear and clothes for girls up to size 14 and boys to size 7.

The Calico Hen also has its own line of clothes for little boys and girls hand made by local seamstresses. These are especially for grandmothers to give!

Jo Poitras says the shop handles "a general line of good quality merchandise sold at reasonable prices." This includes infant accessories such as diaper bags, infant sets, tote bags with bottle, bibs, blankets and quilts and booties.

For older children, there are dresses, slacks, jumpers and sleepwear.

Fun things for children are also available – wooden and stuffed toys, dolls, blocks, puppets.

Bob Poitras still makes the same handcrafted antique reproductions on special order that he did when the shop was the Family Butter Churn. His specialties are cradles, trestle tables, sugar bins and dry sinks.

Jo and Bob invite you to stop in if just to say "hello". As the name indicates, Bob is of French heritage. He grew up in Montreal and once took a 5,000 mile canoe trip across Canada, a trip which has been written about in the book "Canada by Canoe." Bob also paints in oils and some of his work is for sale in the shop.

Jo comes from Monroe, the daughter of a business man. "I grew up in the business world," she says. She believes it was her love of antiques and Bob's ability to reproduce them that brought them together.

THE CALICO HEN is one of Charlevoix's newest stores that is featuring children's clothing. The store is located in the Market on Bridge Street.

Genuine Stones

While diamonds and other jewelry have been increasing in value, genuine colored stones have been going up proportionately higher. This naturally makes them an excellent value and customers are placing greater demand on them. The beauty beyond the stones themselves is that no matter what color, size, or shape a customer likes, there is a potential stone to fit their wants and pocketbook.

While genuine stones cost more than synthetics, the value received is much greater than the cost involved not to mention the pride in owning a genuine amethyst, ruby, sapphire, or whatever.

At Reusch Jewelry you can find a large variety of genuine colored stones both loose to mount in your own custom designs, or mounted in rings, pendants, and brooches.

From Federal Funds

Hospital Gets New Patient Books

By FRAN MARTIN

The library at the Charlevoix Area Hospital has been the recipient of a large variety of new books as the result of a federal grant being shared by the Boyne City Public Library according to Mrs. Robert Neff, president of the Charlevoix Hospital Women's Guild.

The Charlevoix Area Hospital, being the only community hospital in the county, was among several organizations in the county to benefit from the $5,000 grant received through the federally funded Title I program. This is the second such grant received by the Boyne City library.

Among the books received at the Charlevoix Area Hospital are 18 children's books to be placed in the Pediatrics Department 20 junior books; 116 adult books and 16 periodicals.

Mrs. Gordon Freedman and Miss Frances Milner, who are in charge of the patient's library cart where the books will be placed, said that the books represent a fine choice of classics as well as books of contemporary authors, all chosen for the environment of a recuperating patient.

"There's no 'heavy' books that would take one several weeks to read," Mrs. Janet Waldner of the Boyne Library said.

She and her assistant, Mrs. Pat Lipski, who worked on the subject with her, tried to select books that represented entertaining reading for patients who would utilize the books for a limited time. Some of the adult books are paperbacks because they are easier to handle.

The choice of magazines are as equally varied. Like the books they were chosen to satisfy the interests of various age groups. Included among them are National Geographic magazines for adults and children's magazines and general news magazines.

For those interested, the books as well as the magazines may be found on the library cart and in the pediatrics department at the hospital.

Mrs. Waldner said other books will be added to the collection at a later date.

Until now most of the books on the library cart at the hospital have been contributed to the Guild.

SOME OF THE MORE than 150 books made available to the Charlevoix Area Hospital through a federal grant obtained by the Boyne City Public Library are displayed by Mrs. Gordon Freedman (left) and Miss Frances Milner.

This spring, do something about next winter's heating costs.
Insulate!
More than 100,000 Michigan Consolidated Gas Company heating customers have taken advantage of our low-cost ceiling insulation program in the past two years.
Originated under the direction of the Michigan Public Service Commission, we are presenting the program again this spring.
Why insulate? Because it helps hold down home heating costs. With the cost of gas continuing to rise, installing ceiling insulation has never made more sense than it does right now. Many Michigan Consolidated customers have already reduced their gas consumption for home heating by as much as 17%. And you can save just as much by installing six inches of ceiling insulation in your home this spring.
How much does it cost? Many homeowners can install insulation themselves for about $125. That's a smart investment when the money you save on heating can repay the insulation cost in just a few years. We have a free handbook that shows you just how to do the job, whether you'll be insulating for the first time or adding to insulation that's been there for many years. You can get a copy at any Michigan Consolidated Gas Company Business Office, most building supply dealers, or write or call us.
If you'd rather not do the job yourself, one of our participating subcontractors can. Total cost is about $250 for homes with less than 1000 sq. ft. of ceiling area. You can pay cash. You can pay 20% down and pay the balance without interest over your next three gas bills. Or you can make extended payments at the interest rate of 1% per month on the unpaid balance (ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE OF 12%).
So why not insulate this spring? You'll make next winter's heating costs less than they might be without it. And if you have air conditioning, you'll save on this summer's cooling costs, too.

You try to smile and look relaxed, but your hands feel like they've been in a deep freezer.

The chairman of the panel asks the first question: "Who is Garry Trudeau"

The cold sweat begins to start coming down your forehead again. You mutter to yourself,... Trudeau...Trudeau...Gary Trudeau. That can't be the Canadian prime minister.

It's the only question you're unable to answer throughout the entire day of interviewing. And after you get back on the plane and eventually buy the Chicago paper you were going to originally buy, you open up the comic page to your favorite cartoon strip.

And then it all comes back to you, Garry Trudeau. Doonesbury, of course.

Three Charlevoix County residents were included in the fall semester Dean's List at Western Michigan University.

Those honored were Jeffery W. Van Treese, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack M. Von Treese of East Jordan; James Kenneth Slough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Slough of East Jordan; and Susan Edvena Call, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Royal James Call of Boyne Falls.

To be eligible for the Dean's List, a WMU student must compile a 3.5 grade average while enrolled in at least 14 hours of graded work.

you have to talk right into them to be heard. These are usually the ones that cross you up by picking up your entire luncheon conversation including, "My God, do you mean the management is charging you $10 for this lunch! Has he never heard of the Geneva Convention?"

Some speakers, more secure than I, have dared to make fun of microphones. Recently, book columnist and reviewer Bob Cromie spoke in our town and opened with the traditional, "Can everyone in the back hear me?"

When someone yelled, "No!" he said, "then how did you know what I asked?"

All night long that microphone floated toward the door. Didn't surprise me a bit.

It's Time to Spring Clean

We're approaching that time of year for spring clean up and clean out. But wait! If your old iron is one of those items slated for throw-away or the garage sale, before you dispose of it–try cleaning it. It may have hours of service left.

To the amount of water needed to fill your iron for steam, add two tablespoons (2T) more or less, of a non-precipitating water softener. Look on your grocery store shelf for the water softener. When the water solution is mixed it should feel slippery when you wet your fingers and rub your thumb and finger together. If your water is very hard it will take–the full amount.

Fill your iron with this solution, plug it in and heat it for the highest temperature setting. Switch to steam and the accumulated scale will be blown out through the holes. Shaking the iron will hurry the process. The length of treatment and the number of through depends on the times to steam the solution condition of your iron. Be sure and cover your table or ironing board. This cleaning process can be messy.

The last step is to mix two tablespoons (2T) white vinegar to enough water to fill your iron. Heat to steam setting, rinse and pour out solution. This will get rid of residue that would cause spotting. The outside can be cleaned with cleaning wax.

Another cleaning matter is the automatic dishwasher. The dishwaser usually self-cleans its tub. However, hard water can build up a white film in the tub. You can remove this film by wiping with a damp cloth and a mild cleaning powder.

Before beginning the cleaning process remove any sediment or objects found in the bottom of the tub.

Clean enamel exteriors with a warm, damp, sudsy cloth; rinse and wipe dry.

The brushed satin chrome can be kept bright by using a solution of two tablespoons packaged water softener dissolved in warm water and drying with a soft cloth. The chrome can also be cleaned effectively with a rubbing alcohol compound wiped over the surface.

A wood cutting board dishwasher top should be washed with a sudsy cloth and rinsed with clean water. Apply a light coat of mineral oil to keep it in good condition.

Benefit Dance

The young people of East Jordan will be taking to rocking chairs on Friday and Saturday, April 9 and 10.

The East Jordan High School Spanish Club is sponsoring a rockathon from 6 o'clock Friday to 6 o'clock Saturday at the East Jordan Snowmobile Clubhouse to raise money for a trip to Spain or Mexico next year.

Further information may be obtained from Donna at 536-7508 or from Kathy Martincheck, Spanish Club advisor, phone 347-4037

Total taxes levied in 1974 was $5,508,549.62, compared with $6,064,335.87 in 1975. By March 1, 1975, 86.1 percent of the taxes had been collected.

Persons who had not paid their taxes by March 1 started paying interest at the rate of four and three-quarters percent a month.

Single Business Tax Hits Like a Lead Balloon

By KEN WINTER

Charlevoix businessmen say they don't need their legislators to tell them they are paying more than their fair share of taxes now that the single business tax has taken effect.

Small businessmen here starting to fill out their first quarterly return under the new tax system are finding it out for themselves, with some estimating their taxes will be 200 percent higher than a year ago.

After discovering earlier that small businessmen will pay an estimated $50 million more a year than originally anticipated, Senator Robert Davis, R-Gaylord, and 29 other senators have been scrambling around with an amendment to reduce the tax formula for small businessmen.

But those surveyed by the Charlevoix Courier during the last two weeks are finding it hard to swallow either the new tax structure or the proposed amendment.

Davis, who last year supported legislation setting up the new tax, has announced a public hearing on the proposed amendment will be held on May 11 in Lansing at 9:30 a.m. in the new Law Building.

Hearing

When asked if there would be an outstate hearing, a Davis aide said they were lucky to get the Lansing hearing past the Democratically-controlled Senate Taxation Committee, where the tax amendment now lies.

"We would like as much participation from small businesses as possible," the aide said.

However, he cautioned those attending the hearing to come armed with specifics and not generalities.

The Davis aide admitted the present law pushed taxes on small businesses up drastically, but thought the proposed amendment would reduce that burden significantly.

The single business tax replaced the previously existing tax system with a single 2.35 levy on wages, profits and other factors. Some businesses previously had to pay eight taxes, but most had to pay three or four–usually a corporate income tax, personal property tax on inventory, an intangibles tax and a franchise tax on corporate net worth.

The law was expected to eliminate the peaks and valleys in tax revenue that have plagued the state in the past, but small businessmen are complaining that this is being done at their expense.

Lexalite, whose sales are over $3 million a year and who would not benefit from the proposed Davis amendment, is concerned over the tendency of the tax to discourage employment.

"Picture, for example, a company earning about $150,000 before taxes, with a payroll of $728,000 plus $74,000 in fringes of F.I.C.A., M.E.S.C., etc., assume a depreciation of $105,000 and $40,000 in annual interest expense, with no recent significant new investment: The tax under the new Single Business Tax would be $19,807," wrote Josh Barnes, president of Lexalite International Corporation.

"Under the former basis, the sum of all the taxes now replaced by the Single Business Tax is $17,139.

"The difference is only $2,700, but virtually all of that $19,807 is payable, even if there had been zero income or an actual loss."

Barnes says the tax benefits only capital intensive, high profit, low employment companies such as major refineries and chemical plants to the detriment of the small, low margin, high labor intensive assemblers and manufacturers.

No Break

"It takes the tax burden off of profits and places them instead on all of the other business expenses, including payroll," he said.

"Under the Single Business Tax, I get a tax break the minute I lay somebody off."

Jim McKinney, a private business consultant, shares Barnes' concerns.

"My chief fear is that many of our small Northern Michigan businesses will not include careful consideration of this tax in their budgets, operation plans and pricing policy," he continued.

"If the matter is left to their accountants to handle after the fact, I think many of our businesses will find themselves seriously hurt financially.

"The ability of this tax to gobble up working capital is immense."

Like Barnes, McKinney fears many companies will reduce their labor forces to cut down on the tax burden.

A local attorney, who deals with many area businesses, says he thinks the Single Business Tax is not so much discriminatory against small businesses as it is discriminatory in favor of certain, specific large businesses.

"For example, the major factor in determining the amount of tax paid whether the business is labor-oriented or capital-expenditure-oriented," he continued.

"General Motors, with huge retooling investments each year, will pay a substantially smaller tax per dollar of revenue than a building contractor or law firm."

45 Percent Hike

Mel Smith, a CPA for the accounting firm of Dinwiddie, Kandt, Smith and Fought, says he's busy collecting statistics on how it will affect his clients.

Although he has no concrete position now, Smith said it would be a safe assumption that it will be expensive for businesses in this part of the country.

Other industries in Charlevoix say they will be feeling the pinch.

Charles Kratt, operations manager and vice president of Will-Flow, says his company's taxes will be 16 percent more than the taxes it replaced and that Senator Davis' small business exemption would have no effect on them.

"The Michigan Single Business Tax represents another increase in its cost of doing business in the State of Michigan," he said.

Walter J. Hufford, vice president of Hufford Industries, says his company will see a 45 percent hike in taxes.

"This takes into consideration capital expenditures that were more than twice our net income," he added.

"Without the capital expenditures, our tax bill would have nearly doubled.

"This, is in face of many statements that the Single Business Tax was not supposed to increase taxes but merely simplify the method of taxation."

Hufford said he could see no relief for the small businessmen, only some relief for the marginal operator who is not making a profit.

"Senator Davis' statement that a business that makes no profit can still end up paying a great deal of taxes is contradictory because a business that doesn't make a profit won't be paying taxes or anything else for very long."

Hufford said he couldn't understand Governor Milliken's reasoning for making this part of the state support a larger proportion of Michigan's expenses, unless the Governor was looking only at where the votes were.

Welcomes Tax

Only Ron Pair Enterprises, one of Charlevoix's newest industries, welcomed the Single Business Tax.

"It has always been our opinion that a corporation continually striving to achieve productivity and growth through various expansion programs should not be burdened with excessive tax liabilities," wrote Roger Smigiel, corporation comptroller for the Midwest Division of Ron Pair.

Smigiel says the most important factor to consider is corporate investment.

He said his company has nearly doubled its growth in the last 2 years and that they expect the trend to continue. Machinery and equipment purchases as well as building expension are major items reducing his company's tax burden.

While Smigiel expresses a happy note, Supt. James McKimmy of Charlevoix Public Schools says the local school district will lose about $4.7 million of its tax base, in personal inventory.

"The county is losing about $16 million personal inventory," he said.

"As a result of not having that property tax on our roles, we will have a direct loss of about $73,000."

While cities, townships and counties can expect reimbursements for their losses, McKimmy said local school districts will not.

Once Small

Charlevoix County State Bank President Gordon Weliman says it shouldn't have much affect on his bank's tax liability, but it will on many of his small business customers.

"It seems tragic to me that Lansing or Washington can, with the stroke of a pen, destroy the basic ingredients which made this country great over the past 200 years," he said.

"We Americans would not be celebrating a Bicentennial if it had not been for the small businessmen who built this country.

"Edison experimented in his own home and Ford built an automobile in an old garage.

"They were once small too."

Alert

The Charlevoix taxpayers have now been alerted to the sad fact that our school officials will stop at nothing to bind the taxpayer to bond issues we can ill afford. It happened when the retarded pupils were registered on Jan. 30, 1976, presumably to vote for the bond issue, March 22, 1978. The pupils have never before been registered although some are in their 30's and 40's.

Needless to say, these handicapped persons had not the judgement or ability to make the effort on their own initiative. It has been said they even had to have help in the voting booth. Legal but highly UNETHICAL. Fortunately, despite their handicap, these pupils do not create the destruction that so-called "normal" pupils do. Sad to relate, it is the mayhem and vandalism of the normal ones that necessitates expensive repairs which the taxpayer cannot afford in these times.

Something must be done by parents and teachers to educate normal children from kindergarten through senior high that the average citizen can no longer pay the exorbitant costs of schools, even if teachers and pupils must hold school in a circus tent.

Reply to Picard

Mr. Picard has to be respected for voicing his opinion. Anyones' comment must be listened to and very often will deserve a reply. His letter on March 17th deserves a reply. Charlevoix is a great community to visit or live in, and its residents should be proud of it. One of the primary reasons for its success is the great number of tourists and summer residents and the economic support they give to the city. With these families come college and teenage students who seek employment. Very often these students would not spend their summers in the community if they couldn't find a job, and in many cases their families would not stay either.

These students are ready to work for a summer and are an asset to their employers and their businesses. They realize what great competition there is for a job and that they will put out their best if given the opportunity. The local kids who don't get a job cannot blame it on out of town students. If they wanted to hustle they could do very well as many of the local residents have. Those teenagers who are "idle and create a problem conducive to mischief" would not be that way. If they didn't want to be and probably wouldn't be of any great value to any businessman. As Mr. Picard would probably tell you, no one will get anywhere in life if they don't hustle. For another point, the non-resident students may be "young", but are rarely wealthy and very often have to finance themselves and their education.

The local businessman, industrialists, and public works people should employ those students of the highest caliber and those who would benefit their businesses the greatest. Thank you.

Happy ꟼlirqA Fool's Day

Blame April Fool's Day on a change in the calendar!

At least one theory of the origin of this day of foolishness is that it started in France after the adoption of a reformed calendar by Charles IX in 1564.

It seems that up to that time the New Year was celebrated from March 21 to April 1. When Charles changed New Year's Day to January 1, some people still celebrated on April 1 and became known as April Fish.

As time went on, the day became one of people playing jokes on each other – sending a friend on a fool's errand or duping him into doing or believing something absurd.

In England, as in America, it became April Fool's Day, and in Scotland it is known as April Gowk (cuckoo) Day.

An even more abscure theory of the origin of April Fool's Day is that it started in ancient India to mark the end of the Festival of Huli, a spring celebration in which pranks played a large part.

The Mexicans celebrate a similar day of foolishness on December 28, but its origin is not recorded.

Don't let anyone fool you!

Twenty-Five-Year-old Man Inherits Penn Central Track

By KEN WINTER

CADILLAC – At 12:01 a.m. Thursday, 25-year-old Mark Campbell becomes the heir of what the Wall Street Journal recently called a rickety, rutted and reeling railroad.

The short, stocky former Lansingite inherited some 246 miles of bankrupt Penn Central (Grand Rapids & Indiana) trackage this week when the State Highway Commission signed a $1.6 million contract with Michigan Northern to continue freight service from Grand Rapids to the Straits of Mackinac.

Campbell, president of the six-member company, signed the one-year contract to assure continuation of the service through March 31, 1977, while allowing the state time to evaluate the needs and costs of the operation that handles 2,500 carloads yearly.

Otherwise, the trackage would have been dropped April 1, by the Consolidated Rail Corp. (Conrail), a new concern set up by Congress to take over and revitalize railroad service in the region.

The newly formed Michigan Northern Railroad Company will make freight service runs from Comstock Park, outside Grand Rapids, to Mackinaw City, with a connector between Walton Junction and Traverse City.

Federal Money

Federal money totaling $1,085,733 will pay ooperating expenses and leasing of track from the Penn Central trustee. The state's share, $531,303, is earmarked for rehabilitation, primarily upgrading of the track.

Dressed somewhat like a big city banker with a gray pin-stripped suit and gold watch chain, Campbell unlocked the front door of his company's new headquarters. It didn't look anything like a bank.

Campbell's new company is operating temporarily out of an old automotive warehouse located across from Cadillac's city park until it can gain possession of Penn Central's freight warehouse located just around the corner.

Some might scoff at Campbell's lusteress operation, but the northern Michigan railroader looks quite proudly at his recent accomplishment.

Huddled around a lonely desk with three telephones, three of his five partners were busy making phone calls to prospective clients located along the old Penn Central trackage.

Michigan Northern's corporate structure includes Campbell, as president; Alex Huff of Lake City, vice president of operations; Jerry Willson of Perry, general manager; Elizabeth Andrus of Lake City, assistant general manager; Tom Willson of Lansing, accountant and director; and Dennis Ashworth of Ecorse, attorney and director.

All in their late twenties and early thirties, the company officers hope to make their first freight run to Mackinaw City from Cadillac on April 1.

More Trips

After April 1, Michigan Northern plans to make three weekly round trips from Caddiac to Grand Rapids, two from Cadillac to Mackinac City and one from Walton Junction to Traverse City. This compares to the once weekly trip made throughout the system by Penn Central.

Michigan Northern's two newly acquired 1952-vintage diesel electric road switchers will be carrying mostly inbound products, including agricultural lime, lumber and other building materials, fertilizer and feed and materials for oil drillers.

Born and raised in the Pontiac suburb of Waterford-Kettering, Campbell moved to Lansing in 1968 to go to Michigan State University.

While studying labor and negotiations, he worked part-time at Grand Trunk and Western's station at MSU as assistant station agent during the school year.

In the summers, he worked in Royal Oak as a track worker.

"I spent all day long on the business end of a shovel," he said.

Campbell was able eventually to work himself into the station agent position at MSU's station until it went under Amtrack in May, 1971.

In August, 1971, Campbell headed north to work for the Cadillac and Lake City Railroad as a track worker until school started in September. He continued to commute to Lake City and work weekends during the school year.

"The following summer, I intended to work full time," Campbell said about bringing his new wife to Lake City and working for the small tourist train that chugged daily between Lake City and Round Lake.

"It was probably one of the happiest summers we've had," he continued.

"My wife worked as a waitress on the train and would throw me and another guy a can of pop when the train went by where we were working on the tracks."

Summer Romance

But the summer railroad romance ended quickly when the owners of the railroad were forced to close down in July for lack of operating revenue.

Campbell and his wife, had to move back to Pontiac so he could work the rest of the summer on the line for GM's Truck and Coach Division.

With some of the friends he made while working for Lake City, Campbell formed a loose organization called Northern Michigan Research Associates in 1973.

The group proposed to create its own tourist railroad on Penn Central trackage between Walton Junction and Traverse City. However after a year and a half of costly negotiations, Campbell said Penn Central broke off negotiations in July, 1974, because of the proposed Conrail system.

Campbell was able to work as transportation consultant for the state highway department in 1974, until his group of friends got serious about vying for the bankrupt Penn Central trackage between Grand Rapids and Mackinaw Straits.

After a year of battling with the state, Campbell's Michigan Northern was awarded a contract to operate short line rail service. Highway officials had initially wanted the trackage to be operated by Conrail, but Campbell says they changed their minds after finding out

Cancer Society Launches Drive

Charlevoix County Cancer Crusade workers will begin their fund-raising drive this week.

The volunteers will make a door-to-door solicitation for money to carry on the work in education, research and treatment of cancer.

Last week all county volunteers met in Boyne City to hear Dr. Harry R. Custer, medical advisor to the group, talk about new advances in research and treatment. They also listened to Larry Moore, District Director of the American Cancer Society, stress the importance of heeding the danger signs of cancer and viewed two films on cancer, one featuring Mrs. Gerald Ford and one featuring golfer Gene Littler.

James McMillen of Charlevoix, counselor to Laryngectomens in the eastern part of the Upper Peninsula and the upper northern counties, was also a guest.

In addition to the door-to-door campaign there will be a bake sale April 16 and 17 at Oleson's Food Store and a luncheon sponsored by the American Legion and American Legion Auxillary at the Legion Hall on Wednesday, April 28.

Members of the Detroit Lions football team, who will be in town April 16 and 17 are expected to visit the bake sale on Saturday morning.

Tickets for the casserole-salad luncheon may be obtained from any Cancer Crusade volunteer, members of the Legion, at the Charlevoix County State Bank, the First State Bank of Charlevoix, Muma's Sunoco Service, and at the door. The price is $2.00.

Those wishing to donate to the bake sale are asked to call Patty Muma at 547-9335.

Editorials/Opinions

City Zoning Shouldn't Be Dropped

Although Charlevoix's proposed ordinance didn't exactly get a warm welcome at a recent public hearing, we hope the city's effort to look at the ordinance isn't over.

Two weeks ago, Charlevoix residents told city council that they thought the ordinance still needed a lot of work before it would meet with community approval.

Council was using the ordinance to determine whether or not the new ordinance should be adopted to supercede the present city ordinance that was enacted in 1945.

Most of those objecting to the ordinance were those who have particular property interests that would be affected if the new ordinance were adopted.

While we understand some of the concerns brought out during the hearing, we found the objections rather upsetting. One person asked why we need zoning at all.

It was his and other people's premise that zoning is simply something brought to Charlevoix by those from the cities and that it is an unnecessary evil.

They argue that zoning only hinders a property owner's right to do anything he wants to do with his land. Although we cannot argue with a property owner's rights, we do disagree with the contention that this is a reason to not have zoning.

Time and time we have talked about the valuable assets Charlevoix is so fortunate to have. The lakes, the trees and beautiful terrain are all a part of why many people decide to live in Charlevoix the Beautiful.

As we already are experiencing, uncontrolled development can quickly rob us of what so many have worked so long for.

Zoning should not be viewed as a roadblock for property owners to use their property. This is not the intention of zoning.

Zoning simply protects the property owner from neighboring owners taking away the value of his land by constructing a structure or using their land in an undesirable manner not consistent with the rest of the area.

Many city officials and others in the community have been concerned that the present zoning ordinance is not protecting Charlevoix property as it once did.

Charlevoix has experienced so many changes in recent years that the present zoning ordinance is no longer adequate to handle them.

We are concerned that many of these changes threaten the condition of our community and could jeopardize our beautiful surroundings.

Although the proposed ordinance has some rough edges to be smoothed out, we feel this document is better than the one we are now using.

Rather than just throwing out the ordinance now being proposed, we would like to encourage our city fathers to closely scrutinize the document. Although working with a zoning ordinance is often cumbersome and requires many hours of hard reading and review, we can't think of a more important job on the council's agenda.

If council feels the time and effort required to make the proposed ordinance acceptable to the community is too much, we suggest that they consider establishing a city planning board.

Until the new ordinance is formulated, the board could act as a ad hoc committee to get citizen input and to fine tune the proposed ordinance.

Until last year, Charlevoix met jointly with Charlevoix Township as a regional planning commission to determine land use issues. However, last year the township decided it no longer wanted to work with the city.

Since the disbanding of the regional planning commission, Charlevoix has yet to establish another organization to fill the void. We could think of no better opportunity to establish a new planning board.

Good land use planning is essential to Charlevoix and one of the only ways it can be assured is through a planning board that can spend the time required to review development proposals in Charlevoix.

In the meantime, we think it is essential that a city planning board or commission be established to help city council work the proposed ordinance.

We think time is quickly running out and urge city council to act as quickly as possible on the new ordinance.

The proper city ordinance could protect our city for many years to come.

Go to Costa Rica

Much has recently been written about Costa Rica and the many American "Pensionados" (retirees) who have settled there. Had it not been for a bout with breast cancer, we would already be among them.

Since I last wrote you, because of the excellent medical facilities in Costa Rica, I have been given the okay to start plans for our move to Guanacaste Province, near Liberia City.

We will soon be building our home in Ranchos Maricosta, where we will have a few cattle for the freezer, horses for our two children, a garden and fruit and nut trees. It is a long-awaited dream – and we can hardly wait!

Cost of living is still so low and taxes there so nearly non-existent we can live comfortably on my husband's modest Navy retirement pay. We can hunt in the nearby mountains, fish in the Pacific and, if we ever tire of that, we can play golf and tennis, or just laze around in the sun (as we used to be able to do in now-many-times-more-expensive Hawaii).

We are really very excited about this. So much so, in fact, that if any readers would like more information about this beautiful, amazing little country and its Retirement Law, they can write me. I will be happy to share what I know with them.

I have a growing feeling that President Ford's stock with the American people would rise several percentage points if he'd fire Henry Kissinger and replace him with—well, with just about anybody.

The impression won't leave that Kissinger isn't one of the President's men. He still belongs to that old scoundrel Richard Nixon, heart and soul. When Nixon returned from China, there was that 15-minute telephone call from Kissinger, followed by Nixon's preparation of a diplomatic pouch for Kissinger and Ford.

The whole Ford-Nixon-Kissinger triangle just doesn't sit well with the American people, and it is going to cost Jerry Ford votes come November.

Kissinger's latest blunder was that little sabre dance he did down in Texas, telling Cuba the United States would take her across its knee if Fidel Castro intervened in any new African wars after Angola.

Holy Moses! I never thought Kissinger had cornered the market on smarts, but what in the world does he have in mind, unless it is an act of war against Cuba? Is Kissinger really so naive that he believes the U.S. secretary of state runs the world?

Of course, Kissinger's speech itself was an act of provocation against Cuba. I don't know what African adventures are planned by Cuba, but if I were Castro I'd be tempted to send troops just about anywhere to call old Kissinger's bluff.

Apparently Kissinger still hasn't learned the lessons we all were supposed to learn in Vietnam: Foreign wars are not really our stock-in-trade and we'd do well to avoid them.

Should Castro be allowed to assist the emerging African nations militarily without a lot of gaff from the United States? Of course, he should, if he wants to. He may get burned like we did in Vietnam, but that's his business, not ours.

Sound like the Isolationism of the 30's? You bet it does.

But Castro won't get burned. He is smart enough to pick the popular side in any war, the side that has the masses behind it.

Whenever the United States gets involved in foreign disputes, we seem to have a penchant for assisting the wrong side. We race in to protect special interest groups like the oil cartels, the international banks, or religious groups of one stripe or another. We lose sight of the fact, as we did in Vietnam, that it is the little, insignificant puny peasants who are going to win in the end, simply because there are so many of them. And they never give up.

Sounds as though old Hubert Humphrey is ready to punch the panic button, if he hasn't already.

Humphrey had it all planned how he would lay low for the opening rounds of the national preferential primaries, letting his fellow Democrats follow whichever butterfly appeared most attractive at the moment.

Then, when everything was in chaos with the party split in a dozen pieces, Humphrey would ride into the convention on a white charger, pull the warring factions together and win the Democratic nomination.

Last week non-candidate Humphrey tipped his hand a little when he announced that he will mount his campaign in early summer if it appears that the Democrats have no clear-cut front-runner.

Sorry, Hubert, but it's already too late.

The Democratic Party does have a front-runner in the person of Jimmy Carter who is charming the hustings with his boyish, Jack Kennedy good looks and political talk that makes a lot of sense.

Carter, who is as short on humility as he is long on appeal, says he'll walk into the convention with 1,000 delegates in his pocket and win on the first ballot.

Humphrey has his work cut out for him if he intends to stop the Carter steamroller.

You don't hear a lot about Senior Power, but it's there.

There are 20 million Americans older than 65 and they are easily the most discriminated-against minority of all.

That's why today, I'm giving equal time to grandmothers.

Awhile back, I did a column on what grandchildren could expect from grandparents. With an assist from a sharp grandmother in Rye, New York, here's some demands from grandparents.

1. Do not feel free to join me in the bathroom or run screaming to your mother when I throw you out. She may feel you are ready to be introduced to the mysteries of the human anatomy, but I don't.

2. When we're at the table and I am trying to get you to eat your din din, please don't call everyone's attention to the fact that I am talking to you with my mouth full.

3. Please, under no circumstances, fool around with the wires under my wheelchair.

4. When I am babysitting and have an important long-distance call, don't run out of the front door screaming and leaving me locked in. Granted you must have freedom, but I also have a nerve problem.

5. Please don't tear up my phone book just to keep busy while I am talking to a door-to-door salesman.

6. Please do not fill up the bathtub with water and float my hairbrush and comb in a solution of hair rinse, perfume, bath oil, and bath powder. That makes me cry throughout an entire evening.

7. Do not become hysterical when the toilet flushes blue. It is not something you have done.

8. Do not play football with my best pillow near my antique hurricane lamp.

9. Unless you are a prodigy and a soloist with the Cleveland symphony at the age of 4, do not sit down at my piano with sticky fingers.

10. When my legs are crossed and you jump on my foot for a "ride" do not be surprised if my leg falls off.

11. Try to understand I do not have unlimited toys around. Although the dog has movable parts, most of them cannot be replaced.

12. I'd like very much to respond to your pleas of "carry me, Grandma" but frankly you took the words out of MY mouth.

Now Grandma, if your grievance committee was only old enough to read this, you'd have it made.

If it Fitz

by Jim Fitzgerald

Altogether Now

These words are being typed the morning after St. Patrick's Day on the 18th day of the 3rd month of this Bicentennial year. Which seems an appropriate time to confess to my 2 most grievous sins, currently:

1. Although my lineage is 100 percent Irish all the way back to the Olde Sod, I do nothing whatsoever to celebrate St. Pat's Day.

2. Although I think this is a fine nation and I wouldn't live anywhere else, I don't give a hoot about its 200th birthday.

Some might say this makes me a traitor twice, to my ethnic group and to my nation. I plead not guilty. I might plead guilty to being an eccentric, even a curmudgeon. But sentence me to 30 days for a misdemeanor, please. Don't hang me without a hearing.

When the mood is right, my eyes mist at the singing of the Star Spangled Banner. I bawled outright when Jose Feliciano sang it with a rock beat in Tiger Stadium in 1968, the glorious year our guys won the World Series. Which is a tip-off to my hang-up. Most people were outraged at the sacrilege. But I overflowed at the privilege of living in a nation where a blind Puerto Rican was able to do his thing in center field, with no shots fired from right or left.

Likewise, there is nothing I enjoy more than drinking too much and singing McNamara's Band too loud. But another tip-off is I'd rather do it because the company is right, my sister Terrible Jean is leading the chorus with great swoops of her long arms, and some Jewish fellow is picking up the tab. Not because it's March 17.

It is true it is a foine thing to be Irish, and a grand thing to be a U.S. citizen. But it is also true an excess of nationalism often leads to barroom brawls—or wars. I like my pride lit from a spontaneous spark. I love a parade that starts because the music sets feet to marching. Not because the calendar says today is the day to put the flag out.

Today's mail brought me a handsome, 400-page book titled "Comprehensive Calendar of Bicentennial Events—East of the Mississippi." It is the 3rd such book I've received from the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration in Washington. It tells me such marvelous things as the dates of the Norris Dogwood Trail Festival in Norris, Tenn. And there'll be an Arts & Crafts display April 24 in Poquoson, Virginia. I certainly hope my busy schedule will allow me to attend both events.

Such books are being delivered to most newspaper offices in the U.S. As a semi-printer, I know the publishing costs must run into the millions of dollars. As an ex-mailman, I know the delivery costs are enough to hire sufficient postal employees to deliver a 13-cent letter from New York to California in one day. They could line up and hand it across the nation.

And as an ex-editor I know those books will never be read by anyone. They are a total waste of money. I would like to celebrate the Bicentennial by spending that money to feed hungry kids, or fill chuckholes, or buy one-way tickets to the moon for the numbskulls in Washington responsible for such incredible foolishness.

If the numbskulls should ever escape back to Washington, they should be drowned the next March 17th in all the lousy green beer which wasn't consumed because St. Patrick's Day was cancelled. The Irish should skip the saloons and simply go to church, or kneel at home, and pray for an unorganized life.

Birthdays and holidays should not be observed in close-order drill. Everyone fall out and smoke 'em if you got 'em.

Meet Charlevoix

Kamila Cherry

Kamila Cherry is publicity chairman for the newly-formed Charlevoix Theater Guild. The Courier talks with her about what the Guild is doing and its plans for the future.

COURIER: What is the Guild working on right now?

CHERRY: On a series of bicentennial skits which we will give at the Medusa plant May 15 during the cherry-pie baking ceremonies. We are writing our own skits.

COURIER: Do you have all the people you need for this production?

CHERRY: All of the acting parts are filled but we do need help in make-up, props, lighting, costumes, etc.

COURIER: When will you produce your next show?

CHERRY: We will be active in the fall, winter and spring. We hope to have a big production, probably a musical, in the fall and another one next February or March.

COURIER: How did the Charlevoix Theater Guild get started?

CHERRY: It was kind of Sandy Pitcher's and Angie Stewart's idea. They had been active in a theatrical group downstate. We also have some former members of the old Pine River Players group.

COURIER: Who are the officers of the Guild?

CHERRY: Sandy Pitcher is president; Bill Schleman is vice-president, Jill Will is secretary, Laurie Lesser is treasurer, Caroline Zniziki and Clarence Peters are membership co-chairmen and I am publicity chairman.

COURIER: How many members do you have?

CHERRY: At our first meeting we had about 20 people. Now we have about 40 involved. We want members of all ages. Everyone in the community can become involved.

COURIER: What are the membership dues?
